Mediation Offers Made.

By the Associated Press.

Youngstown, Ohio, May 27.—Two peace efforts and two complaints to Federal authorities tonight marked the Steel Workers Organizing Committee strike against three independent steel companies, in which 70,000 men are idle in five States.

As strikers tightened picket lines about plants of Republic Steel Corporation, Inland Steel Corporation and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., these developments occurred:

Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio disclosed he had communicated with Republic and Sheet & Tube executives and union leaders, and asserted, "there is good reason to believe that (negotiation) meetings will be held by the middle of next week."

Conference Is Requested.

Philip Murray, S. W. O. C. chairman, requested Republic for a conference to negotiate a signed contract with the Committee for Industrial Organization affiliate—objective of the three-sided strike.

Van A. Bittner, Chicago regional director for S. W. O. C., announced he had telegraphed President Roosevelt charging Republic with "conspiracy to render ineffective the national labor relations act."

S. W. O. C. headquarters filed complaints with the National Labor Relations Board, charging Republic, largest of the independents involved, had used coercion and intimidation against union members.

At Buffalo, meanwhile, Hugh Thompson, Detroit C. I. O. organizer, announced that 3,000 C. I. O. men from the automotive and other industries would reinforce picket ranks there in an effort to throttle production at Republic's plant.

"They will form one of the biggest picket lines this part of the country has ever seen," said Thompson.

Urges Peaceful Action.

Gov. Davey said he wished to commend both sides on the "friendly and conciliatory attitude" shown in his conversations. He urged that both sides use care in preventing actions which would tend to create ill-feeling or to mar opportunity for successful negotiation.

Clinton S. Golden, regional S. W. O. C. director at Pittsburgh, charged that Republic, largest of the firms involved, "has been following a definite policy of interfering with and defeating the rights of the employes to join the union."

As the picket lines patrolled plants from Buffalo to Chicago, Murray charged that Tom Girdler, chairman of Republic, or his subordinates have "issued orders to shoot to kill."

With pickets still getting acquainted with their posts at Republic, Sheet & Tube and Inland Mills, S. W. O. C. leaders at Pittsburgh began today to talk about the campaign against Bethlehem Steel Corporation and National Steel Corporation, employing between them 107,000 men.

Flames of Love Quenched by New 'Gable' Essence

New York, May 27 (U.P.).—Aside from four expeditions into all parts of the world in a new $10,000,000 expansion plan, the American Museum of Natural History tonight announced scientists in its laboratories have discovered a fluid that will turn men's love to ice.

"Of course," said Dr. G. Kingsley Noble, one of the museum curators, "we haven't experimented with human beings, but on fish and mice our fluid—we call it the Clark Gable love fluid—has worked marvels."

The technical name, he said, is prolactin.

"We injected prolactin into a would-be Clark Gable fish and he lost all interest in his courtship and took up domestic life."

Girl and Suitor Found Guilty of Hatchet Slaying

Convicted of 2d-Degree Murder; Face 1 to 30 Years in Prison.

By the Associated Press.

Jersey City, N. J., May 27.—Gladys MacKnight, 17, and her former choir boy sweetheart, Donald Wightman, 19, were convicted tonight of second-degree murder, carrying a penalty of from one to 30 years in prison for the hatchet slaying of the girl's mother.

The pair, who once played tennis together but turned against each other in the trial, received the verdict with drawn faces and clenched jaws.

From the witness stand they turned bitter accusations upon each other—each contending the other struck the fatal hatchet blow upon Mrs. Helen MacKnight, 47-year-old Bayonne club woman.

But tonight as they waited to hear the verdict, a court officer disclosed that the youth wanted to shake Gladys' hand and wish her luck.

The request was referred to the sheriff, who refused, but the next time Donald and Gladys appeared in court together he turned toward her and smiled. She smiled back. It was the first time they had even looked each other squarely in the eye.

A few minutes later, the jury came in with the decision that forestalled any chance of their being together again for a long time.

The pair seemed stunned, but neither showed signs of tears.

Donald's mother gasped and fell into the arms of her husband.

Gladys' father, Edgar W. MacKnight, who testified in her behalf, vaulted a court room railing and started for the door. Someone asked him a question. He replied:

"Let's forget about it."

Judge Thomas F. Meaney, of the Hudson County Court of Oyer and Terminer, announced sentences would be passed a week from today.

Windsor's Family Sends 3 Packages Of Wedding Gifts

Monts, France, May 27 (AP).—Wedding presents for the Duke of Windsor and Wallis Warfield arrived from the British royal family tonight.

They were brought by Sir Walter Monckton, attorney for the Duchy of Cornwall and Edward's legal advisor during the abdication crisis.

There were three large packages but the Chateau de Cande household would not tell what the gifts were.

Monckton, who came to discuss business affairs with Windsor, returned by plane to London after a four-hour conference. He was piloted in one of King George VI's planes.

Nazis Outlaw 200 Catholic Newspapers

By the United Press.

Berlin, May 27.—A showdown fight between the Nazi government and the Roman Catholic Church was forecast by informed observers tonight following the banning of 200 Catholic newspapers published in Germany.

The troubles between the church and the government to date were described as "mere skirmishes" in comparison with the impending battle.

The Vatican, it was said, will be as vigorous as Chancellor Adolf Hitler's government when the real fight comes.

An intensive drive against Catholic Youth organizations and Catholic schools was in full swing and the Reich moved swiftly ahead with its trials of priests, monks and nuns on charges of immorality and currency smuggling.

Vatican experts are known to be preparing a "white book" detailing the controversy and relations between the government and the Holy See since Hitler's ascent to power in 1933—the year in which Germany's concordat was signed.

High ecclesiastics in Berlin decided to use the pulpit to ward off attacks, as it is their only remaining forum now that the Catholic newspapers have been banned.

A printing plant at Essen, where 200 Catholic church papers were published, was closed by German police and the papers banned indefinitely.

Tomorrow night Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi minister of propaganda, will speak at a mass meeting in answer to recent criticism of Hitler by George Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago.

The immorality trials of priests resulted in an invitation to foreign newspaper correspondents to attend the trials opening Monday at Coblenz. It was expected that part of the testimony would be broadcast by radio.

President's Son, Fiancee Attend Wedding in N. Y.

New York, May 27 (AP).—Ethel duPont and her fiance, Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., were in town today as bridesmaid and spectator, respectively, at one of New York's outstanding society weddings of the season.

Miss duPont was one of six attendants for Ann R. Porter, a 1933 debutante, who became the bride of Thomas Le Boutillier 3d at the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Resurrection.

Later young Roosevelt and Miss duPont, who are to be married June 30 at her family estate in Delaware, attended the reception at the Park avenue home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Barrows Porter. The couple is visiting Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President.

Pierre S. duPont, titular head of the Delaware family and cousin of Franklin's fiancee, said today he would be unable to attend her wedding because of previous arrangements to sail for Europe on June 23 with Mrs. duPont.

The President and others of the Roosevelt family will attend, but duPont, now engaged in a legal battle here with the Government over his income tax payments, said he did not want his absence "to be misunderstood."

"After all, it's the youngsters who are getting married," he said. "Whatever differences the old folks might have don't amount to anything on such a day."

Spain Accuses Italy Directly Before League

'White Book' Charges Prolonging of War, Quotes 'Orders.'

By the Associated Press.

Geneva, May 27.—The Spanish government today published a "white book" directly accusing Italy of prolonging the war in Spain and charging her with the "most scandalous violation" of international principles in Europe since the World War.

The government's representatives handed copies of the "white book" to members of the League of Nations Council before the special assembly adjourned until September 13 for the annual league session.

The volume, a compilation of documents, cited extracts from what were purported to be army orders issued by Italian officers anent the conflict in Spain.

The book charges Italy has acted as a "truly belligerent power" and has violated Article 10 of the League of Nations covenant. That provides for respect and preservation of the terrtiorial integrity and political independence of league members against external aggression.

The documents, allegedly taken from Italian soldiers fighting with the insurgents in Spain, show what purports to be a "secret" and "most urgent" order from the Italian war office to the corps commander of the general staff.

"Duce Pleased."

This order, bearing a Rome date of January 6, 1937, and alleged to have been signed by the executive quartermaster of the general staff, states as its object "volunteers for any destination."

Another order, purportedly from the command of the second brigade of the Italian "Black Flame" volunteers, recites that many officers en route to different garrisons had asked Spanish insurgent authorities to supply them with various pieces of equipment.

This document further says that although everyone could not equip themselves because of "the haste with which we left" that it was not proper that requests be made to Spanish military authorities for what was lacking.

Disposition of the property and effects of men killed in action or taken prisoner was covered in another document.

A purported divisional order, dated March 15, 1937, said:

"Tell the men Duce is highly pleased with the work of his Black Shirts. Explain to all the enormous losses suffered by the enemy in men, materials, airplanes shot down, towns destroyed by artillery and aviation."

Business Tax Likely Major Revenue Item

House Group Approves Income, Trade Levies, Park-o-Meters.

D. C. Heads' Committee Upset by Rejection of Sales Plan.

By James D. Secrest.

A return to the business privilege tax as the major source of additional local revenue appeared likely last night as District officials set to work drawing up a new tax program under direction of the Kennedy House sub-committee.

Thrown into confusion by the sub-committee's rejection of a sales tax and the demand for a new income levy and business privilege tax proposal, the Commissioners' special tax committee decided to tap gross business receipts harder than incomes.

The House sub-committee, after a morning of wrangling, adopted the income and business privilege taxes along with the previously approved levies on motor vehicles, estates and inheritances, and an increase in the tax on insurance premiums.

At the same time it instructed the District heads to draft legislation authorizing the setting up of parking meters and compelling foreign corporations doing business in Washington to pay license fees.

Ignore Gas Tax Boost.

The sub-committee ignored the 1-cent gasoline tax increase asked by the Commissioners, and failed to act on the proposal of Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, that the $1,500,000 from a motor vehicle weight levy be placed in the gas tax rather than the general revenue fund.

Following a closed conference, Elwood Seal, corporation counsel, stated the requested income and business privilege tax bills will be so drawn that the latter will raise the larger share of whatever funds are needed over the $2,500,000 expected revenue from the three uncontested proposals.

That excess appeared to be submerged in the general confusion as the House sub-committee talked of keeping the whole tax program down to $8,149,000 and District officials continued to discuss the problem in terms of $7,000,000 and $7,500,000.

Senator Thomas, chairman of the Senate sub-committee on District appropriations, suggested what probably will be a solution to the muddle when he stated the Senate could add as many new taxes as are necessary after the House has passed its bills.

Action Inevitable.

As he hinted the deficit may be $7,500,000 or $8,000,000, or possibly as high as $10,000,000, when the District supply bill is reported, the supplementary rewriting of the House tax legislation appears inevitable.

The danger of a hike in the realty tax was increased by the House sub-committee's decision to report tax bills that will meet only the deficit in the District supply bill as it passed the House.

Senator Thomas, however, instructed Auditor Daniel J. Donovan to draft a rider which will authorize the Commissioners to obtain advances from the Treasury Department in anticipation of the new tax collections.

This provision, which will be tacked onto the appropriations bill, Maj. Donovan said, will be necessary even if all the tax bills are enacted into law because of the time that will be required to put the new revenue-raising machinery into operation.

Donovan ridiculed the report the Commissioners might have to jump the realty and personal property tax rate to $2 or more should the bills become involved in a legislative tangle that would prevent their passage before the end of this fiscal year.

He pointed out, however, that a slight raise in the realty rate would become necessary if the

Baker Ill on Yacht; Plane Sends Aid

Honolulu, May 27 (AP).—George F. Baker, chairman of the First National Bank of New York, was reported seriously ill after an emergency operation for peritonitis aboard his yacht Viking in mid-Pacific today. The Coast Guard cutter Tayne was ordered to rush aid.

A few hours after the Taney sailed, a Navy plane soared out to overtake her with blood typing serum, to be used to determine a possible donor for a blood transfusion.

Queen's Hospital physicians here said the serum was packed so it could be dropped near the cutter if the sea is too rough for the plane to alight.

The plane was expected to reach the cutter about 5:30 p. m. (11 p. m., Eastern standard time).

Unruly House Slashes Hopkins' Pay $2,000 In Raid on Relief Bill

Joint Committee Can't Agree On Federal Reorganization

Robinson to Offer Omnibus Bill; Is Said to See No 'Calamity' if It Fails; House Members Quit Meeting.

By Sidney Olson.

After four and one-half months of desultory hearings on the President's Government reorganization program, a joint Congressional committee split wide open yesterday over the form and contents of legislation to carry it out.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, Senate Majority Leader, said he would introduce within ten days an omnibus bill embodying the major points of the sweeping re-shuffle of the Government.

But he was understood to have said in the closed session that "If this bill doesn't pass, it won't be any great national calamity."

The statement attributed to him, however, is at wide variance with his position as Senate standard-bearer for the Administration.

House to Push 4 Bills.

The House members, in withdrawing from the joint sessions, asserted they were prepared to push four separate bills, as suggested by the President, carrying the major features of the program without significant change.

But Robinson's bill, yet unintroduced, will shear the President's plan of a great deal of the powers which it grants to the Chief Executive, other committee members predicted.

The President sought authority in the program to abolish, shift, transfer or eliminate bureaus and departments at will. It sought to place independent Government agencies and quasi-judicial bodies, such as the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Trade Commission, under Presidential control through shifting them to departments. It sought to transfer the veto power of the General Accounting Office on expenditures to the Treasury Department, thus coming under the President's authority.

The Robinson bill will grant the President none of these powers, the other committeemen said.

The House measures, which face

By Russell Smith.

Congress should penalize bigness in farming operations, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace yesterday told the House Agriculture Committee in the course of the first strong Administration indorsement of the farm bill backed by the American Farm Bureau Federation.

In a statement which devoted marked attention to problems of Southern growers, Wallace also proposed extension to the cotton belt of the principle of "division of the (benefit) payment between landlord and tenant or sharecropper in the same ratio as the crop is divided between them."

Other recommendations of the Secretary emphasized importance of the ever normal granary principle as a protection to consumers against drought and consequent shortage of supplies, cancellation of flexible tariff provisions in the present bill, and price stabilization to discourage speculation.

Urges Bigger Carry Over.

He advocated maintenance of a corn carry over of 350,000,000 bushels, double the bill's proposal, and of a wheat carry over of 200,000,000, as opposed to the bill's 125,000,000. Increased drought frequency in recent years accounted for this recommendation.

The House committee, despite these persuasions, appeared none too enthusiastic as to action upon the bill at this session. Chairman Marvin Jones, of Texas, said if court difficulties should block the new program "we would find ourselves without a farm program."

Farm opposition to the bill also crystallized in the statement of Fred Brenckman, National Grange representative here, that his group, the strong National Co-operative Council (of dairy producers), and perhaps other groups, will fight the bill.

On the other hand, Jones requested Wallace to return for further questioning today, indicating continued hearings, and Edward A. O'Neal, president of the Farm Bureau, said the bill will be enacted at this session and that "Mr. Roosevelt is with us."

May Graduate Benefits.

Outstanding in Wallace's testimony was his recommendation to Congress, near the close of his statement, that "corporation farming" be penalized. He said:

"I believe Congress should make

Tells Social Work Session Well-Integrated Program Must Be Formulated.

By the Associated Press.

Indianapolis, May 27.—The United States must establish a "comprehensive and well-integrated program for the unemployed for the future," Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress administrator, told the National Conference for Social Work tonight.

Unemployment insurance, he said, is "the first step forward," and he emphasized the program must include insurance for short-term workers—those out of employment regardless of economic conditions.

"The unemployed," Hopkins said, "should be given some other form of public assistance as soon as their unemployment benefits run out, and that form of public assistance should be work. I believe there always will be projects of a worthwhile character to furnish work for the unemployed.

"The basic elements in the proposed remedy are in existence and functioning. There is need to integrate and strengthen what is being done now in order that the unemployed will be assured the security they have the right to expect from their Government.

"Such a program should be carefully integrated from an administrative standpoint, both nationally and within the States, and it should be administered with the highest standard of public service. To attain this, I favor civil service."

Mrs. Godfrey Wins Divorce, Alimony From Radio Man

Catherine C. Godfrey, of this city, was awarded a final divorce decree from Arthur M. Godfrey, radio announcer, yesterday in the Circuit Court of Fairfax County.

The decree gives custody of the minor child, Richard Morton Godfrey, to the mother, and allowed her $50 a month for his care and $100 a month for her own support and maintenance. Rights in each other's property were canceled by the decree.

The bill of complaint stated the couple was married in Somerville, Mass., in 1928, and the defendant deserted the complainant in July, 1934. Godfrey is a resident of Fairfax County, residing near Browns Chapel, on the Alexandria-Leesburg pike.

Blocs Set $10,000 WPA Salary Top

Compromise Pledge on 'Earmarking' Quiets Stormy Session.

By Robert C. Albright.

Under bloc coalition leadership, a House out of all control yesterday once again kicked over Administration traces on the $1,500,000,000 relief bill and turned its wrath on the man who will administer it, Harry L. Hopkins.

It took the personal intervention of the President, an urgent appeal from the majority leader, and promise of an earmarking compromise to persuade members to quit and go home without passing the patched and amended Administration measure.

It was after members voted, 137 to 114, to slash $2,000 from the $12,000 salary check of Works Progress Administrator Hopkins that Majority Leader Sam Rayburn took the floor to "appeal to the reason of my colleagues."

Rayburn Soothes House.

But Rayburn did not rise in defense of Hopkins. He was attempting to head off a movement to clinch earmarking of $505,000,000 of the $1,500,000,000 fund for PWA and special highway, drought and flood control projects. He spoke earnestly. When he finished the crisis was passed and the relief bill temporarily salvaged. Members voted to postpone consideration until next week.

"I never quote the President of the United States," said Rayburn, "but within the hour I have been in conversation with him. . . . I believe that within a few hours we can get together on these three major amendments with the man who must administer this law and with the members of his own party in Congress and adjust this whole thing so that we all can win a victory and not be defeated."

He offered his pledge "that between now and the time this bill is taken up for consideration again, everything that is humanly possible to be done to bring about an adjustment fair to every man, to every section and to every project in this country, will be done by me."

Later Rayburn told reporters he will call at the White House in an effort to work out a compromise, and hold other conferences with all interested groups.

The three amendments being fought by the Administration earmark $505,000,000 for special projects. They were engineered Wednesday by a log-rolling combination of three strong House factions—the PWA, the flood control-drought and rural roads blocs.

1,000,000 Would Be Dropped.

It was reported last night Hopkins already has instructed State WPA administrators to drop 1,000,000 persons from relief rolls if the House insists on earmarking one-third of the $1,500,000,000 bill.

He told House leaders Wednesday this will be necessary if the $505,000,000 is set aside. Five hundred thousand were scheduled to go if the full amount was approved, and Hopkins said the earmarking would cut off nearly 600,000 additional.

Hopkins was said last night to have supplied his local WPA administrators with lists by States, designating the number to be dropped in each if the half-billion is earmarked, and the number to be retained if the full amount is approved.

All day yesterday the bloc leaders—Representatives Alfred F. Beiter, of New York; Joe Starnes, of Alabama, and Wilburn Cartwright, of Oklahoma, remained in the saddle, and the raid on the bill continued.

It was to frustrate an effort by the three to hold the House in session until the bill was finally passed and the earmarkings assured, that the Administration turned on full steam. Hopkins himself had gone to the Capitol Wednesday and joined in a conference of leaders. Yesterday members were bombarded with calls from State WPA administrators on the one hand and community officials seeking PWA funds on the other.

Copyright, 1937, by the United Press.

Blue Wing, Tenn., May 27.—Charley Hensley, undersized 14-year-old farm youth, tucked a quid of tobacco in his cheek tonight, rubbed his close-clipped head thoughtfully and told how his step-father, "Uncle John" Davis, "hitched me and maw up and had us plow the corn patch."

Davis, robust 65-year-old hill farmer, mumbled to himself in the Cannon County Jail at Woodbury tonight as he started his eighteenth reading of the Bible.

He is awaiting arraignment on first-degree murder charges in connection with the death of his 34-year-old wife, Jodie Wallace Davis. The State charges she died after an illegal operation which she underwent at the end of a hard day in the corn patch pulling the one-horse bull-tongue plow.

Young Hensley slouched over an unpainted picket fence at his grandmother's cabin, where he and his three sisters were taken after their mother's death and father's arrest. He squinted at the sun and squirted a long stream of tobacco juice at a rock 10 feet away. He has been chewing since he was 6 years old.

"Paw plowed me and maw for two weeks before we got the corn patch done. Me and maw pulled the plow and he steered it.

"Every time we said we was hot or tired, he said to keep a-goin' and he'd spell us at the pullin' in a minute. He jest never done it, though.

"We was all mighty 'feered of paw. He whupped me and maw and he hit sister (Evelyn, 11) with his fist. He was all-time a-cussin' and a-carryin' on."

"Efn we didn't jump when he told us to do something he fetched us a crack right off and made us git.

"He run us all off a couple of times and beat us when we come back.

"He said he was a-goin' to run maw off for good as soon as she was able.

"When maw was real sick and a-cryin' for water, paw wouldn't give her none. Sister, she started to git her some but paw boxed her and told her to mind her own business. Maw died next day."

The younth said his mother made the few pennies the family had by weaving baskets and selling them when she wasn't plowing and working the land.

"Paw taken the baskets most of the time and sold 'em. Then he'd go off and get drunk. He'd always come home mean and a-bellerin'."

Two of Charley's sisters, Evelyn and Manne, 8, peeped shyly from the porch, nodding their heads frequently. They, too, appeared undersized and undernourished.

The third sister, Virginia, 1, dozed in the lap of her aged and wrinkled grandmother, Jesse Wallace, mother of the dead woman. The old woman said she would raise the brood and "get 'em in good shape agin."

"They come here once before when their pappy run 'em out," she said. "I got 'em in good shape then, but after a while they went back again and got porely."

100 Die in Mexican Avalanche As Bursting Dam Buries Town

By the Associated Press.

Mexico City, May 27.—A bursting dam today loosed a death-dealing avalanche of mud, sand and rock on the mining town of Tlalpujahua, Michoacan State, causing a loss of life which a mining company official said was "conservatively estimated at more than 100."

Residents of El Oro, about 15 miles from the stricken town, in telephone talks to Mexico City said the death toll might reach 500.

The dam, high in the mountains of the Tlalpujahuila Sierra of northeastern Michoacan, held back deposits gathered in the cyanide metal processing operations of the Dos Estrellas Mining Co., controlled by French capital.

Weakened by recent heavy rains the dam went out about 3 a. m. Most of Tlalpujahua, in a deep ravine below, was still asleep.

A mass estimated at 3,000,000 tons of mud, sand, gravel and rock thundered down on the town just before daylight.

Rafael Reyes, secretary to Hoken E. Niberg, general manager of the Dos Estrellas company, gave his estimate of more than 100 dead in a telephone call from El Oro, in

'Rebel' Lodges Unite to Fight U. S. Economy

Six Federal Employe Units Organize Drive Against Daring Proposals.

The six so-called "rebel" lodges of the American Federation of Government Employes which have been waging a fight against the governmental economy measures independently of their national headquarters, last night organized themselves on a formal basis under the name of "The Committee Against False Economy."

Packing a meeting room in the Washington Hotel, they framed a statement of aims, the major feature of which was a stand against indiscriminate cuts, particularly as embodied in the Byrnes and Cannon proposals, "and other measures that would curtail necessary governmental services." They indorsed, in principle, the McCarran bill and urged extension of the civil service to include emergency workers through non-competitive examinations. They also advocated a transfer agency and re-employment list to provide for preferential retiring of people whose services may be terminated through no fault of their own.

The activities of the "rebel" lodges followed a cease and desist order, issued by national headquarters of the A. F. G. E. Notwithstanding, the committee last night took another step in its campaign in fixing the night of June 4, tentatively, for a mass meeting to protest against "the false economy." They announced the recruitment of another lodge in their ranks, the A. F. G. E. Lodge at Beltsville. The lodges now represented in the committee are WPA, Labor No. 12, ICC, Agriculture, Resettlement, G. A. O. and Beltsville.

Under the formal organization, the committee elected Arthur Stein, WPA, as chairman; Matthew Faeber, GAO, vice chairman; Helen Schnetzler, Labor, secretary; Daniel Kessler, Agriculture, treasurer; Henry Rhine, WPA, organization; Jim Gorham, ICC, legislative and research; Byron Hemphill, Resettlement, arrangements; Janet Gaines, Resettlement, contacts, and Bernard Stern, Labor, publicity.

Anna Young Cleary Dies at Home Here

Anna Young Cleary, 83, lineal descendant of Notley Young, one of the original owners of the land ceded for the District of Columbia, died at her home, 2228 Q street northwest, yesterday after a short illness.

Born on Nonesuch estate in Prince Georges County, Mrs. Cleary had been a resident of the District intermittently during her entire life. She was educated at DeSales Convent at Catonsville, Md.

She was the widow of Nicholas F. Cleary, who died 25 years ago. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Edward Brady, of Washington; and three grandsons, Maurice K. Brady and John Bradley Brady, both of Washington, and Lieut. Parke H. Brady, of the United States Navy.

Liner Hits Tanker Off Coast; All Safe

New York, May 27 (AP).—The Swedish-American Line reported tonight that its liner Kungsholm, homeward bound from a coronation cruise with 509 passengers, had collided with an oil tanker off Nantucket Lightship, but that neither vessel nor passengers had been injured.

G. H. Lundbeck, managing director of the line, said that the other vessel was the Bedford. He said that the Kungsholm's master had wired him there was a dense fog at the time of the crash.

The message said the Kungsholm would arrive in New York tomorrow morning (8:30 E. D. T.) as scheduled.

ICC Approves Sale Of Trucking Rights

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday authorized the Brooks Transportation Co., of Richmond, Va., to purchase operating rights of the Jacobs Transfer Co., of Vriginia.

Price paid was $15,000, according to the Associated Press. The Jacobs firm, a District corporation, will continue to operate in the District and Maryland and other States.

W. E. Humphreys is president of the large trucking firm here, and S. F. Mehlfelt, jr., is vice president.

Rep. Allen, Follower of Sen. Huey P. Long, Is Strong Believer in Redistributing Wealth

Louisianan Favors Flood Control; Wants to Aid Agriculturists.

By Scott Hart.

A. Leonard Allen (Democrat), of Louisiana, brother of the late Gov. O. K. Allen, schoolmate and friend of the late Huey P. Long, and a firm believer that only a redistribution of wealth will save the country from a catastrophe, speaks emphatically in a sliding vocal scale.

His soft, musical voice woos like the night, but the voice has a trick of sliding to a high and momentarily keen pitch when Allen turns to such topics and arouse his ordinarily quiet emotions.

"I'm what a lot of the politicians say they are—I'm just a country boy," says Allen. He has embalmed the fact in the Congressional Directory * * * "was born in a long cabin near Winnfield, La., on January 5, 1891 * * * reared on a small hill farm and received his early education in rural schools."

Shuns Affectations.

He was thinking and talking of the politicians who come from the cities and put on country ways when they get around the country folks; who talk the way the country folks talk and act the way the country folks act. "There isn't any affectation about me; I came from a rural district, and I know how to talk to my people." And this has served the Representative well, as evidenced by the 12,237 votes he received in the Eighth District, where the largest town has only 4,000 inhabitants.

This town, Winnfield, delights the Representative as he contemplates it from the distance of his offices here. It has contributed to Louisiana's public weal two Governors, two United States Senators, a Representative, two chairmen of the State highway commission and a State treasurer. And for the public weal the Representative has dedicated himself and his stationery. The stationery carries a line "A Service Institution," and the Representative says: "There's going to be nothing but work around this office. Even a child, if he is one of my constituents, will get attention here, and my bitterest political foe will get attention. I haven't any pastimes here; I'm here to work."

Backs Flood Control.

He wants to do a lot of work on the Flood Control Committee, of which he is member. "I told those committeemen that they hardly knew what a flood was like. Now I come from where they have some floods, where the old Mississippi breaks loose and floods from 50 to 100 miles of land and gets 40 to 50 feet deep in places. And I want to do all I can to help rehabilitate the farmers. I want to stay in Congress as long as I can; I've found the field of service here that appeals to me."

The Representative came into this field of service with the push of his friends. He had graduated from Louisiana State University; had taught in rural schools, served as superintendent of Winn Parish schools and practiced law, but all the while he had watched the political wild fires in the State and was preparing to heave his hat.

One idea rides his shoulders these days: There must be a redistribution of wealth as a wedge against catastrophe. "I'm not a Communist. I'm as far from it as any man alive, but I think the day is coming when every man can earn a living. I've never believed that God Almighty intended for one man to roll in wealth and for another man to roll a wheelbarrow and get nowhere with it." Here his voice raised momentarily, shrill and emphatic.

REPRESENTATIVE LEONARD ALLEN.

Portsmouth Launches Two New Destroyers

Portsmouth, Va., May 27 (AP).—Two destroyers, the U. S. S. Blue and the U. S. S. Helm, were christened today in the first twin launching in the history of the local Navy Yard.

The launching of the two vessels was accomplished by flooding the drydock in which they were built. Mrs. James Meredith Helm, of Washington, was selected to christen the destroyer named after her late husband, Rear Admiral James Helm.

near Palma de Majorca off the south coast of Spain yesterday, the official Italian news agency reported today from St Jean de Luz, France.

The ship was said to have been one of the Italian units engaged in international neutrality patrol duty.

At the same time the warship was hit, according to the dispatch, 27 civilians were killed and 113 injured in an aerial bombardment of Palma de Majorca.

Rebel Cruiser Shelled.

Gibraltar, May 27 (AP).—The Spanish insurgent cruiser Baleares was reported tonight to have limped, badly damaged, into the Spanish port of Cadiz.

It was believed the vessel had been bombed by a Spanish government airplane. The Baleares is a vessel of 10,000 tons standard displacement. She was laid down in August, 1928.

Church Freedom Planned.

Madrid, May 27 (AP).—A program to alter the status of church and industry in government-held Spain is under serious consideration by the reorganized Madrid-Valencia regime, informed sources said tonight. This program would:

1. Restore freedom of worship in all churches of government Spain, enabling Catholic services to be resumed as permited under the republican constitution.

2. Return all business to its owners, with the exception of certain large industries important for war purposes. These, such as the railway, marine and mining industries, would remain in government hands.

Fine Arts Unit Approves Site Of Auditorium

Favors Building Erection on East Side of Marshall Place.

The Fine Arts Commission yesterday put itself on record as favoring erection of the proposed Government auditorium on the east side of John Marshall place, north of Constitution avenue and Third street. The commission met for the first time in its quarters in the new Interior Department Building.

It was explained by H. P. Caemmerer, executive secretary, that the view of the District Court Building should be kept open. Accordingly the commission indicated it believes that John Marshall place should be preserved as an open vista and not be blocked by a new municipal building in that location.

The commission will inform Nathan C. Wyeth, the municipal architect, and C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of the National Capital Parks, who also is chariman of the advisory committee to the National Capital Auditorium Commission, of this decision.

New Lights Approved.

The commission approved new street lights for Constitution avenue near the Potomac—to follow the standard set in the area near the Senate Office Building.

Designs of Rockwell Kent for mural decorations to be painted on the second floor south elevator lobby in the new Postoffice Building were approved. The paintings will represent mail service in Puerto Rico and Alaska.

Favorable indorsement was given plans submitted by the National Park Service for a projected clubhouse in Rock Creek Park to take the place of the field house near Military road.

Tree Plan Discussed.

Further attention was given by the commission to the proposal to plant hundreds of Japanese cherry trees in the District park system, particularly in the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway and on Columbia Island.

The commission approved a model of a proposed medal to commemorate the second Byrd Antarctic expedition. The model, work of the New York sculptor, Heinz Warneke, was submitted by the section of painting and sculpture of the Treasury Department.

Arthur B. Heaton, Washington architect, submitted a design for erection of a furniture display building at 4244 Connecticut avenue. This was approved.

Eight hundred members and guests of the Benjamin Franklin Lodge, No. 50, F. A. A. M., attended he organization's charter banquet and dance at the Mayflower Hotel last night. The lodge was chartered May 12.

Principal speakers were Joseph H. Fromberg, master of the lodge; Paul B. Cromelin, grand master of the District, and Needham C. Turnage, junior grand warden, Grand Lodge, District of Columbia. Fromberg was introduced by Senior Warden A. Harry Ostrow.

Milton I. Mervis, chairman of arrangements, introduced distinguished guests and members of the lodge. He was followed by Past Grand Master Gratz E. Dunkum, member of the Board of Education, who pronounced the invocation. Entertainment was provided by Norman Leslie Goldman, Enya Gonzalez, Sylvia Kaplowitz and Wilma Kaplan. The Rev. Harry Silverstone, a member of the lodge pronounced the benediction.

Governor Winship Flies to Capital For Conferences

Miami, Fla., May 27 (AP).—Gov. Blanton Winship of Puerto Rico changed planes here today en route from San Juan to Washington. He said his mission had to do with island affairs before several departments and was arranged prior to the March 21 outbreak at Ponce, in which 18 persons were killed in a clash between Nationalists and police, but that he might discuss the incident with President Roosevelt.

Dr. Ernest Gruening, director of territories, accompanied Gov. Winship, but said the fact that both were on the same plane was a coincidence.

Both declined to comment on a report of a Civil Liberties committee headed by Arthur Garfield Hays, new York attorney, which said "citizens were wantonly murdered" by police during the Palm Sunday riots.

Earlier Opening Is Set For Six Virginia Parks

Richmond, Va., May 27 (AP).—Responding to requests that the six State parks be opened for this holiday week-end, the State Conservation Commission today ordered the opening date moved up from Tuesday, June 1, to this Saturday.

Two of the parks, Fairy Stone, near Bassett, and Staunton River Park, near South Boston, will be opened Sunday. The gates of the four others will swing open Saturday.

Cabins in the parks, however, will not be available for use until Tuesday.

Freedom of Press Ackerman Subject

New York, May 27 (AP).—The press, education and industry must co-operate, Dean Carl K. Ackerman of the Columbia School of Journalism warned the National Industrial Conference Board today, "or centralized authority will destroy freedom of the press." He spoke to more than 400 manufacturers and industrialists at a one-day conference to examine the influence of public opinion and education upon economic progress in America.

Last night the Chanters and Temple band provided a concert for local citizens and Lieut. Governor James H. Price, a member of the party, was presented.

Science Seeking Test for Cancer

A "Wasserman test" for cancer is one of the immediate objectives of research experts, Dr. George Morris Dorrance, chief surgeon of the Philadelphia Cancer Control Center, stated last night. With Dr. J. William Bransfield, Philadelphia specialist, he is here to stimulate interest in the proposed cancer center for Washington.

According to the Philadelphia scientists, Federal financial aid for cancer research would be tremendously helpful in integrating and directing cancer research. A cancer center, as proposed by Representative Maury Maverick (Democrat), of Texas, would bring together the research of chemists, physicians, doctors, x-ray and radium specialists, they added.

They asserted cancer annually claims more victims than the World War.

Gang Bullets Fatal To Hoosier Policeman

Logansport, Ind., May 27 (AP).—Paul Minneman, 33-year-old State policeman, died at 6:50 o'clock tonight from bullet wounds received in a gun battle with members of the fugitive Brady gang Tuesday. Minneman died at St. Joseph's Hospital here, where he had lain near death since his body was literally filled with machine gun bullets when he and a deputy sheriff were ambushed near here.

Insurance Salesmen Organize in Capital

The first chapter of the National Association of Industrial Insurance Agents was organized here last night at a meeting attended by about 100 agents. Purpose of the organization, now being promoted on a national scale, is to obtain better working conditions for industrial insurance agents.

D. C. Man, 82, Still Composes; Calls Self Only 'Music Lover'

For most of his 82 years, Samuel A. Thompson, of 5236 Illinois avenue northwest, has watched his nimble fingers play over his piano keyboard. And the improvised melodies that just "seemed to run off their tips" has given him a lifetime of pleasure.

He said he supposed these tunes have made a composer out of him. He has between 50 and 60 pieces to his credit. But, if it's all the same, he'd just as soon classify as a "lover of music," leaving the notes fall where they may.

Recently he went over to the Georgetown Presbyterian Church, where Tenor Barrett Fuchs sang one of his sacred songs as a special number, a song called "Come Unto Me." He had never heard the music, except as performed by himself, and no composer is satisfied to let a brain child go with that.

On the other hand, it isn't for such occasions as this that the elderly muic maker waits.

"I've never composed for what I could get out of it in a material way," Thompson said yesterday, thumbing through a pile of his scores. "I figure I've been repaid in enjoyment, just working these pieces out of my system."

Thompson spent a few months taking piano lessons when he was a 9-year-old in Richmond, Ind. He hasn't engaged in formal studies since, although he has always taken plenty of interest in the art and science of composition.

"I spent more money on concerts than most fellows I knew blew on drinks," he estimated, "and I suppose that still goes."

Thompson said he used to go all the way to Cincinnati, Ohio, to hear a good symphony or some opera. There he heard Anna Louise Carey and Adelina Patti, the great opera singers of that day, and there he watched Theodore Thomas, the great orchestra conductor. He started composing then—marches, waltzes and lullabies.

Years later, long after Thompson had launched a business and professional career that took him to other cities, John Philip Sousa's band came to Richmond once, and to the great joy of the townsmen there, included one of Thompson's marches on his concert program.

Thompson spent time in the newspaper business in Michigan, later in Minnesota. In 1886 he was principal owner of the Duluth Daily News. After that he spent a score of years (leading up to his retirement a few years ago) as executive secretary of the Rivers and Harbors Congress.

Meanwhile his tunes kept piling up in his head. One piece, he recalls, stayed there for 50 years. When he put it on paper a few years ago, he called it "Memories." Some of the scored pieces he preserved in manuscript form. Others have been privately printed.

"I hate this modern stuff," he said with all the vigor of a young advocate. "It's nothing but discords from start to finish. I hate it."

So he is glad he can fall back on his fingers, still inspired with melodies "that are tuneful." He's glad, too, for the radio, which saves him from hazardous trips to concert halls. He can sit at home and hear Wagner, Schubert and Beethoven and doing so revive the thrills of those concerts of a half century ago.

"That Theodore Thomas," he recalled, "was a stickler for attention. He wouldn't tolerate talking in the audience while the orchestra was playing.

"I'll never forget the day that the orchestra was ripping through something 'presto' and 'forte.' Suddenly Thomas (as he had a way of doing) stopped the men dead silent.

"And way up in one of the boxes a woman was saying so loud that all could hear: 'We fry ours in grease.'"

Peery's Invitation To Duke Assailed

Richmond, Va., May 27 (AP).—A "very dear old lady" of Williamsburg objects to the recent action of Gov. Peery in inviting the Duke of Windsor and his bride-elect, Mrs. Wallis Warfield, to make their home in Virginia.

The Governor said today he received a letter from a "very dear old lady" of Williamsburg who wrote that she thought, "You are taking a great deal on yourself to invite the duke and Mrs. Warfield to make their home in Virginia."

Farewell Said To Public Life By MacDonald

Former Prime Minister of Britain Has Last Royal Audience.

By the Associated Press.

London, May 27.—J. Ramsay MacDonald, the poor boy who became Prime Minister of Great Britain, virtually bowed out of British public life tonight.

Then, or some day near at hand, it is generally expected that Baldwin, who succeeded MacDonald as prime minister, will give way to Neville Chamberlain, his chancellor of the exchequer. MacDonald has been lord president of the council in Baldwin's cabinet.

Declined Earldom.

MacDonald could have become an earl and taken a seat in the House of Lords, just as Baldwin is expected to do. The King offered him a peerage, but MacDonald, after 42 years in politics, declined the earldom. He preferred to remain plain "Ramsay Mac," as his friends call him.

He also had in mind the political future of his son, Malcolm MacDanold, secretary for the dominions. Malcolm's public career would be practically ended if he had to enter the House of Lords on his father's death.

To Rest in Scotland.

When MacDonald is through with public affairs, he wants first to take a rest at his Scottish home at Lossiemouth and then a long sea voyage to South America. He also has been invited to Melbourne along with Baldwin, so that Australia may show the high esteem in which it holds the two men.

MacDonald and the stanchly conservative Baldwin were political opponents when MacDonald was a Laborite; when he modified his views and formed a national, or coalition, government in 1929, they were not so far apart. For his change of politics, MacDonald has been a target for Laborite attacks; his former friends charged he "sold out" to the opposition.

2 Winchester Youths Face Holdup Charge

Winchester, Va., May 27.—Charges of automobile theft and attempted armed hold-up confront Kirthwood Wingfield, 18, and Charles Arme, 24, both of Winchester. The youths were arrested 24 hours after they abandoned an automobile with officers in close pursuit.

The youths were chased to Cumberland and back to Winchester and as a result of the car being driven across State lines it is held probable the case will be turned over to Federal authorities to prosecute.

5 New WPA Projects Started in Maryland

Baltimore, May 27 (AP).—Five projects providing work for 200 persons on relief were announced today by Harry D. Williar, jr., deputy State Works Progress Administrator, as having been started in Maryland. The projects had an estimated total cost of $50,000.

They included: Paving Greenway avenue in Cumberland, constructing sanitary sewers in Emmitsburg and working on the community park in Williamsport.

Cumberland Steel Unit Is Unaffected by Strike

Cumberland, Md., May 27 (AP).—With sufficient orders to keep the plant going until late fall, the N. & G. Taylor Tin Mills, a Republic Steel subsidiary, continued operations today despite a strike among workers of three independent steel producers of the country.

U. S. Joining Peru In Aviation Parley

The Government yesterday accepted, through the Secretary of State, an invitation from Peru to participate in the Technical Aviation Conference to be held at Lima, September 16-23.

The agenda for the conference includes various questions relating to international co-operation in collection and dissemination of meteorological information for use in aerial navigation. Other items are designed to facilitate and increase aerial communication between the countries of this hemisphere. A preparatory committee will undertake a preliminary survey of the problems involved on which it plans to hear the views of American air-line operators interested.

Hamilton Urges G. O. P. To Work for Control

Endicott, N. Y., May 27 (AP).—National Republican Chairman John D. M. Hamilton admonished a party gathering here tonight to "talk the talk of the man on the street and take advice from the homes of the Nation for ultimate governmental control by Republicans."

He spoke at a testimonial dinner tendered State Chairman William S. Murray by more than 500 southern New York Republicans.

D. C. Resident Is 'Color Girl' Of Midshipmen

Miss Janet Cunneen to Have Prominent Role at Annapolis.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., May 27.—With the honor man and the "color girl" selected, the midshipmen at the Naval Academy tonight were ready for the annual June Week ceremonies which begin Saturday and reach a climax on Thursday when 325 graduates will receive their diplomas.

Miss Janet Cunneen, of Washington, D. C., a sophomore at Smith College, was named the "color girl." She was selected by Harry Barnett Hahn, of Brooklyn, N. Y., commander of the Fourth Midshipman Company, winner of the intercompany competition for the honor of guarding the national and Academy flags next year.

Jack Arthur Obermeyer, of New York City, was named honor man of the class by the academic board. He had the highest rating, 921.16, for the four-year course. Russell Homer Wallace, of West Bridgewater, Pa., with 910.31, stood second, and Emery Arden Grantham, of Albany, Tex., with 901.92, was third.

Obermeyer will be the first midshipman to receive his diploma at the graduation exercises. He is the winner of several prizes awarded annually at the academy. These will be presented at a regimental dress parade to be held Wednesday.

Miss Cunneen will be the central figure at the "presentation of the colors" dress parade on Tuesday. She will advance to the front of the paraded regiment of midshipmen and transfer the national and academy colors from the old color company to Midshipman Hahn, who in turn will place them in the keeping of the fourth company. This company will fly a gold guidon during its career as color company.

The color girl will make her first public appearance here on Monday when the ceremony of presenting the colors will be rehearsed. The presentation of the colors parade is the most spectacular of the June Week ceremonies, and annually draws a throng of spectators who fill the stands and line the edges of Worden Field.

The Fourth Company won its honors by the performance of its members during the academic year in sports, seamanship, gunnery and other phases of academy life. The greatest number of points were awarded the company through its showing in the competitive Infantry drill which began Monday and ended today, with battalions in competition.

Obermeyer will receive the following prizes for his accomplishments at the academy:

Military Order of Foreign Wars prize, pair of marine binoculars, for standing highest for the course in the department of mathematics.

Cheering Crowd Opens Golden Gate Bridge

San Francisco, May 27 (AP).—The bridge that "couldn't be built," a towering two-mile span across the Golden Gate, opened today with a mad rush of pedestrians across its neck and a mighty cheer that figuratively echoed up and down the Pacific Coast. Hailed as an achievement of the "impossible," the $35,000,000 structure began its useful existence by bearing a milling army of visitors and San Franciscans, all in fiesta mood.

Norfolk WPA Layoff Is Explained as Error

Petrified Fleet Due to Lose 28 Old Vessels to Scrapheap

Maritime Commission Opens Bids, Finds Best Offer Is $350,050 on $50,000,000 Original Cost; 17 of Ships at Norfolk.

By William V. Nessly.

The ways were greased—to the scrap heap—yesterday for proud ships that had defied submarines and shellfire to help America win the war.

Beginning the dispersal of that portion of its laid-up fleet no longer fit for service, the Maritime Commission opened bids on 28 of the obsolete steel cargo vessels, to be broken up as scrap.

And the 28, which had cost perhaps as much as $50,000,000 to build when this country and its allies were frantically calling for "more ships, more ships" to transport men, munitions and supplies to Europe, brought a high bid of $350,050.

Seventeen of the vessels are tied up at Norfolk, seven at New Orleans and four at Staten Island.

Canadian Firm High.

Nine Americans and one Canadian firm offered proposals. The Canadian bid was the highest, $625,982.48 at current rates of exchange, but it provided the ships should be broken up in the United Kingdom, and that the buyers have the privilege of making the outward voyage with cargo on such ships as could be made suitable for such purpose. The commission's invitation for bids, however, was limited to American citizens and stipulated the ships must be dismantled within the continental limits of the United States.

The Hoyne Industrial Salvage Co., of Chicago, made the offer of $350,050 for the 28 craft, though the bids submitted on individual ships were high in only seven instances. The next highest bidder was the Union Shipbuilding Co., of Baltimore, which bid $338,378 for 27 ships, its individual offers being high on 14 vessels.

Other proposals were:

Northern Metal Co., Inc., Philadelphia, $305,882.26 for 27 ships; David X. Shubin, Philadelphia, $78,880 for 28 ships; Southern Scrap Material Co., New Orleans, $18,810 for 2 ships; American Barge Line Co., Louisville, Ky., $15,000 for 2 ships; Donegan Lumber Co., New Orleans, $9,075 for 1 ship, and T. Smith & Son, Inc., New Orleans, $4,400 for 1 ship.

Officials at the Maritime Commission had no detailed information on the original cost of each of the ships to be scrapped, but said the average probably was close to $2,000,000.

Craft Listed.

Those craft at Norfolk are the Ashland County, Cranenest, Crawl Keys, Easterling, Easterner, Eastern Planet, Jeannett Skinner, Kerhonkson, Lake Elseh, Lake Fernalda, Lake Flagon, Shooters Island, West Harcuvar, West Nosska, Bellflower, Eastern Temple and Kittery.

Those at New Orleans are the Coronado, Federal, Lake Fairlie, Lavada, Marne, West Munham and Western Ho.

Other ships in the laid-up fleet are expected to be sold later when the commission completes a survey to determine the condition of the 188 vessels in the fleet.

Drydocking of the 54 ships tied up in the James River is under way at a cost of about $105,000.

Following the survey, all of the craft will be regrouped in the three categories observed at present, those suitable for sale or charter or for use as military auxiliaries, those with negligible value for commercial purposes, but available as auxiliaries in case of national emergency, and those suitable only for scrapping.

30 WPA Workers Ask Assured Employment

About 30 employes of the WPA National Research Project yesterday asked officials in Harry Hopkins' office for assurance their jobs be continued.

They were told by Corrington Gill, assistant WPA administrator, that the future of the research project depends on the WPA appropriation for the coming year. The workers came here from Philadelphia, where the National Research Project has its headquarters.

Industrial Head Assails Withholding of Wages

Indianapolis, May 27 (AP).—Paul Sifton, assistant industrial commissioner of the State of New York, estimated today in a speech at the National Conference of Social Work that employers withhold, either voluntarily or involuntarily, more than $20,000,000 annually in wages due their employes.

Sifton made a plea for the enactment of laws for prosecution of employers who withhold wages and for collection of such money by the States on behalf of the employes.

Eckener Questioned On Air Raid Scare

By the Associated Press.

Representative Clason (Republican), Massachusetts, tried yesterday to pin on Dr. Hugo Eckener, German Zepplin builder, some of the responsibilities for a bad scare he got one night during a London air raid.

"I was in London in 1915," he recalled, during a hearing before the House Military Committee, "when a German Zeppelin destroyed a railway station in the heart of the city.

"It frightened me badly. What I want to know is whether your company built that ship?"

After hearing the question translated, Eckener smiled and said, "I am afraid I may have to admit it might have been built by my company, but it could have been the product of a competing company."

Treasury Guards May Be Shifted

Frank J. Wilson, chief of the Secret Service division of the Treasury Department, is considering plans to put the 139 members of the Treasury guard service under supervision of his division, it was learned yesterday. Consideration of the plan has been ordered by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau.

Inclusion of the guards in the Secret Service, it was said, probably would result in increased efficiency. The uniformed guards, now stationed about the Treasury Building, the Bureau of Printing and Engraving and other Treasury buildings, could be called upon in emergencies to supplement the regular Secret Service force of 200 agents.

Wilson said his division was badly in need of more agents because of a 50 per cent increase in work during the past year.

Body of War Aviator To Be Entombed Here

The body of Norman Prince, United States World War aviator, will be placed in the Washington Cathedral on Tuesday, Cathedral officers announced yesterday. The body of the famous war ace, who was killed on the western front in 1916, is on board the liner Normandie, scheduled to land at New York on Monday.

Prince, one of the founders of the famous Lafayette Escadrille, originally was buried in the Pro-Cathedral in Paris. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Prince, gave the Chapel of St. John at Washington Cathedral.

Virginia Board To Hear School Plea for Ouster

To Consider Misfeasance Charge on Pittsylvania Superintendent.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., May 27.—The State board of education assumed jurisdiction in ouster proceedings against Fletcher B. Watson, superintendent of Pittsylvania County schools, today and fixed June 19 for a hearing on a demand of a group of Pittsylvania citizens that he be removed from office.

The complainants, represented at the board's meeting today by James S. Easley, Halifax attorney, charge Watson with misfeasance and malfeasance in office and public intoxication.

The State board ruled that the charges against the superintendent must be filed in writing with the board by June 5 and gave Watson until June 15 to file a reply, "if he so desires."

The education authorities also issued a formal statement at the close of their meeting declaring a recent eligibility ruling by Judge Julien Gunn, of the Richmond Circuit Court, was "contrary to the manifest intention of the board as expressed in its resolutions and in its eligibility requirements published on February 1, 1937, as required by law."

Judge Gunn held that under rules of the board and State law persons lacking master of arts degrees were ineligible for superintendencies, a ruling which if sustained will disqualify 59 of the 112 superintendents in Virginia.

Complaint Follows Audit.

The citizens' complaints against Watson followed a report by State Auditor L. McCarthy Downs in November, 1935, that the Pittsylvania superintendent had been short $2,038 in his school accounts but had made the shortage good.

His removal under the State "ouster law" was sought, but after Judge J. T. Clement, of Pittsylvania, disqualified himself for personal reasons, Judge J. L. Almond, jr., of Roanoke, sustained a demurrer to the removal plea on the ground that only the State board of education could remove a division superintendent from office.

The Pittsylvania school board, meanwhile, re-elected Watson for a new four-year term.

The State board, which has appealed from Judge Gunn's decision in cases involving superintendents in Amherst and Campbell counties, contends that its eligibility requirement calling for the M. A. degree was never intended to apply to superintendents in office prior to its adoption and who continued in office subsequently.

Holds Intention Twisted.

The circuit court's opinion, the board declared, "has the effect of changing the policy which has been followed by the State board of education for over 20 years, whereby superintendents continuously serving are eligible to serve as division superintendents of schools. It causes the rules and regulations of the State board of education to become retroactive, which has never been the intent and purpose of the board."

In support of this contention, the board quoted from a resolution adopted on February 18, 1937, as an interpretation of the eligibility requirements adopted December 14, 1935.

"Division superintendents now in service," the resolution set forth, "shall be considered to have met the eligibility requirements which were in force at the time of the beginning of their continuous service, and shall not be removed from the list of eligibles because of subsequent changes in eligibility requirements which may have been made during the period of their continuous service"

Appointment Delayed.

The board postponed until its next meeting election of a superintendent for Greensville County, where the school board failed to reelect C. K. Holsinger and named no one else in his place.

J. L. Cox, Carroll County incumbent superintendent, the board decided, will continue in office until the eligibility question is settled in the State supreme court.

Virginia Lifts Ban on Sunday Sales of Beer

Antagonism Held of Kind Leading to Disregard of Law.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., May 27.—Reporting statistics on drunkenness and lawlessness since February 28 "utterly confusing," the State liquor board announced today it would lift its 3-month-old ban on Sunday wine and beer sales Saturday midnight.

Adopted February 28, the Statewide regulation will cease to exist May 29 because, the board believes, "the ban has encouraged that type of antagonism on the part of a large number of citizens which leads inevitably to public disregard of law."

Since the regulation, an experiment to determine the effect of Sunday sales on drunken driving, overindulgence in hard liquors and general lawlessness, went into effect, a storm of protest arose on the heels of petitions for exemption.

Three areas, Virginia Beach, Elizabeth City County (except Hampton and Newport News) and Colonial Beach were exempted from the ban by the board. These exemptions, however, instead of quieting the protests and requests for exemption, merely brought charges of discrimination.

"Local Option" Sought.

Newport News, Va., May 27 (AP).—The prediction of a battle for "local option" in Newport News was made today by the Rev. Herman T. Stevens, chairman of a committee representing "dry" sentiment, when informed the State Liquor Control Board had lifted its ban on Sunday sales of beer and wine.

"We will begin to fight now for local option on the closing of beer and wine places not only on Sunday but all during the week," he declared, saying this went also for State A. B. C. stores.

Tazewell, Va., May 27 (AP).—Citizens of Tazewell County balloted today on whether to permit the sale of distilled spirits and other alcoholic beverages within the boundaries of the county.

A. E. F. Veterans To Mark Battle

The Society of the First Division, American Expeditionary Force, will celebrate the nineteenth anniversary of the Battle of Cantigny with a banquet at the Broadmoor this evening. Col. Karl Truesdell, Infantry, U. S. Army, will be toastmaster.

Gen. Hanson E. Ely, U. S. Army, retired, will be the principal speaker, talking on "The Battle of Cantigny." Other speakers will be Lieut. Col. Frank S. Besson, Corps of Engineers, and Lieut. Col. Emmanuel E. Lombard, military attache at the French Embassy.

Cadet Col. George E. Flather, jr., of Woodrow Wilson High School, will be presented with the District of Columbia Branch, Society of the First Division, sword for highest honors in military science. The presentation will be made by Col. Avery J. Cooper, C. A., president of the local organization.

Quints, Three Today, To Star in Radio Show

Callander, Ontario, May 27 (AP).—The Dionne quintuplets will be 3 years old tomorrow, but all the fuss and feathers of the celebration will mean only a later supper. The five little girls—Marie, Cecile, Emilie, Yvonne and Annette—will be the stars in an international birthday broadcast, 'tis true, but that will mean just acting natural.

The only real change in the daily routine, due to the birthday program, will be that they will have supper after 6 o'clock tomorrow night instead of between 5:30 and 6 p. m. and that's only for a night.

$250,000 Fund Drive Launched By American U.

Institution Plans to Build Men's Dormitory and Extend Facilities.

An appeal to the citizens of Washington for an immediate fund of $250,000 is being launched by the trustees and the chancellor of American University in order to extend the facilities of the university by building a much needed men's dormitory on the college campus at Massachusetts and Nebraska avenues, new equipment and repairs, necessary replacements and refurnishings.

In his pre-campaign appeal to certain friends of the university, Joseph M. M. Gray, chancellor, stated:

"The American University is asking the City of Washington for $250,000 to be paid during the next two years because of the needs in which its recent developments have involved it. Three years ago there were 546 students in the entire university, today there are more than 1,600. The classrooms, libraries and laboratories are overcrowded. The incoming classes are constantly increasing in numbers so that additional teachers must be provided."

The following dispatch describing the dramatic airplane landing of a group of Russian explorers at the North Pole was radioed to Moscow by Eugene Federov, youngest of the four adventurers who will remain near the pole throughout the long Arctic winter.

By Eugene Federov.

The North Pole (via radio to Moscow), May 27 (U.P.).—A constant snowstorm is disturbing our base here near the North Pole, heaping snow over our airplane, our tents and our supplies.

We are obliged to dig paths through the snow and are building a high wall of snow and ice around our camp.

While we were flying to the pole in our heavily laden plane I did astronomical observations, together with Navigator I. P. Spirin, to determine our course.

Over a great part of our route from Rudolf Island we flew over the clouds.

We all looked downward excitedly, but the area was covered by clouds.

Then Dr. Otto J. Schmidt, leader of the expedition, permitted us to break through the black mass of clouds and Vodopyanov began descending from a height of about 6,000 feet.

When we were about 1,750 feet from the ice the fog and clouds lifted and an expanse of ice and snow-covered rocks became visible.

Vodopyanov circled over the ice floe we have chosen for our base and before we landed Spirin threw out a small rocket to determine the direction of the wind.

When the plane was very low, all of us noticed a high ice rock, and behind it a snow-covered field of ice. Vodopyanov flew over the rock like a virtuoso and then cut out his motors.

Relief Plane Arrives.

Moscow, May 27 (A.P.).—Soviet Russia's Polar expedition bolstered its position at the top of the world tonight with the arrival of the second of three supply planes on drifting ice about 70 miles from the North Pole.

The three ships had become separated on their 560-mile flight from Rudolf Island yesterday by a dazzling midnight sun, which forced them up to cover of the clouds.

Foulkes Moderator For Presbyterians

Columbus, Ohio, May 27 (A.P.).—The Presbyterian Church in the United States of America elevated Dr. William Hiram Foulkes, of Newark, N. J., to moderator of its 149th General Assembly, which convened today.

Dr. Foulkes, pastor of the old First Baptist Church in Newark and a member of the Presbyterian board of foreign missions, was given 563 votes by the 872 commissioners (delegates).

Insanity Plea Is Entered By Md. Slaying Suspect

Oakland, Md., May 27 (A.P.).—Clyde Friend, 34, entered a plea of insanity today as his trial on a charge of murdering Quinter Hook started in Garrett County Circuit Court. The plea was filed by his counsel.

Friend was accused in the indictment against him of shooting Hook, a farmer, last May 10 while the latter was working in his field.

It Is Smarter to Wear ALL THE SUIT
... and Still Be Cool

You have more pocket space and you are really better dressed when you wear a vest. The three-piece Tri-ply suits are unusually porous and therefore, unusually cool. You can have your choice of single or double breasted models, business or sports suits. $35

Other three-piece suits include the popular tropical worsted, that hangs so well, stays pressed so well, and is always right for any informal occasion. $35

Lightweight flannels have always been smart for Summer wear. The careless air of well-dressed men is most easily attained in suits of this fabric. Careless and cool and always correct. $35

Gabardine always plays an important part in every Summer wardrobe. One or two of these suits are absolutely essential for every man who wants to enjoy cool comfort with style. So many men wear Gabardine to work these days because its hard finish gives it such long-wearing qualities and permits it to stand up under constant wearing. $35

Slacks and Jackets for Country Wear

There are no items in a man's wardrobe that have as many uses, or as many combination possibilities as Slacks and Jackets.

Jackets, single or double breasted, with plain or belted backs ..... $16.50 to $35

Slacks of flannel or mohair and wool ..... $7.50 to $15

Panamas
The Coolest Hats Under the Sun

Put on one of these new style "Columbia" Panamas that sets off every good feature and enhances your whole appearance. Pinch front does the trick, and a dark braided band adds a swagger touch that no man can overlook. $5 to $7.50

Ventilated Panamas for Summer head comfort. $5 to $7.50

Wide Brim Stetson Straws. $4 and $5

If You Like to Be Free and Easy—WEAR WIKIES

It is smart to swim well, and it is easy to swim well and dress smartly, too. Wikies are famous for the complete freedom they give the wearer, the comfort of the built-in supporter, the well-knitted fabric that refuses to become loggy with water after you have "been in" for a while.

Wikie Trunks come in a variety of bright Summer colors. Perfectly styled, and styled to fit—and made to retain their perfect fit through many years of hard use.

House Slashes Hopkins' Salary In Relief Raid

ence frequently was aired in the debate, and finally climaxed in the amendment by Representative Andrew J. May, of Kentucky, to cut the salaries of all WPA administrators to $10,000.

Representative Maury Maverick, of Texas, took the floor immediately to charge the amendment was aimed at "Hopkins and President Roosevelt." Maverick said Hopkins could be making $150,000 as a steel executive, and would be earning more than $12,000 for the work he is doing in any private business.

The Texan blanched as members shouted and laughed.

"When you shout like that you are acting like a mob, and you are not showing the proper respect for the speaker," he rebuked them.

May rejoined he didn't think any officeholder ought to be paid more than the $10,000 salary paid members of Congress.

"Filibuster" Charged.

Earlier Representative Starnes, head of the bloc that earmarked $45,000,000 for flood control, charged "so-called" leaders were "filibustering" the bill in an effort to stave off a vote until next week.

He said Hopkins and the leadership were trying to bring "political pressure" to reverse the earmarkings. Then, turning his fire on Hopkins, he added:

"Two weeks ago he had the power to override one of the ablest members of the House (Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, of Virginia, whose sub-committee plan to cut relief $500,000,000 was defeated). A week ago, according to the press, he came on the Hill and held a meeting in the office of the majority whip of the House, and yesterday he entered the sanctum sanctorum, the office of the majority leader of this House, or the holy of holies. That is what the members of the House resent.

"Holds No Grudge."

"I want to urge the members of the House to stay on the floor today and vote down any attempt to filibuster against this bill. I make no accusation against nor do I infer that Harry Hopkins has not been an honest and able administrator, and I hold no grudge against him."

Woodrum, in charge of debate on the bill, and defending the committee draft, rose at one point to say the members by their votes had taken control out of his hands.

"This is your bill," Woodrum said. "I do not care what you do with it. You can stay here today and vote on it if you want to. I do not believe there is any member on this floor that anybody is going to sweep off his feet with propaganda."

But before he took his seat, Woodrum pleaded with members to "work this relief bill out in some kind of sensible, logical way and try to compose our differences." He said he had reason to believe the Senate would cut the relief fund down to $1,000,000,000.

Beiter Might Take Less.

"With $1,000,000,000 and all of this earmarking in it, it would be a bad bill," he said.

As a first gesture toward compromise of the $300,000,000 PWA earmarking, Representative Beiter, head of the PWA bloc, said he "would be willing to take $100,000,000 less." It was indicated this may not be satisfactory to the Administration.

Rayburn's counter offer is expected to suggest White House withdrawal of the executive order requiring 85 per cent relief labor on PWA projects. Under this offer it has been impossible for the PWA to make use of the $131,000,000 still remaining in its "revolving fund." Withdrawal of the order would release funds for some 597 projects in communities that have held elections and voted bond issues for the projects. These would cost $52,264,000. Beiter wants to provide for 2,987 additional approved projects, costing $372,412,000.

$63,500,000 for Control.

Compromise with the flood control and rural road blocs may be more difficult. The flood-control group wants $45,000,000 in addition to existing budget provisions. The Administration is expected to point out that $22,500,000 for flood control will be provided this year under the old Overton act, $30,000,000 under the Copeland act and another $11,000,000 that has been promised for the lower Mississippi. The road bloc wants $130,000,000 definitely earmarked. The Administration will contend an adequate amount already is authorized or will be provided in the relief bill.

Beiter, Starnes and Cartwright, bloc leaders, held a conference following adjournment, and agreed on a "united front" at conferences during the next few days. No one of the group will attend an Administration conference to which the others have not been invited.

Two Amendments Rejected.

In the rush yesterday to accept amendments to the bill, there were a few the House would not take. Without a record vote, it turned thumbs down on an amendment by Representative Fuller (Democrat), of Arkansas, to deny relief to WPA workers participating in or fomenting strikes. It rejected another by Representative Lanham (Democrat), of Texas, to cut alien labor off relief rolls, but accepted another giving American citizens preference, and aliens who have taken out first papers second choice. The latter amendment was sponsored by a Republican—Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York.

Another amendment by Fish, giving relief preference to World War and Spanish-American War veterans, also was adopted.

Republicans, obviously enjoying the split in the majority, joined enthusiastically in every raid on the bill. Majority Leader Rayburn, at one point, turned furiously on them when they laughed at his proposal to hold up the bill to permit time for "adjustments."

President May Appeal.

"I know, I know, you laugh at that over there," Rayburn said. "You do not want us to get together, you do not intend that we shall pass such legislation as the Government can most efficiently operate under because you want to use this in 1938 and 1940."

Rayburn's conciliatory speech to the Democrats raised the possibility the President may appeal directly to members to reconsider their $505,000,000 earmarking, which Hopkins contends will cut 600,000 off relief rolls.

"We are badly split up," Rayburn told the Democrats. "Many amendments have been adopted in heat. * * * I appeal to the cooler judgment of my colleagues, I appeal to what I know is their fairness, I appeal to their better judgment." He was enthusiastically applauded.

Cut Leaves Hopkins Calm.

Indianapolis, May 27 (AP).—A $2,000 pay cut doesn't bother Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Works Progress Administrator, as long as Congressmen don't apply the paring knife to the $1,500,000,000 relief bill.

"I don't know anything much about my salary cut," he said, "but it's all right—just so they don't cut down on the relief money. That's what's most important right now." He is here for a meeting of social workers.

WPA Workers Strike in N. Y.; Protest Layoffs

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 27.—Several thousand WPA employes conducted a one-day work stoppage and picketed numerous project headquarters today in protest against layoffs expected to result from the $1,500,000,000 relief bill now in Congress.

Disorder was slight. Two women and a man were arrested for disorderly conduct and received suspended sentences.

The demonstration was one of many of the day's labor developments involving telegraphers, bill posters, taxi drivers, seamen and bus drivers.

More than 150 workers on the WPA writers project ended a three-day separate strike when informed layoffs would be held in abeyance for at least a month.

Commenting the work stoppage would save the Government $10,000 in docked salaries, WPA Administrator Brehon Somervell said 3,513 workers participated, none of them members of the supervising staff. He threatened yesterday to discharge any supervisor who failed to report for work.

The Worker Alliance, WPA employes union, placed the number of participants at 10,000. There are about 170,000 WPA workers here.

The biggest picketing demonstration was at the main WPA headquarters on Columbus avenue, where police estimated the number of marchers at 10,000.

The telegraphists union of the Postal Telegraph Co., simultaneously announced its transfer from the A. F. of L. to the C. I. O. and filed a formal protest with the Labor Relations Board charging the company discriminated against union employes and refused to bargain collectively with the union. It claimed the majority of the 3,000 employes in the company's 150 local offices.

white message of prosperity and employment, 32,000 were idle.

The steel-producing rate, soaring along at the top of the graph, took a sudden dive in Cleveland, where all four of Republic's plants, employing 7,000 men, were shut down.

Twenty-five thousand were affected by the strike in the Chicago area, where operations of the Sheet & Tube and Inland were brought to an abrupt halt.

Republic's plant in South Chicago continued to operate, with pickets on the outside. Twenty pickets at the plant were arrested.

Eight thousand more were idle in the Canton-Massillon area of Ohio.

Violence flared briefly at Canton where a Republic foreman was shot. A company guard was charged with the shooting.

Plants of the three companies in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Pennsylvania and New York felt the force of the strike.

Cincinnati, May 27 (AP).—William Green warned the Progressive Miners of America tonight that they would have to keep out of United Mine Workers' territory if chartered by the American Federation of Labor.

After the Federation's executive council conferred more than an hour with the Progressives' president and secretary on their charter application, Green said:

"The charter of the United Mine Workers has never been revoked. Because of this it would be impossible for the executive council to give the Progressive Miners a national charter The council directed me to get more information on just what territory the Progressives want."

Rioting in Chicago.

Chicago, May 27 (AP).—Pickets clashed with police tonight for the second time in 24 hours outside the South Chicago mill of the Republic Steel Corporation.

The officers halted a parade of about 300 pickets three blocks away from the plant, and announced there would be no mass picketing permitted. No arrests were made as the parade broke up.

The striking steel workers retreated to their picket camp, established several blocks away, while 20 police patrol wagons moved into the area on reports that another march on the mill would be attempted.

Robertson Asks Speed On Park Police Measure

By the Associated Press.

Representative A. Willis Robertson, of Lexington, Va., yesterday asked Chairman de Rouen (Democrat), Louisiana, of the House Public Lands Committee, to expedite action on his bill calling for Federal assumption of police powers in the Shenandoah National Park.

Robertson explained to the chairman the bill was an Administration measure.

Old Barque-Rigged War Sloop Drops Anchor at Navy Yard

Avast, ye landlubbers, tack on to the starboard main brace and heave to! For in Washington Navy Yard is tied up until the Monday morning tide an old windjammer. A barque-rigged sloop of war, to the uninitiated. Old? Yes, 60 years old and a member of the famous White Squadron of Spanish War days.

What is it? Where did she come from? Why is she here? Belay questions mates, light the smoking lamp, pipe down and I'll spin ye a salt tale o' the sea!

Up in the old Bay State for the better part of a century, youngsters with the salt blood of ancestors coursing through their veins and a longing to go down to the sea in ships, have come from every city to take competitive examinations for the State Schoolship. From Haverhill, Boston, Taunton, Salem, Worcester, Springfield. From citizens, come these boys to train the homes of substantial American for manning the ships of the American merchant marine. Sons of the United States manning American bottoms and sailing them upon graduation, under the Stars and Stripes, to the far corners of the earth.

The State Schoolship, U. S. S. Nantucket, is but a counterpart of similar State training ships—New York, Pennsylvania, California—to which there may soon be added others.

Training Course.

A concentrated two-year training course is given, during which the 118 cadets live aboard continually. Navigation, seamanship, steam and electrical engineering are some of the subjects covered during the winter lay-up in Boston. And in the summer these boys climb the rigging for drill like cats every morning, wire splice, use the palm and needle, tie bowlines and turkshead knots with their eyes closed, navigate by the latest methods, stand wheel watches, compute position by dead reckoning, by sun sight, by star sight, by piloting. They heave the lead, they fire the boilers, stand engine room watches, swelter in the tropics and freeze in the northern latitudes. And it makes men of them!

The State schoolships are to all intents and purposes the only source of supply of officer personnel for our American merchant marine. The graduates are the chief source of supply for national emergency United States Auxiliary Naval Reserve Officers in time of war.

Old Salt Commander.

The commanding officer, Capt. C. teach the boys. They live under the Navy with years of salt water behind him. An exceedingly competent navigator, executive officer and engineer officer who understands and knows how to deal with salty youth, as well as other officer-instructors, all schoolship graduates, teac hthe boys. They live under Navy discipline and are as barefooted during the summer cruise as in the day of Trafalgar and Lord Nelson; sleep in hammocks, and appreciate the opportunities offered them in their life work by the Board of Education of the State of Massachusetts, working in collaboration with the United States Navy.

The Nantucket is a barque-rigged steamer of 1,261 tons, 234 feet overall length and a 35 foot beam. She has weathered many a hurricane and in the words of the navigator himself, "I'd trust myself in the Nantucket in a hurricane as soon as any ship afloat."

A blow two years ago carried away all her starboard lifeboats, but due to the seamanship of Capt. Abele, his staff and the stout steel plates, she stood on her beam ends and came out with a seasoned crew of young sailormen.

Through Gibraltar in a fog, under fire from the Spanish rebels, up the Potomac on soundings only are all in a day's work for the flower of the Bay State manhood.

White House Unit Acts to Safeguard Confidential News

In a further effort to keep the White House press conferences with the President free of "tipsters" and disseminators of confidential information, the executive committee of the White House Correspondents Association, in charge of such conferences, yesterday promulgated two additional regulations governing admission to such meetings.

Hereafter applicants for admission must certify that "I am not engaged for profit, directly or indirectly, in the dissemination of confidential information."

The following paragraph was added to the "regulations governing admission to the White House conference."

"Persons representing news agencies of any description engaged in the dissemination of so-called confidential information for profit, direct or indirect, shall not be entitled to membership in the White House Correspondents Association."

The new regulations become effective July 1, 1937, and after that date no person representing or employed by any enterprise which makes a practice of supplying "so-called confidential information," irrespective of whether such information originates at the White House, will be permitted to attend the President's conferences.

The action of the association's executive committee was announced by Walter Trohan, of the Chictgo Tribune.

It costs over half a million more to make

WE LIKE to save money as well as the next fellow. And yet, in producing Four Roses, we use methods that cost us over half a million dollars more a year than other methods we could follow.

Why do we do it then? Because we believe it's the only way to give Four Roses its inimitable flavor and smoothness.

To bring forth Four Roses we take several superb straight whiskies—each distilled the slow and costly old-fashioned way...each notable for some outstanding virtue.

Then we combine these straight whiskies (and only straight whiskies!) together in a way that unites all their virtues into one whiskey that's perfection itself...Four Roses.

"But it costs me so little more to buy!"

"I NEVER GOT around to trying Four Roses until last week. But one sip, and I knew I'd never tasted a finer whiskey in my life. So naturally I was astonished at its price—only a quarter more a pint than the whiskies I'd been buying!"

Harvard Opens Inquiry Into Teachers' Union

Two Instructors Face Dismissal Over Labor Views.

By the Associated Press.

Cambridge, Mass., May 27.—President James Bryant Conant of Harvard University tonight announced a faculty committee would investigate issues raised by "concluding appointments" given to two economics instructors, who led in formation of a teachers' union.

Announcement of the two-year appointments, virtually a notice of dismissal, was given last April to Drs. J. Raymond Walsh and Alan R. Sweezy.

Assertions of labor leaders and friends of the instructors that the pair virtually were dismissed for "labor activities" were denied at the time by university officials.

A few weeks prior to the announcement, Walsh had criticized the opposition of President Emeritus A. Lawrence Lowell to the child labor amendment.

Inquiry Started.

In a report to the Harvard board of trustees tonight President Conant said he had appointed an investigating committee of nine faculty members to investigate the issues raised by the matter.

"The existence of substantial doubt within the university," Conant wrote, "as to the justice or wisdom of the university's action is sufficient ground for welcoming an inquiry."

President Conant told the overseers that the investigating committee would include: Profs. E. Merrick Dodd, jr., Felix Frankfurter, Elmer P. Kohler, Edmund M. Morgan, Samuel E. Morison, Kenneth B. Murdock, Ralph B. Perry, Arthur M. Schlesinger and Harlow Shapley.

Frankfurter on List.

Frankfurter, professor of administrative law, was among those mentioned to succeed retiring Justice Willis Van Devanter in the Supreme Court. Morison, professor of history, was official tercentenary historian of the university. Shapley is director of the Harvard Observatory. Morgan is acting dean of the law school. Perry is professor of philosophy.

Conant said he had appointed the group after they informed him May 18 they had received a memorandum, signed by 131 junior teaching officers of the university, requesting them to conduct such an inquiry.

Conant reported he had asked them to serve because "it was clear they have the confidence of the petitioners."

President Conant expressed the hope they would have a report available by the middle of the coming academic year.

Parents in Miami Urged to Curb Vice

Miami, Fla., May 27 (AP).—Parents were challenged by doctors and club women today to "wake up and do something" about morals of this community's youth.

One of the first steps in the crusade for parental awakening was a demand by the County Federation of Women's Clubs that authorities halt "gambling, indecent exhibitions and liquor sales to minors."

The federation, blaming "thoughtlessness and inattention" of parents, told in a resolution of a "wave of indiscretions" that brought upon physicians "increasing demands for treatment of so-called social diseases."

Dr. Marvin Smith, addressing a conference of parents and teachers at one Miami junior high school, said he was "burnt up with what I see going on around me in what is supposed to be a civilized community."

18,000 Mexicans Prepared for Walkout

Mexico City, May 27 (AP).—Backed by the promise of strike support from the Confederation of Workers of Mexico, 18,000 oil workers prepared to walk out at midnight tonight to enforce their demands for higher wages and a 40-hour week.

The confederation ordered all of its affiliates to stand by the oil workers in what was termed an "open battle against imperialism brutally oppressing our country."

French Beauty Demands Back Salary From Former Mate.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, May 27.—Yvonne Printemps, diminutive darling of the French stage whose "reciprocal adultry" divorce from Sacha Guitry was a world sensation in 1934, today sued him for "back pay" covering the years she was his leading lady.

The "Dresden Doll," who appeared on the New York stage shortly after her divorce, said she appeared in Guitry's plays for 15 years, but never drew salary because she was his wife.

She asked pay for her roles in a half-dozen plays, but stipulated no definite sum.

Court Is Baffled.

Attorneys for the Bohemian Guitry, one of Europe's most successful actors and playwrights, contended Yvonne was amply paid. After each performance, they said, he gave her an expensive piece of jewelry.

The court admitted it was as baffled as the judges who struggled with Sacha's and Yvonne's "moral incompatibility" divorce suit in 1934.

A committee of three experts, including Emil Fabre, retired director of the National Theater, Comedie Francaise, and two attorneys, was appointed to draw up recommendations.

Mlle. Printemps, who was divorced in November, 1934, was unable to claim alimony because there can be no claims for financial aid in suits of "reciprocal adultery."

Previously—during Sacha's and Yvonne's unsuccessful attempt to obtain a divorce by the usual methods in February, 1934—she had $300 a month alimony.

The blonde actress, the divorce judges said, had "sufficient professional reputation" to struggle along without further help from her former husband.

At that time it was decided $270,000 worth of jewelry, supposedly given Yvonne by her "Svengali," more than compensated for any other claims.

Mlle. Printemps—or "Miss Spring" in English—was amazed by the world's surprise over the manner of her divorce from the man who, when he met her in a little Montmartre cafe when she was a girl of 18, said: "Come with me, and I'll make you Queen of Paris."

Sacha admitted he had been indiscreet with Jacqueline Delubac, his new "discovery." Yvonne admitted the same in respect to Pierre Fresnay, her leading man in "Conversation Piece." So France's most famous stage team split in 1932, and two years later were divorced.

YVONNE PRINTEMPS.

Previous Nuptials Cited for Divorce

New York, May 27 (AP).—Charging she concealed two previous marriages, Alvin V. Anderson sought today an annulment from Virginia Stevenson Anderson, 20, of Atlanta.

Anderson, of a wealthy Cliffside, N. J., family, said his pretty bride never told him she was married in Daytona, Fla., in 1934 to Bruce Barton, jr., and took Alexander J. Mayer as a second husband in New York after Barton was legally out of the picture.

Through her attorney, Maxwell G. Cutler, Miss Anderson denied his charges and said he knew of the marriages and that her second annulment decree did not become final until June, 1936.

Bigger and Better Magic Predicted at Parley

Albany, N. Y., May 27 (U.P.).—"Bigger things" in magic with elephants instead of rabbits popping out of silk hats were predicted as the next step in legerdemain today by Dr. I. R. Calkins, president of the Society of American Magicians.

As nearly 300 amateur and professional magicians opened their ninth annual conference here, Calkins, a Springfield, Mass., surgeon, asserted that the "new magic" would be presented with bulky but ingenious apparatus and would be "much more mystifying than ever."

Higher Price of Steel Raises Chain Bridge Cost

Because of the increase in the cost of steel, the Budget Bureau yesterday recommended a supplemental appropriation of $43,000 for the construction of Chain Bridge.

As the money comes out of the gasoline tax fund, it will not affect the deficit in the District supply bill now before the Senate, although the item may be included in the measure.

A word about Wednesday closing of Grocery Stores

The Sanitary Grocery Co., along with other organizations, is endeavoring to make Wednesday afternoons a permanent weekly half-holiday for all store personnel. Accordingly, beginning Wednesday, June 9th, our stores will close at 1 p. m. We need your co-operation to make this move a success, and ask that you kindly do your shopping on Tuesday or before 1 p. m. on Wednesday.

Surplus Pear Supply Exists

Pear growers in Oregon, Washington and California face a critical situation. Heavy stocks of canned pears are held by canners and unless this is moved into consumption at once, growers face ruinous prices for their 1937 crop. We have joined with 37,000 chain stores in a nation-wide movement to move the surplus.

Mussolini's Unripe Fruit.

Premier Mussolini's rather sudden conversion to the cause of limitation of armaments is a significant development, even if it is not likely to have a constructive sequel in the immediate future.

It was not long ago that the Duce grew rapturous over "beautiful cannon." Of more recent vintage was his boast that Italy could overnight put 8,000,000 men under arms. And only the other day it was announced that a large-scale expansion of the Italian navy was under way.

In these circumstances the Duce's change of tune is striking. He has now let it be known that he favors a new international effort to limit armaments. And he has suggested that President Roosevelt is the most likely individual to take the initiative in summoning such a conference.

This is flattering to the American Chief Executive. But the White House has, for the present, wisely decided to eschew the honor which Mussolini would thrust upon it. The time is not yet ripe for such an ambitious effort.

In the past the principal obstacle to a general limitation agreement was Germany's unwillingness to accept any scheme that did not grant her complete equality. That is why the world disarmament conference went aground. But the shoe is now rapidly being placed on the other foot. The very ambitious rearmament of Germany and the equally strenuous efforts of Italy have about reached their peak. Any further expansion of armaments can be achieved only at a cost that may be ruinous to those nations. That is bad enough in itself. But the situation has been made considerably worse by the decision of Britain, France and Russia not to be left behind in the arms race.

It is clearly impossible for the Fascist States to match Britain's $7,500,000,000 arms program, the successful completion of which would give the United Kingdom a great preponderance of power over its continental rivals. No wonder, then, that both Germany and Italy are very anxious to halt Great Britain in its tracks.

The presumption is, however, that neither Germany nor Italy is in any mood to agree to limitations that would mean real reduction in its fighting power. In other words, they are not prepared to rest on their oars while the other nations catch up. But a mere standstill agreement is out of the question. For one, Great Britain is wholly determined to carry out its rearmament program, cost what it may.

Under the circumstances, President Roosevelt, tempted though he might be by the possibility of playing the role of peacemaker, cannot help turning aside Mussolini's indirect bid that he summon a conference on armaments.

Yet we should not discount the fact that limitation has now the approval of nations which hitherto have viewed such ideal with undisguised contempt. The time has come, therefore, to clear the path for some future attempt at limitation of armaments. In Europe this must take the form of a renewed effort to increase general security. In the world at large the best preparation for disarmament would be an acceleration of the efforts to open the clogged channels of trade.

Until a solid political and economic foundation for disarmament has been established, that highly desirable goal will perforce remain in the category of hopeless dreams.

Three For Five.

With three candles on their cake and $300,000 in their coffers from movie contracts alone, the Dionnes are today celebrating their third birthday. Pictures show them to be five healthy, happy little girls apparently quite unspoiled by adulation. Most of the credit for this, of course, goes to Dr. Dafoe, who has been with them since their basket-and-blanket days.

It is interesting to look back at the unostentatious newspaper notice of May 28, 1934, announcing that "MOTHER GIVES BIRTH TO FIVE GIRLS: ALL WELL." The news was flashed from Corbeil, Ontario, and Callandar was designated then merely as a hamlet "2 miles from here." Since that time it has become the most publicized village in the world. Even California Chambers of Commerce make no effort to compete with the tourist trade of this Canadian town.

The little girls are still regarded as a unit of five. But more and more it is becoming apparent that they must sooner or later be treated as individuals. For each child now has her own personality and peculiarities. In deference to this, then, instead of wishing a happy birthday to the Dionnes, we take off our hat in turn to Annette, Cecile, Marie, Emilie, and Yvonne!

Reversion To Warfare.

Strikes that have closed the plants of three large independent steel companies and violent clashes between union organizers and Ford employes in Dearborn have disappointed hopes that collective bargaining within the mass production industries would progress with a minimum of friction.

The experience of General Motors should have been a warning example of the folly of resorting to open combat when a formula for effecting peace has been devised. It seemed that the lesson had been learned when a major subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation announced that it had reached an agreement with the Steel Workers' organizing committee, representing the C. I. O. But other industrial leaders are not taking advantage of that experience.

A variety of methods of procedure may be followed to speed the course of collective bargaining without resort to strikes or lockouts. When the union is strong it may welcome a test of its power by agreeing to abide by the results of an election. In that event, the Wagner act obliges management to accord exclusive bargaining rights to the victorious majority. In other cases, when the union's position is not established, it may seem wise to both labor and management to enter into limited agreements like those concluded with General Motors and the United States Steel.

In no case, however, can a satisfactory solution of labor problems result from the tactics pursued by the independent steel companies in refusing unconditionally to sign contracts with the S. W. O. C. They might reasonably refuse to recognize the union as an exclusive bargaining agency unless its right to speak for all employes had been previously established through an election supervised by the National Labor Relations Board. But the formal announcement of the Republic Steel Co. is almost equivalent to a declaration of war. Although asserting that it practices collective bargaining, it refuses to sign any sort of contract with the C. I. O. group on the ground that such action would simply be preliminary to demands for the closed shop and the check-off.

No doubt the union leaders would welcome such a consummation; but in the contracts already negotiated, they have not secured these concessions. The C. I. O. abandoned its demand for the closed shop in the struggle with General Motors. There was no question of obtaining it in the dealings with the steel companies. Moreover, the Wagner act plainly indicates that even exclusive bargaining privileges do not interfere with the right of minorities to present their grievances to their employers through representatives of their own choosing.

Unquestionably, a good many conflicts between organized labor groups will arise in the future, especially in view of the rift between the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. That, however, does not justify a refusal of employers to deal here and now with organized groups who may fairly claim to be representative. As collective bargaining becomes more firmly entrenched, the advantages of negotiating with a single responsible agency and embodying agreements in the form of signed contracts will become more apparent. In many cases the question of the closed shop will cease to seem important, as workers find it to their interest to join unions which bargain for them.

Industrial unionism is adapted to the needs of the mass-production industries and its growth is assured. The only question in doubt is whether its progress is to be comparatively smooth or rough. Some former implacable foes of independent unionism have read the handwriting on the wall and turned to negotiation as an alternative to coercion. Nothing of permanent value will be gained by those die-hard groups that prefer force to reason and persuasion.

The Middle Road For Holland.

As in all other European democracies, including the neighboring land of Belgium, the kingdom of the Netherlands, during recent years, has witnessed the rise within its borders of a flourishing Fascist movement.

In large measure the root cause of this dangerous development was the depression which, in the case of the Netherlands, was unduly prolonged because that nation clung so tenaciously to the gold standard long after it had been abandoned by the world in general. With foreign trade crippled, with domestic production curtailed and unemployment rising, social discontent greatly increased. Out of this discontent there grew a Communist movement which, if not important in itself, nevertheless did frighten the Conservatives, and a Fascist movement which also found inspiration in developments taking place across the border in Germany.

Recently the Netherlands, like Belgium, began to enjoy better times. Politically this improvement has found reflection in the eclipse of the anti-democratic movements. Last month, in the Brussels election, Premier Van Zeeland overwhelmingly defeated Leon Degrelle, Rexist leader and Belgium's would-be Hitler. On Wednesday, Premier Henrik Colijn dealt a similar knock-out blow to the Dutch Nazi faction headed by A. A. Mussert.

The Dutch Nazis had boasted they would gain a minimum of 10 seats in the lower house of the Netherlands Parliament. Actually they won not more than half that number out of a total of 100 seats. At the same time the Communists lost one of their five places, while the Liberal Democratic Party, whose representative in the cabinet is Dr. P. J. Oud, minister of finance, increased its strength from 11 to 16.

In general the election revealed the Conservative and Liberal parties in the Netherlands as more than holding their ground. Extremism in the North Sea kingdom, whose population has long been noted for sturdy common sense, is clearly on the way out. The people of the Netherlands have now unmistakably indicated their determination to pursue a middle path under the leadership of Dr. Colijn.

The District Tax Program.

Commissioner Hazen was speaking accurately when he referred to the current efforts to raise more revenue for the District as a muddle. Almost every possible sort of tax has had official support from one source or another. Congress and the Commissioners have taken so much time floundering about in a fog of indecision that it is questionable whether a sound tax program can be enacted before the beginning of the new fiscal year on July 1.

Defeat of the proposed sales tax by the special House sub-committee will be heartily applauded. A general levy on sales, which makes no allowance for differences in the ability of citizens to pay, is not an equitable tax. At best it is an emergency tax to be applied when other sources of revenue fail. Had an impasse been reached in consideration of permanent taxes, a sales levy limited to one year would have served a useful purpose. If it can be avoided, however, the tax program will be far more satisfactory.

Having rejected the sales tax, the subcommittee was apparently unable to choose between the proposed levies on income and business privileges. Consequently, it approved both of them, limiting the scope of the business privilege tax so that it becomes merely a license fee. This appears to be a reasonable compromise. But it leaves a serious question as to whether the Commissioners will be able to draw up satisfactory bills applying these two intricate forms of taxation in the limited time available to them.

Together with the motor vehicles tax, the inheritance tax and increased levies on insurance premiums, the tapping of incomes and business receipts completes a rather well rounded revenue program. Its effectiveness will depend, in large measure, on the details of the income tax bill yet to be worked out. No doubt the Commissioners will attempt to make that measure as broad as possible, without working injustice upon Government employes and nonresidents who owe tax obligations to the States.

One point that needs definite clarification, however, is the status of the intangible property tax. Before the House sub-committee held its last session Representative Kennedy announced plans to put "teeth" in this obnoxious levy, and Corporation Counsel Seal was said to be preparing a bill for that purpose. It is to be hoped that these plans have been discarded with the adoption of the new program. Instead of trying to revise this obsolete and inequitable measure, the Commissioners ought to insist upon its repeal.

No amount of revision can make the levy on intangible property a satisfactory tax. As the Jacobs committee pointed out, it is a "tax on honesty with a premium on evasion." Most of the States long ago abandoned attempts to raise revenue in this unscientific manner.

Moreover, the tax imposes a gross injustice upon some residents, particularly those who are trying to live on meager savings. A letter to the editor on this page today points out that, with present rates of interest, the intangibles tax amounts to 25 per cent on incomes from savings deposits of less than $2,500, and 50 per cent on the income from savings above that amount. Comparable rates imposed by the Federal income tax apply only to the incomes of wealthy individuals.

Certainly officials should take advantage of the present opportunity to abolish this confiscatory measure which levies drastic penalties upon a few citizens, while the great majority evade its provisions. The District should consider itself fortunate if a reasonable income tax is substituted for this out-moded imposition on thrifty families of small means.

"England's royal family has arranged for the Duke of Windsor to receive $150,000 yearly." That's a lot of money for not being a king.

A Difficult Task.

From the Melbourne Argus.

Many critics feared in times past that reciprocal treaties would prove the hot-houses of estrangement within the empire. Their success so far has been achieved because of the most sensitive determination that negotiations, if not successful, should at least engender no bitterness. It would be most regrettable if negotiations for trade treaties with Canada caused friction, because the scope of those treaties must necessarily be very limited. The Canadian government recently sent a senior minister to the Commonwealth to discuss this question. The obstacles that appear to have arisen are natural. A balance of trade cannot be struck between the North American continent and Australia. Our apparent unfavorable balance with the United States is redressed through the unseen channels of international exchanges; and cannot be as inimical to the Commonwealth as statistical figures suggest.

Dangerous Pruning.

Letters to the Editor

All communications must carry the writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the Editor's discretion. In fairness to other correspondents, brevity is requested. Letters are subject to condensation.

Mr. Snyder Replies.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to say that your correspondent, Mr. William I. Rau, falls into error when he mentions my name and says: "Practically every immigration lawyer has been in favor of the Kerr-Coolidge bill." This, may I say respectfully, is not true. The fact is that lawyers who have had immigration practice have observed that that bill would have afforded relief to some clients, would have excluded some others from benefit or relief, and by authorizing exercise of unlimited administrative discretion would have prejudiced the interests of still others, depriving them of the high privilege of resort to judicial process. I do not know any lawer who actively urged enactment of that measure. Many were very doubtful of its merit.

My point has been and is that the Dies bill does not authorize unlimited discretions as did the Kerr-Coolidge bill, and this I think wise, sensible and conducive to good administration.

Permit me to say further that the core of this matter has been much obscured by misrepresentation. The facts are substantially these: Since 1930 the influx of immigrant aliens has been drastically reduced. Presently effective restrictions undoubtedly will continue. The Department of State and the Department of Labor have enforced vigorously the numerical limitation and exclusion provisions of the laws. In enforcement of the deportation provisions the Department of Labor has confronted a peculiar problem, namely, the case of the unlawfully resident alien having ties of blood in the United States that ought not to be permanently severed. Mark this word, "permanently." Before the act of March 4, 1929, which in about 95 cases out of 100 excludes a deportee permanently, such a problem could not have arisen. Today it persists, with a plea for humane treatment of him who since unlawful entry has behaved himself, whose offense was not intrinsically base or vile, and who if deported would be put to great burden of expense and hardship in attempting lawfully to reenter if not perpetually debarred by the 1929 statute.

The Dies bill is an answer to this plea. I have pointed out that it is not a perfect answer. It will relieve some but not all distressing conditions. At the same time it will enlarge the deportable classes. And it will not affect the valid principle of immigration restriction. Those who consider this matter should appreciate that the immigration problem, as it confronted the Nation a decade and more ago, simply does not exist at present. Through the competent functioning of our consular officers and technical advisers abroad, and our capable inspection and border patrol forces at home, the alien influx is a mere trickle. There is and will be for years the social problem of the unassimilated alien, but there is no immigration problem as we formerly knew it. Therefore, those who attempt to stir up a storm over a matter so unimportant in the whole scheme of things as that of extending to or withholding from a small group of aliens some measure of humanitarian grace and mercy are acting in complete misapprehension of the situation. PETER F. SNYDER.
Washington, May 25.

Puerto Rican's Views.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read and enthusiastically applauded your editorial of May 24, "The Russian Paradox." But let me ask why you have to go so far away for such criticisms when you have an even greater paradox right at home and under the American flag.

What would you think of the stability of government in Puerto Rico where, in order to keep a, "stable civilized democratic government," I believe they machine-gun old men, women and children in the streets and send high school boys to the penitentiary for "attempting to overthrow by force the Government of the United States."

Find out facts and write about what is going on right next to your door, and which by the way, you yourself can remedy, before commenting on what you can't help.
CAY CALL CUCHI.
Washington, May 24.

On Daylight Saving.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Within a few short weeks all of the ammunition used by Mr. Sacks in his attempt to disregard the well-being of the citizens of the District will be as welcome as a mother-in-law's kiss.

During our hot summer the extra hour stolen from the cool of the morning and so magnanimously turned into the heat of the afternoon, 96 degrees in the shade, is of no benefit as outdoor exercise, merely invites sunstroke. The voluntary daylight system was tried here some years ago without advancing the clocks and lasted less than a week. The average length of the working hours in the Nation's capital is the lowest in the country.

The retail business proprietors, shoe stores, grocers, etc., see their trade going to others—there will be many who will not conform—there will be a rush for the standard time band wagon. CITIZEN.
Washington, May 26.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to add my voice to those opposed to daylight saving time.

Daylight time for the District would be most confusing with all the surrounding territory — Maryland and Virginia—on standard time.

Let the Government departments and any other business establishments who may wish to do so, open for business an hour earlier if they wish, but let's not disturb the clock, unless daylight time is made a national law throughout all the States.

Most Government employes work only seven hours daily, compared with private business of eight or more hours daily.
PAUL M. HINES.
Washington, May 19.

Civil Service Eligibles.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Commenting on the attempt of the House Civil Service Committee to extend Civil Service status to all Federal employes, allow me to call attention to the "forgotten" Civil Service list of eligibles, particularly those who became eligible through open, competitive examinations during the last year.

In the stenographic examinations held last summer some 80,000 applications were received from all over the country, including 16,000 from Washington. An overwhelming percentage of those who took the examinations here were unclassified Government workers. They took time off, rented machines, had photographs taken, their applications notarized, and reported for the examination on swelteringly hot days at an expense of at least $5 per head. Those who were not employed at the time showed the same faith in the merit system by incurring expenses that they could ill afford, but were willing to risk as an investment in the future.

Why go through the farce of announcing impending examinations and demanding that candidates go through the onerous ordeal of filling out an application for an examination that really means nothing at all?

The Civil Service Commission has on file thousands of emergency workers who should be certified either to the positions they are now holding, or to others here in Washington. No favoritism should be shown by demanding that these people compete again with those who failed to avail themselves of the opportunity to qualify. Why should others be "blanketed-in" at the expense of jobs that are held or could be held by qualified emergency workers, who showed the real American spirit in fair play competition? EMERGENCY WORKER.
Washington, May 27.

Plebians' Part.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Since the Supreme Court has recognized the march of events and fallen in step with progress, we are still hampered with Senator Cicero Fullpan and M. T. Noodles in Congress.

The President has done his part well and it is now up to us plebians to get rid of the vociferous and picturesque nonenities in the House and Senate. There must be no turning back. A. W. CARTER.
Charlottesville, Va., May 25.

Exorbitant Taxes on Savings.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Beginning March 1, 1937, the rates of interest paid by the banks and trust companies in the District on savings deposits were reduced to 2 per cent on balances of $2,500 and under and to 1 per cent on balances of over $2,500.

The District's intangibles tax on savings deposits over $500 is ½ of 1 per cent. This tax is equivalent to an income tax of 25 per cent and 50 per cent, respectively, on the incomes from the said rates of interest. This is excessive taxation. It is contrary to this Administration's policy of taxation according to ability to pay.

It takes a net income of from $38,000 to $44,000 to incur a Federal surtax rate of 24 per cent and a net income of from $74,000 to $80,000 to incur a rate of 47 per cent. This indicates how very drastic are the District's taxes on small savings deposits of a few thousand dollars, or less. For instance, the bank pays $10 interest annually on that part of a savings account which gets 1 per cent interest and the District takes one-half of that, or $5—this is, of course, per each $1,000 of such part of the account.

The savings depositors are almost invariably people of very small means. They have generally been saving small sums for years, for the most meritorious purposes, such as to provide for medical and surgical attention, to educate their children, to pay funeral expenses, and, very often, such is their pride, to keep from the relief rolls. They are a class that deserves the utmost consideration and encouragement.

The remedy for this situation would be to exempt savings deposits from the tax on intangibles, if intangibles taxes are to be continued, or to reduce to a reasonable rate, the rate on such deposits, or to substitute other forms, such as income taxes or sales taxes, etc., for the taxes on intangibles.

Anticipating a possible inquiry as to why savings deposits should be given more favorable treatment than checking accounts, I answer, first, that savings accounts constitute an especially meritorious class of accounts, which, in the public interest alone, deserve the most liberal treatment, and, second, that the savings account is inactive, liable to severe restrictions, tied down as it were, while the checking account is active and may be likened to a revolving fund, which may be turned over and over with possibly large profits to the owner. The savings account cannot very well be transferred to another jurisdiction before the date of accrual of the tax, as is alleged to be the practice in checking accounts to evade the tax.

I may add that the State of North Carolina has just adopted a new tax list on intangibles in which the rate of tax on bank deposits is fixed at 10 cents per $100, which is one-fifth of the District's rate.

The District's high tax is very discouraging to thrift and saving, and tends to lead depositors to put their accumulated savings into the stock market or make other unwise use of them, to the detriment of the public interest. The tax complained of should therefore be either greatly reduced or abolished, and now is the time to do that while the taxation question is up in Congress.

The Search For Sin

THOU that inquirest after mine iniquity, and searchest after my sin.—Job. 10:6.

You would think one can find sin rampant and everywhere, but you are mistaken. Our world is full of sins, and we are quick to confess them. But admitting sin is quite a different matter.

You may say it doesn't make sense to talk this way, but preaching isn't meant always to make sense. St. Paul called preaching foolishness. The world by wisdom knew not God, he wrote, and it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe. The best preachers in the world often think of their preaching in the same way.

Take the recent Southern Baptist convention. If it did not actually name some of our steady sins, it ran beautifully away from the very prospect of declaring our sin. Every now and then some clergyman does that thing. One of the liberals in that greatest of religious bodies in this part of the country came up with something that had a disconcerting verisimilitude to sin, but he got nowhere. A group of the conservatives came up with a catalogue of our sins. There was no trouble. We never did object to being called sinners. In one of the liturgical churches there is a wonderful general confession in which all of us say that we have erred and strayed from God's ways like lost sheep; that we have followed the devices and desires of our own hearts; that we offended against His holy laws; that we have left undone those things which we ought to have done, and we have done those things which we ought not to have done. There is no health in us. We are just lousy with sins.

But not with sin. That young preacher tried to commit his convention to the sort of social gospel which he fancied Jesus presented to His people. Edwin McNeill Poteat, of Raleigh, tried it two years ago. It is happening everywhere. The social gospelers are talking about "SIN." The conservatives who profess the old-time religion will not have it. Even that call to repentance does not always work. If current Christianity balks at making the mores of these commonwealths of ours our deadly sin, the same religion hesitates to catalogue so cocksurely the ancient sins.

The retort of the young minister to the proponent of a resolution against cigarette smoking was timely. He asked the great religious conference if it could not cease its war on inconsequentialities and go after something bigger. It was an interrogatory that answered itself. Our churches can't do that. The board of deacons in one of our larger North Carolina cities had two persons identified for them. One was a girl of 17 years who danced. The other was a usurer of 40 years who ground the faces of the poor. It is not recorded anywhere that Jesus ever rebuked a dancing girl or boy; but He lost His temper when He saw the moneychangers at their profanation. But you know who caught it in that congregation. The 17-year-old girl was "turned out of the church." The usurer at 65 is still passing the plate at the Sunday services. The churches had defined "sins." Youth was reeking with them, dancing, card-playing, crap shooting, drinking. But the usurer was enthroned.

Well, the Methodists had a good deal to say about tobacco before that got embarrassing. Once George Stuart shelled Durham's "sins." He had his book of revival sermons and they ran in perfect order. Durham had no legal liquor; therefore abuse liquor. But the next sermon was on tobacco. It has not yet been delivered. If Durham had municipal or economic sin, it was tobacco. But the prophet skirted that sin.

* * * *

Now you have our ailment in this section. The sin of us Southern white people is that we don't see our sin. The other day in Goldsboro Bishop Edwin A. Penick at an interracial commission's meeting suggested that we Southern people stop dealing as Southerners with the Negro and deal as Christians with him. That man was talking, not about our liquor drinking, or card-playing or even our voting on those issues. He was naming our vice, our besetting sin. There is nothing more pathetic than the spectacle of Christian ministers defending the unchristian mores of their community. We have a Southern morality which feels a duty to defend itself against Northern morality. Remember our furious feeling in the celebrated Gaston Means case? We were not greatly concerned over the allegations of murder against him. What we resented was the Yankee obtrusion into our affairs.

* * * *

The other day Allen A. Stockdale made a prayer. It is worth tearing from these pages and keeping. "Dear Lord of newness and beauty," he said with deep humility, "have compassion upon me for the anger that burns in my soul when I see a rummage-sale sign on a Christian church. Thou didst give Thy life and love for a cruel world that a God of power and beauty might be revealed. We are so stingy, thoughtless and selfish that we give second-hand articles to be sold to support Thy church dedicated to worship and service. God forgive and transform the men of our age who will permit their women to be forced so to raise money in the name of religion. Amen."

There may not have been a dancer, a card-player, a liquor-drinker or a Sabbath breaker among that congregation, but rummage-sale religion can be made worse than secularism and sottishness ever will be.

Fair Enough

By
Westbrook Pegler

Back In 1937.

I HAVE BEEN having a good laugh over the plight of Hugo Bloh, that smart operator who moved in quietly and started buying up jobs back in 1937, when labor finally put over the proposition that a job is property. Hugo had a little money at the time and he began with a couple of itinerants working in a paper-box factory in Jersey City who were fixing to quit, anyway, and go somewhere else. They didn't know that they had any property right in their job, so, naturally, when Hugo offered them three dollars each, they took it and thought he was crazy.

But Hugo drew up bills of sale and next day when the boss of the plant was about to pick two new men out of the line at the gate, Hugo showed up with the documents and said, "Just a minute, Brother. Those jobs are my property."

The boss was half crazy, anyway, from people with Government badges coming around and telling him what he couldn't do, so he backed away, and Hugo rented the jobs to a couple of hungry workmen at the rate of a dollar a week each. Operating around factory gates, Hugo soon had several hundred jobs in hand, and business was growing so fast that he opened an office and hired a lawyer, although before doing that, he made the attorney sign over the job to him.

• • • •

THEN THE ATTORNEY got looking through the new laws from Washington and decided that Hugo ought to register his property with the recorder of deeds in the county seat wherever the jobs were situated.

From that point on business just pyramided. Hugo had scouts now who would tip him off whenever some man or woman was about to quit or had been fired or laid off for any reason. The people had heard that jobs were property, but they didn't put much stock in the idea, because they weren't used to it.

Hugo would offer a dollar or two and to a person who was about to quit or lose out, anyway, that was just so much velvet. In no time he had 10,000 jobs rented out at from one to three dollars a week, and from that he went on to 100,000, and eventually to more than 2,000,000 jobs, scattered all over the country. He had offices in all the big cities, and, owing to a peculiarity of the labor laws supporting the property right of a man who owned a job, he had the Government working for him as a collection agency.

The Department of Labor didn't like the idea, but Hugo's lawyer went down to Washington and showed them in the book where the jobs were the property of the one who owned them, no matter how many jobs he had or how he got them. The Government was bound to protect this property right, so the Department of Labor had to establish a check-off system in thousands of plants to collect the job rent every pay day from the lessees of Hugo's jobs and turn the money over to Hugo.

IN 1942 Hugo paid the greatest income tax in history and bought the old Rockefeller place at Tarrytown for a country home. He bought a yacht so big that even the lifeboats carried lifeboats, and got married and divorced three times in a year. And when he went to the races, he would bet so much in the mutuels that the odds would just vanish, and he would take down less than his own taw, even when he won, owing to the deduction of the percentage.

Then it happened. Some little counter hopper working in one of Hugo's rented jobs was reading law at night school, and one night he happened to wonder if Hugo paid any property tax on all those jobs. He had paid his income taxes all right, but the counter hopper discovered that the property tax had never been paid. Hugo tried to bluff him, then buy him in, but the counter hopper was sore and wouldn't do business. So all over the country the assessors and collectors moved in on Hugo, and now he is indicted in 50 different places, and sure to get plenty of years, because it never occurred to him that private property has to pay taxes, even if it's jobs.

And, funniest part of it all, the Government moved in, paid all these local taxes and took over the jobs. So here we are now in Mr. Roosevelt's fourth term, with practically all the private jobs in the country turned over to the Job Department, under Jim Farley, at a rental of from 50 cents to $20 a week.

You don't own a job now. You rent it from the U. S. A., and, my God, how the money rolls in!

Imaginary Interviews: Al Smith and Mussolini.

Al—So your Italian press hasn't been printing much recent news from the United States either!

• • • •

Mussolini—We get all the news from your country, but so much is going on there that it is hard for Europe to keep track of it.

Al—It's even hard for America to keep track of it. Well, Duce, I'm glad to meet you. Your record as a man of action has interested me for years.

Mussolini—I never let opposition develop. A leader of a great nation must be the boss. He should not even trust his closest associates.

Al—I found that out!

• • • •

Mussolini—I tell you democracies are doomed. Life is too complex. There must be one man with supreme authority. America is a republic and what is its condition today?

Al—Nobody can find that out, brother. Still, I believe in the rule of the people.

Mussolini—The people have ruled America and what is the result? Are you satisfied?

Al—Let's not make this personal, Duce.

• • • • •

Mussolini—What your country needs is a dictator.

Al—Don't worry; she's got one!

• • • • •

Mussolini—Signor Smith, you and I both came from the people. We have much in common. You began life in the old Empire State fish market and became head of the Fulton Building and then . . .

Al—You're a little mixed up, Duce. It was the Fulton fish market and the Empire State Building.

Al—No, but there was a time during the depression when I would have been glad to see one there. Say, Duce, how's the baby campaign coming on?

Mussolini—It is what you call terrific. Italy must have a higher birth rate. Children mean everything to a nation. Do you not emphasize the importance of babies in your country?

Al—Well, there's a big drive on there now to put some on the bench.

• • • •

Mussolini—By the way, what exactly is the goal of President Roosevelt in your country?

Al—I don't know; I've been away two weeks. Lissen, Duce, do you anticipate a war in Europe?

Mussolini—I am determined to prevent war in Europe if it takes my last bombing squadron. You are lucky in America to be immune from all war.

Al—Immune from all war! Say, Duce, you should've been with the Liberty League in that last campaign!

Britain Turns West

Coronation Incidents, Imperial Conference Reports Indicate Switch In English Thinking From Europe To U. S., Dominions.

By Europax.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

London.

HALF HIDDEN by the indescribably colorful pageantry of the coronation, all but overlooked beneath the essentially English aspect of the ceremonial and the imposingly British air of the Imperial Conference that followed it, a fact of vital significance to America is now just beginning to emerge. It is this: the diplomatic consultations and negotiations that accompanied the coronation and are still continuing will go a long way toward deciding the question, "Can the United States keep out of the next European war?"

Obviously, the actual decision as to whether America will go to war will be taken in Washington, not London. But it is equally clear that the most important foreign factor in that decision will be the position of Great Britain.

One thing is certain. The United States will have little or no difficulty in keeping out of a war confined to the Continent of Europe, a war in which England and the British Empire are not directly concerned. If Britain and the empire—which, it must be remembered, includes America's other half, Canada—can keep clear of strictly European imbroglios, then the United States should be able easily to remain neutral. Once the empire enters the fray, however, the whole business of being a neutral becomes infinitely involved and complicated, if not downright impossible.

Conference In London Important For Washington.

THAT IS WHY the imperial conference and the other diplomatic conversations between the British government and representatives of various continental nations are of intense importance to Washington even though apparently centered in London. Briefly, these issues may be summarized and simplified into two elemental questions:

1. Must Britain fight Italy in the Mediterranean?

2. Should England give Germany a "free hand" in eastern Europe?

There are many responsible and well-informed observers in Europe who feel that eventually a conflict between Italian and British imperialism is inevitable. Britain considers the Mediterranean an indispensable link with the empire, a highway to Australia, India and New Zealand which must be kept clear. Italy, on the other hand, undoubtedly dreams of resurrecting the old Roman empire, which would mean Italian domination of the Mediterranean and Italian territorial expansion around its shores, particularly toward Egypt and Palestine.

Does Mussolini really entertain such imperialistic ambitions? Or is he now completely satisfied with having acquired Ethiopia?

Opinions on this point differ radically. Here in London, very few people, even in governmental circles, will admit the hypothesis of an Anglo-Italian conflict. There is a certain, small, but important group, however, which takes a serious view of Mussolini's refusal to be represented at the coronation, his recall of Italian newspaper correspondents from London, his anti-English campaign in the Italian press. Some of the dominion premiers likewise wanted the matter thrashed out frankly, and accordingly it formed a considerable part of the imperial conference's discussions on what was euphemistically termed "imperial defense questions."

Anglo-Italian Conflict A Concern Of Continent.

ON THE CONTINENT, too, the possibility of an Anglo-Italian conflict has been receiving serious attention lately. In Paris, governmental and diplomatic quarters have become deeply concerned over the problem. This anxiety has been partly relieved by Count Ciano's recent statement, which was definitely conciliatory and seemed to hold out an olive branch to Britain and Europe generally—though this olive branch was rather obviously extented on the point of a bayonet.

My own conclusion, drawn from consultation with an Italian observer who knows Fascist Italy intimately, is that for the present Mussolini has no intention of precipitating a war with England. He has his hands full with Ethiopia and Spain, and with the economic difficulties of Italy itself.

But at the same time it is clear that both the Duce and the Vatican are aiming at the reconstruction of the Holy Roman Empire in the entire eastern half of the Mediterranean. Probably this project is not immediate. Italy's entrenchment in the Balearic Islands, however, makes it impossible to exclude absolutely the eventuality of a sudden effort to wrest Mediterranean hegemony from Britain before British rearmament is completed.

By the Berlin-Rome axis," this Mediterranean problem is linked to the second question, that of Germany. It has been openly suggested in the English press that Mussolini pointed out to Hitler the advantages of excluding Britain from the eastern Mediterranean, which would make it impossible for Britain to intervene effectively by sea against German expansion eastward toward the Black Sea.

South Africa Declared Urging East For Hitler.

THE INDICATIONS are, however, that Herr Hitler does not see things quite that way. His desire for a free hand in central and eastern Europe, as far as Britain is concerned, has a stronger ally and advocate than Italy—the dominions, and especially South Africa. Instead of restoring her former African colonies to Germany, why not leave her free to extend her "sphere of influence" eastward in Europe?

But of course the question is not so simple as that for England. There is the League of Nations for one thing. What becomes of collective security—or what is left of it after Ethiopia—if Britain makes it clear she will not go to war over Czechoslovakia? Thus far she has not taken this step, but it can be stated that the British government politely but very firmly refused the urgent requests of Czechoslovakia and Austria put forward in London during the coronation, for an undertaking or even a formal declaration as to the maintenance of the status quo in central Europe.

As on the Mediterranean question, opinion here is divided on the German question. There is the Garvinian school, which agrees with Garvin's demands in the Observer for an accord with the Reich at any cost. England, he says, must make it plain to France that she can only expect British help on the Rhine if French alliances with Russia and Czechoslovakia are abandoned, the "encirclement" of Germany ended.

On the other side is the Edenian school, the supporters of Geneva, who maintain that the only hope of Britain keeping out of a European war is to prevent any war by reinforcing collective security under the League Covenant. For the moment it seems evident that although nominally British allegiance to the League system of collective security has been reaffirmed, actually it is the "free hand" policy that has made most real progress of late. The more Italy menaces in the Mediterranean, the closer England tends to draw to Germany.

British Empire Seen Withdrawing From Europe.

CONSULATIONS with the dominions and negotiations with the continental European powers still continue, with no definite answer to either question in sight as yet. Taking the long view, however, it is possible to conclude that the diplomatic activity in London in connection with the coronation revealed an embryonic but unmistakable trend on the part of the whole British Empire—England included—to withdraw, insofar as is possible, from Europe and to turn toward America.

In the end this tendency toward closer union of the English-speaking peoples should prove to be the best means, not only of keeping the British Empire and the United States out of war, but also of preserving peace in Europe as well.

The Need For Collaboration.

THE WAR and the trend of conditions in Europe after the war threw the European nations into the vortex of regeneration which, in many places, took on the form of a serious crisis. These profound changes vary in different states. Hence these differing regimes, these different developments, these divergences—and, of course, these easily-provoked disputes. We must understand this properly, we must have a complete grasp of these circumstances and, of course, we must be tolerant of them. We must not impose our ideas and our conditions on anyone, nor can we, of course, allow others to conduct themselves otherwise with regard to us. This means mutual respect and abstention from interference in the internal affairs of another state.

Our state and our nation, of course, like the others, has its own traditions, its social structure, its historical development, its special conditions and its individual needs—and it is precisely to this that our regime and conditions correspond: our democratic system, our regime of the collaboration of all political parties, liberty of conscience, religious toleration, justice in nationality affairs, development towards an ever greater degree of social justice, an economic development permanently adapted to modern requirements, the acceptance by the state of new economic, social and cultural functions. The moral and philosophical basis of this regime is the recognition of the principles of the equality of humanity, of the equality of nations, the principles of modern, mature democracy, humanitarian ideals in international contacts, the endeavor to preserve peace through effective work in building up a firm, national democratic army.

I would like, very calmly, unaggressively, and, while avoiding polemics, very emphatically to declare this. I am well aware—and all of you also know it—that during the 19 years of the republic's existence some of us, here and there, have doubted this. There have been attempts at communism, there have been attempts at emphasizing authoritative ideology. When, however, you regard this calmly, objectively, without excitement and without anger, you must admit that matters could not have been otherwise than they have been in our country, that these attempts have been direct errors, and if repeated in the future, would still be errors, and that our deepest instincts, the iron laws of our development and our national and state structure, demand that we should continue on our way. Thus, today, I regard all those recent struggles and discussions as finished, as left behind us. If in these matters we look ahead, calmly, objectively and with firm decision, we shall not, and we cannot be, in doubt.

PRECISELY for this reason I would like any discussion of this among us to be calm, material, so that we might fully and definitively trust to this and conduct our internal policy according to it. In our case it is impossible to exclude, from work in the government, isolate or overlook any important fraction of the nation. That would be politically intolerable and unhealthy from the point of view of the state. We shall thus proceed quietly in our home policy as in the past, in an understanding social policy, in an understanding cultural and religious policy without cultural struggles, in an understanding nationality policy, realizing firmly and step by step what the government agreed to and decided on in February, in an understanding policy for agriculture, labor, commerce and industry—for this we already have a path to follow which has justified itself. And chiefly—calmness and good nerves, so that we should always evade useless quarrels; our press should keep itself in order and adapt everything to the purpose of being calmer, more material, more conciliatory, so as to avoid nervousness, to instruct the population and not to excite it unnecessarily. All this applies in a still greater degree to foreign policy.

I would like to state that despite a certain tension and the feverish diplomatic negotiations of recent times, I do not believe in any danger of war. The critical year 1936 has been passed. The disputes which are now the subject of foreign policies are not of a character to provoke war during a reasonable time. This affords us time to re-enforce and definitively consolidate peace endeavors and the forces of peace.

I would like to characterize the present situation in foreign policy as a period of transition. It is a fact that, in a series of questions, the League of Nations has been defeated and that, to a certain degree, we have returned to the period of the prewar policy of rivalry between the great powers. The whole of the international policy of today is characterized by the grouping of the great powers and their preparations for positions either for economic and financial negotiations, for the negotiation of a western pact, or for negotiations concerning colonies or other problems. The statements suggesting that these or those groups especially of the smaller states are transferring from one camp to another are not true. There are, rather, longings, endeavors and efforts on the part of these groups not to participate in, and to withdraw from the rivalry of the great powers, or not to become involved therein and to stand apart. That is a comprehensible phenomenon on the part of small and weak states.

IDEOLOGICAL FRONTS are talked of in foreign politics. Our endeavor must be to avoid this as far as possible. Our policy has always been to seek agreement with any state without regard to its regime, its home policy and the political parties which are momentarily in power in the government. For this reason also, we have frequently declared that we are against the creation of ideological fronts and therefore, also the Little Entente has, on several occasions, emphatically passed resolutions not to participate in any ideological front.

Otherwise, our foreign policy has its system of treaties completed, has its friends with whom we are in agreement on questions affecting our republic, and in questions affecting other states we do not interfere, so far as those questions do not arise from the League of Nations and in so far as we are bound thereto by our duty to Geneva. For the rest, we adhere to our existing friendships to the policy of the League of Nations and to our Little Entente duties. There is nothing in all this, however, to forbid us from coming to an agreement with our neighbors, with Germany, Poland, Hungary or other states. I regard the present time as a period of transition the end of which will be certain settlement between the great powers in which the small and medium states will also participate.

In my opinion it is absolutely senseless to speak of any attempts at the isolation of this or that state. I do not know of a state in Europe which has not already been or is today, isolated in one sense or another; in another sense, again, some other state is isolated and tomorrow or the day after is no longer isolated. This is really a characteristic of the present age—these rapid changes of momentary constellations and of apparently threatening relations. A good foreign policy must visualize the permanent forces and the permanent possibilities and their further possible development; it must await this development of the situation, it must remain calm and maintain steady nerves and at the same time must exert itself for mutual pacification, and seek paths to collaboration despite the passing difficulties of any given moment. For this reason also we quietly await further developments in Central Europe, being willing to collaborate with all who desire the collaboration. We exclude no one from this collaboration in Central Europe for no one can be excluded from it, and this applies to us also. Such exclusion is absolutely impossible.

Human Nature

Anecdotes.

The Rev. Dr. Edgar Jones, addressing a St. Louis meeting, said: "The preacher of today needs the courage of a lion, the skin of a hippopotamus, the endurance of a camel, the sagacity of an elephant, the patience of a donkey, and as many lives as a cat." Which means, of course, that success requires a combination of qualities. But I would add that the best six points in six great animals must be all united in one man, and even then he would need a human heart and divine help.

One old maid, asked why she never married, said she had a chimney that smoked, a parrot that swore, and a cat that stayed out all night. Again a union of qualities to make one husband.

U. S., Canadian Trade Mounts 149 Million Under Agreement

Provinces Import $57,000,000 More During First Year Of Pact While States' Purchases Increase By $92,000,000.

Strong support for its advocacy of reciprocal trade agreements was found by the State Department yesterday in a published analysis of Canadian-American trade during the first full year under the reciprocal agreement between the two countries. The treaty went into effect January 1, 1936. The analysis was prepared by an interdepartmental committee from the State, Commerce and Agriculture departments and the Tariff Commission.

Canada's imports from the United States during the year reached a total of $370,000,000, an increase of more than $57,000,000 over 1935. Imports by the United States from Canada, in the same period, rose to $378,000,000, which was $92,000,000 more than in the previous year. The balance of trade between the two countries thus favored Canada, when value alone is considered.

The analysis report said that without overlooking the many other factors which influence international trade, "the stimulation of a trade agreement upon the total trade between the two agreement countries can be judged to some extent against the background movement of their trade with third countries."

Canada Buys 18 Per Cent More.

"During 1936 Canadian imports from the United States showed an increase of 18 per cent over 1935, as compared with an increase of 12 per cent in imports from all other countries. The United States, on the other hand, took 32 per cent more goods (in value) from Canada in 1936 than in 1935, while imports from all other countries were only 17 per cent larger. Thus it is to be assumed that the agreement has been one of the factors that enabled each country to improve its relative position as a supplier of the other country's market."

The report conceded that several factors contributed to the increased imports by Canada, including the greater purchasing power in Canada resulting in part from increased exports to the United States and in part from the recovery of business activities, and including also rising price levels. However, it termed significant the fact that imports from this country of products on which reduction in duties or customs valuations were granted by Canada, showed the greatest increase, $38,000,000 out of the total increase of $57,000,000. The percentage of increase for this group was more than 30 per cent, as against 11 per cent for all other commodities.

The increase in Canadian imports was especially notable in certain fresh vegetables, cotton piece goods, cotton and rayon wearing apparel, rubber and paper products, iron and steel products, automobiles and various types of machinery.

Drought a Factor.

Largely the same factors affected United States imports from Canada, it was pointed out, including increasing business activity, the drought of 1936 and rising prices. The gain in business activity created a heavy demand for raw materials and the drought caused temporary shortages of certain farm products.

Notable increases were reported in imports of whisky, cattle weighing more than 700 pounds, softwood lumber, cheddar cheese, certain fish, maple sugar and seed potatoes. Drought conditions in Canada cut exports of some feedstuffs.

Whisky imports showed the largest gain of all products on which this country reduced duties, an increase from $14,000,000 in 1935 to $28,000,000 in 1936. The duty reduction was from $5 to $2.50 per gallon on spirits at least 4 years old. The increase in whisky imports alone was greater than the excess of Canadian exports over imports in the trade between the two countries.

Imports from Canada of products on which free entry was bound in the agreement, increased $25,000,000, or 20 per cent, in the year. No direct stimulation to such trade is given by the treaty, except that long-term contracts for future shipment may be made without fear of tariff changes, and this increase is largely attributed to economic recovery in this country. Of the increase, $14,000,000 was in newsprint paper alone.

Of dutiable products not covered in the treaty, wheat showed the largest gain in the imports from Canada. Higher prices for wheat, resulting primarily from drought conditions, caused a gain in imports of some $12,500,000, despite the tariff of 42 cents a bushel.

St. Alban's Head Will Receive D. D.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, May 27.—An honorary degree of doctor of divinity will be conferred upon the Rev. Albert Lucas, headmaster of St. Alban's School, by St. John's College, it was announced here today.

Ceremonies at which the degree will be conferred will be held June 9. The resignation of Dr. Paul Allen as acting dean of the school was announced today.

Dr. Allen, who was appointed dean in February, informed Brig. Gen. Amos W. W. Woodcock, president of the college, he was resigning in order to devote his full time to his professorship in chemistry.

Constitution Approved For U. of Va. Congress

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., May 27.—At a meeting of representatives of the three political parties, held in Madison Hall, the Little Congress at the University of Virginia became a permanent organization with the formal approval of a constitution.

Members of the executuve council which will govern the future activities of the Little Congress are: Right Party, Samuel Culberton, of New York City; Thomas D. Morris, of Richmond Terrace, Staten Island, N. Y., and Frank H. Platt 2d, of Rye, N. Y.; Center Party, John G. Rust, Coweta, Okla.; R. Bolling Lambeth, of Bedford, Va., and James E. Phi Beta Kappa Elects 11 Members at U. of Va.

Charlottesville, Va., May 27.—Eleven new members have been elected to the University of Virginia chapter of Phi Beta Kappa from the college of arts and sciences, according to Dean W. S. Rodman, of the department of engineering, who is secretary of the Beta of Virginia chapter.

$1,000 Aviation Prize Fails to Draw Pilots

New Market, Va., May 27 (AP).—The $1,000 prize offered by Endless Caverns, Inc., to the pilot who this summer will smash the international 100-kilometer (62.13 miles) airplane speed record on the course here is going begging.

The resort management, whose air activities are directed by Ben King, of Washington, had hoped that Frank Hawks would make a try for the money, and was frankly disappointed at his announcement following a crack-up that he was through with record flying.

Frederick G. O. P. Picks Candidates

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., May 27.—In hurried convention here last night the Republicans nominated Roy L. Leatherman, merchant, as their candidate for mayor in the June election to oppose Mayor Lloyd C. Culler, Democrat.

Jesse Shafer was nominated for city register and the following were chosen candidates for aldermen: Edward P. Oden, Phillip T. Kuhn, Franklin N. Miller, Mehrl Leather and Chester G. Baker.

They will oppose the Democratic candidates nominated Tuesday night.

Gen. Atkinson, 89, Pays Scant Heed to Birthday

Petersburg, Va., May 27 (AP).—Gen. Homer Atkinson, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, paid scant heed to the celebration of his eighty-ninth birthday at his home here today. In fact, he said, "There is no celebration and what news is there in a birthday, anyway?"

Nevertheless, he began receiving visitors, messages and gifts today, and expressed appreciation at being remembered.

2 New Utilities Seeking Review On Power Loan

By the Associated Press.

The 3-year-old legal battle over constitutionality of Government loans and grants for publicly-owned plants flared anew yesterday in the Supreme Court.

Two utility concerns—the Alabama Power Co., and the Iowa City Light & Power Co.—asked the high tribunal to review a decision by the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia refusing to enjoin the Government from financing municipal projects in Alabama and Iowa with public works or relief funds.

Simultaneously, the Tennessee Electric Power Co., and 18 other utilities submitted a plea to the court. They urged the tribunal to deny an appeal by the Tennessee Valley Authority from a ruling by the Sixth Circuit Court, which directed that a trial be held before the eastern Tennessee Federal District Court to determine TVA's right to continue operations in eight States.

If the justices agree to pass on the controverssy over Federal financing of municipal plants, arguments will be heard next fall preparatory to a final decision. If a review is denied, the ruling of the circuit court in favor of the Government will remain in effect.

Secretary Ickes, the public works administrator, said the action would affect 54 public power projects held up by litigation. The Government has provided $51,000,000 for these projects, he added.

Should the court review the TVA dispute, the arguments in the fall on that case would center on whether the circuit court acted correctly in returning the case to the district court for trial. If a review is denied, the district court trial would be in order.

Martin Assails 'Ford Fascism' As Riot Cause

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, May 27.—Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, declared tonight "the principal Fordism of the Ford Motor Co. is "fascism" and charged that "paid thugs and mobsters" were responsible for the beating of union members at the gates of the Rouge plant.

Martin issued his statement after an official investigator said evidence justifying warrants against the attackers in yesterday's riot has been obtained and they would be sought if the participants could be identified.

John Gillespie, former Detroit police comissioner and now on the staff of the Ford service department, which polices the company's property, conferred for an hour this evening with the union president.

Ford Assails Newspapers.

Gillespie would not discuss their session, but Martin said it concerned the strike-closed Ford assembly plant at Richmond, Calif. The union chief said "we anticipate that the Richmond strike will be settled in the near future."

Meanwhile, the Ford company, in a formal statement, attributed the riot to unidentified newspapers and the U. A. W.

The statement follows:

"The demonstration on Wednesday against Ford workmen on Ford property was staged by newspapers which, for the last six months, have demanded the production of a 'Ford strike story' and by the U. A. W., which required some dramatic occurrence to cover up its conspicuous failure to influence Ford employes.

"The raiders were accompanied by Government men from Washington, whose utmost efforts for several months have failed to involve the Ford Motor Co. in irregularities affecting labor or otherwise.

"An attempt was made to attack a peaceable body of Ford workmen, and was repulsed * * *."

Asks Investigation.

Duncan C. McCrea, Wayne County prosecutor, asserting he was informed some of the Ford Co.'s "private police" were involved, asked Mayor John L. Carey, of Dearborn, to "make a complete and impartial investigation of this entire affair and bring to this office all of the parties involved in the riot."

The nearly 90,000 workers at the Rouge plant went to work on day and night shifts today without interference. U. A. W. A. members made no attempt to resume distribution of their "Union or Fordism" leaflets.

At least 18 union members, including two high officials and eight women, nursed injuries received when they were repulsed in 15 minutes of hand-to-hand fighting. The union reported two other persons were beaten by eight men armed with blackjacks today near the big Ford Rouge plant.

A. F. L. Opens Drive.

Richmond, Calif., May 27 (AP).—Two American Federation of Labor unions moved today to invade a chosen field of the Committee for Industrial Organization by bidding workers of the strike-bound Ford motor plant here to join the A. F. of L.

Mass meetings were called for tomorrow by the Automobile Mechanics Union and the International Association of Machinists, both A. F. of L. affiliates, to give Ford employes the opportunity to vote on application.

Maj. Broderick's Funeral Tomorrow

Requiem mass will be celebrated for Maj. John A. Braderick, Quartermaster Reserve, United States Army, tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at the Walter Reed Chapel, Chaplain Patrick J. Ryan officiating. Maj. Broderick died at Walter Reed Hospital on Tuesday. He was 60 years old.

A native of New York City, he was appointed captain, Quartermaster Section, Officers Reserve Corps, in 1917, and advanced to lieutenant colonel, and honorably discharged after a year overseas during the war. After serving five years in the Regular Army, he resigned in 1925, retiring to his home in Jefferson Valley, N. Y.

Burial will be in Section 7 of Arlington Cemtery with military honors, following the services.

A son, Thomas Broderick, of New York City, and two grandchildren survive.

Chicken-Killers May Be Licensed

In an attempt to bring about more sanitary conditions in chicken-slaughtering houses, the District Health Department announced yesterday it may force licenses upon them.

The number of small neighborhood grocery stores and markets wherein chickens are killed daily was estimated by Dr. R. R. Ashworth, director of the food inspection service, at "hundreds."

Tribute Arranged For Peace Heroes

Miss Josephine Roche, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; Senator James Pope and Representatives Robert G. Allen and H. Jerry Voorhis will lead the District of Columbia in tribute to the heroes of peace at the fourth Memorial Day service today at 8 p. m. in front of the Public Health Service Building, Constitution avenue, between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets, it was announced yesterday by the Washington Youth Council, sponsor of the service.

Watson Davis, director of Science Service, will preside. Representatives of the local fire and police departments will read the roll of honor of the firemen and policemen who have died in line of duty during the past year. Mrs. Ruby Smith Stahl, director of the A Cappella Choir of the First Congregational Church, will lead the singing.

The purpose of the ceremony is to pay tribute to District firemen, policemen, doctors, nurses and all persons who in times of peace sacrifice their lives in service to their fellowmen. The peace action committee of the Washington Youth Council, headed by Herbert Hines, jr., is arranging the service.

Restaurant Is Denied Picketing Injunction

An injunction to prevent picketing by union groups before a restaurant at Fourteenth and Harvard streets northwest was denied by Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue in District Court yesterday. The injunction was sought by Phillip George Stuobis, owner of the restaurant, through Attorney Raymond Gittleman.

Members of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes Union, No. 781, and the Bartenders Union, No. 75, have been picketing the restaurant since charges of antiunion discrimination were first raised a month ago. The two unions were represented in court by Thomas Brode.

Ex-Dean Faces Trial on June 3 In Attack Case

Is Charged With Intent to Murder Former School Cashier.

By the Associated Press.

Greenfield, Mass., May 27.—Held in $10,000 bail, white-haired Thomas E. Elder, former dean of Mount Hermon School for Boys, tonight faced trial on a charge of assault with intent to murder another former official of the school.

In a packed courtroom today, the 60-year-old educator and cattle authority listened calmly while his counsel, Charles R. Fairhurst, entered a plea of innocence i his behalf to the charge accusing him of threatening F. Allan Norton, a former Mount Hermon official, with a shotgun Tuesday night.

His gray suit rumpled after a night in a police cell, Elder sat unsmiling in the prisoner's cage as Fairhurst waived reading of the complaint and asked for an early hearing. District Court Judge Philip Ball set the bail after Assistant District Attorney Henry P. Herr asserted:

"This case possesses very serious possibilities. It is not a trivial affair in any sense of the word."

Dean and Cashier.

Elder was dean and Norton cashier at the Northfield, Mass., school two years ago last September, when scholarly Dr. Elliott Speer, 36-year-old headmaster, was slain by shotgun slugs fired through his library window.

Despite a long investigation by State detectives, Dr. Speer's slayer never was found nor was the weapon that killed him ever located.

Here in the same courthouse where Elder was arraigned today, both the former dean and Norton appeared as witnesses at the inquest into Dr. Speer's death.

Unable to raise bail immediately, Elder was whisked to Franklin County Jail. There he will remain until next Thursday unless Fairhurst succeeds in raising the money.

Meanwhile, the State's investigators, headed by Capt. John F. Stokes, chief of Massachusetts detectives, continued their hunt for witnesses to support Norton's contention that Elder was the man who stepped from the shadows beside his garage, pulled a shotgun from under his coat and said:

"Norton, I want to see you."

Norton said he fled from the garage through a connecting door into his home, slammed the door shut against the invader, and called police. He said he believed the man fled.

Elder was brought here last night from his home at Alton, N. H., after waiving extradition. To newsmen, he volunteered the information he was 40 miles from Greenfield, in a Keene, N. H., hotel with his wife when Norton was threatened. "I was not in Greenfield that night, and, for that matter, I was not in Massachusetts."

GLAD IT'S HERE

"NEW RUM MEANS SO MUCH TO THE VIRGIN ISLANDERS I'M GLAD I COULD BRING IT TO NEW YORK"

THE STORY BEHIND THE RUM

Soon after the U.S. bought the Virgin Islands in 1917, prohibition cut off the Islands' income from their 200-year-old art of making fine rum. Low point was 1930. Destitution was widespread. Something had to be done. It was. The Federal emergency relief organization stepped in to put the Islands on a self-supporting basis, formed the Virgin Islands Company. Idea was to stop the need for growing Federal subsidies and give work instead of charity. Private capital was invited to set up a large scale distillery — seas invited for 3 years — wasn't interested. Out of necessity, a distillery was bought, started operations in 1934. The idle of the Islands were called off relief rolls onto payrolls at honest work. The rum they've been making is called Government House, as fine a rum as distilling science can produce.

"Jungle Depths of Borneo"

Mrs. Martin Johnson, seated in the cockpit of her plane, applied a touch or two of make-up for the benefit of the curious native who looks over her shoulder in apparent disapproval of such fastidiousness in the jungle.

Business Levy Appears Major RevenueSource

House Group Approves Tax on Income, Trade, but Rejects Sales Plan.

House limits new taxes to $6,149,000 and the District supply bill is adopted finally with a deficit of $7,500,000 or more.

Each 5-cent increase in the present $1.50 rate, he said, would raise about $600,000.

The District Commissioners were allowed only until next Tuesday to submit the new tax program to the Kennedy sub-committee.

The major task before the Commissioners is to draft income and business privilege taxes that will raise an estimated $3,649,000 in accordance with the edict of the Kennedy sub-committee.

As previous estimates on these taxes have greatly exceeded this amount, the only solution appears to be a reduction in the rates on both.

Thus the income tax, instead of following the scale of the Federal levy, probably will be much lighter, and the business privilege tax, instead of carrying a 1 per cent gross receipts tax, which would raise $6,000,000, will be well under that.

Former estimates of the revenue to be raised from the income tax have been in the neighborhood of $5,000,000. This revenue, however, would be offset by the loss of $2,500,000 now obtained from intangible personal property.

Would Exempt President.

It is expected the Commissioners will follow up their own suggestion the intangible personal property tax be retained until the validity of the income tax is established. The decision was left to them by the House sub-committee.

The consensus of the sub-committee yesterday was that the income tax should include all persons who receive incomes in the District, save the President and members of the Federal judiciary. They expressed the opinion Federal employes should be taxed, regardless of the legal doubts of the corporation counsel.

The business privilege tax bill probably will carry a general revision upward of all license fees, as the sub-committee was especially critical of the low fees on places of amusement, the Washington baseball park and parking lots.

A gross receipts tax of even one-half of 1 per cent would raise an estimated $3,000,000 in addition to the license fees, so that it is unlikely that the rate will be fixed any higher than that by the House sub-committee.

$5 to $12 Automobile Levy.

The weight tax on motor vehicles as approved would place a minimum tax of $5 on smaller passenger motor vehicles, with the scale going upward to $12. Commercial vehicles would be taxed much higher.

The estate and inheritance tax, which is expected to raise $800,000, will lenable the District to collect 80 per cent of the inheritance levies now collected by the Federal Government, and assess estates that fall below the Federal minimum as well.

The insurance tax is an increase from 1½ to 2 per cent on premiums. It is expected to raise an additional $200,000.

Big Soil Operators Will Be Penalized

a careful study of the question of large benefit payments and, if it chooses, provide for a system of downward graduations on payments to large producers.

"A real problem is involved because of the difficulty of carrying on any farm production or soil conservation program through a legislative plan which leaves out the largest producers.

"This is a proper subject for legislative consideration and the Department of Agriculture will welcome guidance of Congress concerning it."

In a recent press conference the Secretary had indicated great concern with this problem, first raised a year ago by Senator Arthur Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, when he called for and obtained publicity on recipients of large AAA checks.

H. R. Tolley, AAA administrator, verified last night the impression given by the Secretary's statement, that extensive studies had been made by AAA experts with a view to such graduation of payments. Apparently, however, it was decided origination of the policy had best be left to Congress.

The question at issue, as outlined by Wallace at his conference, is whether reduction of payments to large producers would result in their nonparticipation in a farm program to such an extent as to imperil that program.

In adopting an attitude favorable to penalization of size, Wallace took a position advocated by the Southern "agrarians," a group of Southern writers and economists insistent upon emphasis upon agriculture as "a mode of life," rather than purely an industry. They previously have been critical of Wallace.

Preoccupation with Southern problems generally was evident throughout Wallace's appearance. His advocacy of a single landlord-tenant benefit ratio for the Nation was aimed directly at the South, where AAA rules have been granted tenants and sharecroppers a much smaller share of benefit payments than elsewhere.

Again, he bespoke support of tobacco and cotton growers for the bill. Many of them are dubious as to its value. So long as they sell in a world market, they feel they are at the mercy of world prices. Wallace agreed these growers have been victimized by "the tariff policy followed by this Nation since 1920."

House, Senate Group Splits on Reorganization

bitter battles and in some instances, possibly defeats, are expected to include a bill to place all Government nonpolicy-determining employes under a single administrator who will act as the Civil Service Commission now does; six new assistant secretaries to the President, "with a passion for anonymity;" the departmental and commission reorganization setup, including two new Cabinet posts, Social Welfare and Conservation, and the revised setup of the General Accounting Office, giving it only post-audit powers on Government disbursements.

The House is particularly keen to defeat the civil service measure, which would strip Congress of patronage-dispensing power, as the only appointive posts would be the very top offices, over which the President has authority.

In both House and Senate any attempt to change the powerful "Treasury watchdog" position of the G. A. O. will be fought, it is already apparent.

Senator Harry F. Byrd (Democrat), Virginia, meanwhile indicated he will pursue his lone course as a sponsor of stringent economy and drastic retrenchment in Federal reorganization. He has already introduced a bill to consolidate the Home Owners' Loan Corporation and the Federal Housing Administration with intent to save about $25,000,000.

On Tuesday he will introduce a second bill of a series he is preparing. This bill will seek to abolish the Reconstruction Finance Corporation at the end of a year, on the basis that its administration cost is $9,500,000 yearly.

Byrd's bills are not expected to win any considerable favor in either House.

The Government reorganization bill is tied up in the fate of the President's court reorganization bill, several Senators asserted yesterday. They pointed to the strong Senate sentiment for an early adjournment, and declared that the entire Congress would adjourn in a few days if the court bill were withdrawn or abandoned definitely, without action on any but necessary appropriation bills.

The House, however, seemingly in a far different and more rebellious temper, as shown in the relief debates, shows no great disposition to adjourn as yet.

Aged Mountaineer's Murder Trial Date Set

Jonesville, Va., May 27 (AP).—Circuit Judge Ezra T. Carter fixed September 20 today for the opening of Green Allen Brooks' trial on a charge of killing Deputy Sheriff Arch Redmond, of Lee County, in July, 1935.

He announced the trial date for the 82-year-old mountaineer after conferring with Commonwealth's Attorney Robert B. Ely, George Cridlin, assisting in the prosecution, and Defense Attorneys Lloyd M. Robinette and W. L. Davidson.

Mrs. Ford to Attend.

Richmond, Va., May 27 (AP).—Mrs. Henry Ford, wife of the Detroit automobile manufacturer, will attend the national meeting of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, it was said here today.

Deaf-Mute Child, Lost Nine Hours, Found in Woods

A tiny child who can neither hear nor speak was found exhausted on a bed of leaves in a Southeast wooded section at 6 a. m. yesterday after more than 200 men had sought her for almost 9 hours.

Bitten by mosquitoes and stiff from the cold and dampness of her primitive bed, Alice Kocher, 2507 Thirty-second street southeast, 3-year-old deaf mute, was found by Policeman R. J. Poquette more than a mile from her home and surrounded by the deep woods.

She had disappeared from her home about 7 p. m. Frantic parents had aroused the neighborhood when she could not be located. More than 20 policemen, 150 CCC boys, and members of the fire rescue squad were summoned to aid in the hunt.

He said he left the other searchers and went by himself, putting to test experience he received with lost persons in the woods near his home in Wisconsin.

AvalancheKills 100 in Mexico As Dam Bursts

One-Third of Mining Town Buried in Flood of Mud and Rocks.

Reyes said the avalanche wiped out a section of the little town known as La Cuadrilla. He asserted more than 100 houses were entirely buried and hundreds more partially buried and damaged.

He said it might be several days before excavators could recover all the bodies. Earlier, company employes reported 29 bodies had been recovered and many more were believed to be still under the mass.

Earlier reports estimated 700 houses, about one-third of Tlalpujahua, had been destroyed.

Red Cross Sends Aid.

The Red Cross dispatched all available ambulances with medical staffs from Mexico City to the scene of the disaster. Executives of the Dos Estrellas company, who had been attending a conference in Mexico City, and Agustin Guzman, general secretary of the mining syndicate, also hastened to Tlalpujahua.

Three days of heavy rains had weakened the dam, Reyes asserted. He said the financial loss to the mining company would be extremely heavy.

Mining authorities believed the disaster, coupled with recent continuing labor troubles, might cause the company to suspend operations. It employs about 5,000 men.

Mining men in Mexico City explained that the Dos Estrellas mines produced almost exclusively gold, and that the gravel and sand which rushed down on the town were "tailings" left after the cyanide gold-washing process.

National Theater Will Take I.O.U.'s Of U. S. Workers

"Pay when you get paid."

So says the National Theater in announcing that "scrip" money—more accurately, I. O. U.'s—will be legal tender at their box-office for the next four days.

"Government employes do not get paid until Tuesday, says Sam Galantry, chief of the Washington division of Columbia Pictures.

"Right now many of them are broke. Let's take their I. O. U.'s—they all have honest faces—and let them see the show over the weekend, paying for it Tuesday."

The plan begins this afternoon, continues through Monday night's performance of "Lost Horizon." From Tuesday on, the management is sticking to Uncle Sam's I. O. U.'s. All the temporarily impecunious Government employe need do is ask for seats, sign his name to the little pink slip and forget the matter—until Tuesday.

There's no red tape, no identification needed, says Galantry, admitting that some of the patrons probably will "forget" to return.

Female Impersonator Found Beaten to Death

New York, May 27 (AP).—Edward F. Dolan, 57-year-old dancer and female impersonator, was found beaten or strangled to death in his apartment today.

Dr. Milton Helpern, assistant medical examiner, said the actor's throat was discolored and swollen and his head badly battered and that death might have resulted from either cause.

Final Tribute Paid by Family To Rockefeller

Cleveland Cemetery Gates Barred for Committal Services.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, May 27.—John D. Rockefeller, sr., who began the accumulation of his vast fortune in Cleveland, rested tonight under an elm tree in Lake View Cemetery—not far from the Forest Hills estate, where in middle life he played his beloved golf.

Two cemetery guards paced the boundaries of the Rockefeller plot, where the 97-year-old financier was buried today between the graves of his wife and his mother. Guards will maintain a watch for the next three months.

A small group of relatives, including John D. Rockefeller, jr., and his five sons, listened today as the Rev. Willard S. Richardson, of New York, an old friend of the family, conducted the brief committal service. Also there were a few members of the Rockefeller household.

Public Barred From Rites.

The gates to the cemetery where many of Cleveland's famous sons are buried were locked as the funeral party arrived at the railroad station. No one was permitted to enter while the ceremony was in progress.

The funeral procession wound along a new boulevard built through the old Forest Hills estate. On one side were the wooded slopes of the estate where Rockefeller tramped; the golf course, where he fought against par for years. On the other was the handsome real estate allotment fathered by the Rockefeller intersts.

Family Grouped at Grave.

Grouped around the grave for the ceremony in addition to the Junior Rockefeller and his sons, John D. 3d, Nelson, David, Winthrop and Laurence, were Mr. and Mrs. E. Parmalee Prentice, son-in-law and daughter of Rockefeller, sr.; Harold F. McCormick, son-in-law of Rockefeller, sr., and other members of the family. also there were John Yordi, nurse-companion to the senior Rockefeller for many years and several other members of the household.

The service itself lasted five minutes. Afterward Rockefeller, jr., and his sons distributed some of the numerous wreaths and floral pieces to other graves in the plot.

Short Balance Plan Made by Treasury

By the Associated Press.

The Treasury revealed yesterday it would operate with the slimmest cash balance in four years until mid-June borrowing and tax collections send a new flood of revenue into the Federal till.

Secretary Morgenthau told his press conference weekly $50,000,000 bill issues which have been used to replenish dwindling cash would be discontinued with one to be sold today.

The final issue will bring to $350,000,000 the total sold in anticipation of third-quarter tax collections in September.

Despite this inflow of borrowed money, the Treasury has had to dip deeper and deeper into its cash supply to meet current expenses and outlays for heavy gold acquisitions in recent weeks.

The cash working balance stands now at $483,500,000, but only $288,200,000 of this actually can be spent. The remaining $195,300,000 represents nonspendable gold. To spend the gold in the working balance, it would be necessary to issue gold notes against it to Federal Reserve banks. Issuance of such notes was discontinued last December in line with the Treasury's gold sterilization policy.

If present revenue and spending trends continue the spendable balance probably will fall below $200,000,000 by June 15, a new low since the Roosevelt Administration took office.

Morgenthau said, however, the existing balance provides "plenty of margin of safety." Until early this year, the Treasury chief had maintained working cash at the $1,000,000,000 level, saying this was necessary because of unsettled conditions abroad.

Alleged 'Master Mind'

J. WILLIAM TOMLINSON.

Lawyer Denies Share in Plot To Rob Tailor

In a drive to bring to a close the five-day trial of J. William Tomlinson and Phillip John Pratt, Justice F. Dickinson Letts late yesterday ordered the case continued until all testimony was heard.

Tomlinson, pictured as the "master mind" in the robbery of Sam Siratonis, Fourteenth street tailor, took the stand to deny he had plotted with Pratt and Charles Henry Bass to rob the tailor. The latter has pleaded guilty and testified as a prosecution witness.

Bass said Tomlinson, who at one time acted as attorney for Gaston B. Means, had acted as the "brains" for himself and Pratt. He said they were told where to look for the money on Siratonis' person, and were even told about how much cash they would get.

Tomlinson appeared confident and answered the queries of his legal adviser, James A. O'Shea, assisted by Alfred Goldstein and John H. Burnett. He related how he got his law degree and then launched into a stout denial of the charge that he studied the Siratonis establishment prior to the robbery to learn all he could about the tailor's habits. In answer to a direct question by O'Shea as to whether or not he had planned the robbery or had any part of it, Tomlinson shouted "no."

Capt. Bernard Thompson, chief of detectives, and Ira Keck, assistant chief, were called to the stand when Samuel Beach and Charles Murray, assistant United States attorneys, concluded cross-examination. They were called to deny an insinuation they had agreed to assist Bass in getting either a light sentence for a plea of guilty, or had promised him some sort of consideration if he would turn State's evidence.

Justice Letts announced last night he would hold court today until the case is submitted to the jury, no matter how long the lawyers take in their closing arguments. Saturday is ordinarily not a court day and Monday is a legal holiday. Thus, he hopes to have the case decided before the court recesses for the week-end, else the jurors might be locked up over the holiday.

20-Million Tax Suit Is Lost by Astors

New York, May 27 (AP).—A Federal jury decided today that the $20,000,000 in taxes the Government collected from the estate of the late Viscount William Waldorf Astor was a legal transaction and that his sons were not entitled to recover the money.

The jury deliberated for two hours and three-quarters before returning the verdict on the suit of Viscount Waldorf Astor and Maj. John Jacob Astor, who contended that their father had established trust funds for them to avoid confiscatory taxes in England.

The Government's defense of its action was that it had collected the taxes because the father had turned his vast holdings into trusts in contemplation of death and that it was, therefore, able to place its heavy levy on the estate.

War Veteran Killed In Plunge From Tower

Battle Creek, Mich., May 27 (AP).—Edward Max, 42, of Milwaukee, Wis., plunged 76 feet to his death today from a water tower at the United States Veterans Hospital here.

Max, who entered the hospital in February, broke away from a group of patients and climbed the tower ladder, keeping guards at a distance with a 25-pound weight. He remained on top the tower for nine hours, before making his fatal plunge.

Fascist Paper Brands Roosevelt Talk 'Vague'

Rome, May 27 (U.P.).—The Fascist newspaper La Tribuna today described President Roosevelt's labor legislation message to Congress Tuesday as "vague, nebulous and lacking in precise thought and organized line of action."

The President's message was contrasted with Premier Mussolini's speech to the Italian Assembly of Corporation May 15.

It was explained that the United States was "far behind" Italy in such legislation.

Committee Approves Legion Expense Fund

Paris (Friday) May 28 (U.P.).—The Chamber of Deputies' finance committee today approved a bill appropriating $250,000 toward paying expenses of 10,000 American Legionnaires invited to France in September for the Paris 1937 Exposition.

The French War Veterans' Office is contributing another $100,000.

The Washington Post

Bob Burns Says:

The other day I read a headline in the paper saying there was an epidemic of "flu." Right away my face started to flush and I just knew I had a high fever, but as I read on down the column and found out this "flu" epidemic was over in Chili, I felt all right again.

My uncle heard over the radio one night that there was an epidemic of "flu" in town and the next morning he couldn't get out of bed. He said, "Call Doc Hooks right away!" So my aunt did and the Doc said, "Well, use a thermometer on him and I'll be out as soon as I can get there."

Two hours later, the doctor arrived and said, "Where is your husband?" My aunt says, "Well, I used a barometer on him, like you told me, and it said 'very dry,' so I gave him a pitcher of water and he went to work."

Letter

An officer of General Accounting Office Lodge, No. 8, A. F. G. E., an office where impending dismissals have brought much consternation and many meetings by the employes, writes in to give some background and the results of the union's efforts on behalf of the employes. He says:

"Some several weeks ago, when the threat of wholesale dismissals in G. A. O. first became apparent, Lodge No. 8 of the A. F. G. E., representing the employes of the office, formulated plans to meet the emergency. Appreciating that a limited number of personnel would have to be let out due to lack of funds, the officers of the lodge concentrated on the idea of seeking to arrange for sufficient notice of termination, furloughs to provide protection for those let out, and dismissals on an efficiency basis with due consideration for need, dependents, etc.

"Its first attempt in the form of a conference with the personnel office met with very unsatisfactory results, resulting only in a guarantee that the dismissals made would be on the requested efficiency system, but with no provision for notice or furlough. When this was reported back to the lodge at a special meeting called for that purpose, the membership passed a resolution authorizing the adjustments committee to appeal the ruling to an executive officer of the department.

"This appeal was made last Friday, and the entire matter was discussed to the mutual satisfaction of the parties concerned. The office made clear its efforts to insure fair treatment for all employes. On Wednesday, the greater proportion of those threatened dismissals made their appearance, and the provisions asked for and promised were made. The dismissals provided for a full month's notice, being effective on June 30, and then the employes affected are placed on a furlough status so that in the event of the required funds becoming available, they will be called back.

"In short, Government unions have again proved their worth to the employe. These same unions are now embarking on an even harder proposition, to work against any 'false economy' measures in Congress which will jeopardize the employe's economic security, as they did in 1932. It would be to the employes' advantage to support such organizations."

Honored

Entomologists of the Agriculture Department and the Entomological Society of Washington, along with members of the Insecticide Society of Washington, last evening honored Dr. Leland Ossian Howard, former chief of the Bureau of Entomology, on the occasion of his eightieth birthday.

Dr. Howard became chief of the Division of Entomology—as it was called in 1894, after serving as assistant entomologist from the time of his graduation from Cornell University in 1877. Ten years later, the division became a bureau and Dr. Howard directed it until his retirement from active administration in 1927. But remaining in association with it during the next four years, he completed a total of more than 50 years of continuous distinguished service with the bureau.

As early as 1888, he achieved international renown through his studies of mosquitos. His book, "The Housefly-Disease Carrier," published in 1911, is said to be largely responsible for the world crusade against the fly. His writings have been fairly prolific.

Miss Alice McWhorter Ends 18 Years of Service and Receives Scroll From Nursing School Alumnae; Dr. Morgan Speaks.

Thirty-six young women from six States and the District were graduated last night from the Garfield Hospital Nurses School as the superintendent, Miss Alice McWhorter, bade farewell to the school after 18 years of service.

Dr. Charles S. White presented the graduates in Kellogg Building. A scroll for "faithful service" was presented to Miss McWhorter by alumnae.

Dr. William Gerry Morgan, who delivered the commencement address, declared: "Do not see how much you can get out of life—see how much you can add to it." He quoted Father Spaulding's nurses:

"Connect yourself spiritually with the life of Christ by work and word. At the same time work in kindness and sympathy toward the sick and you will be in every respect a nurse."

Mr. Clarence A. Aspinwall, president, board of directors, presided and prayer and benediction were said by the Rev. Father Frantz, St. Mark's Lutheran Church. Mrs. Charles B. Crawford, member of the board of directors, conferred diplomas.

Lara Bodensick, Mary E. Dodd, Millicent W. Childs, Roby Mae Marsh, Margaret A. Connor, Caroline Strother, Madge Darden, M. A. Cunningham, Rubie Hambright, Mary M. Brooks, Rosalie Hamrle, Mary R. Federation Assails Plea of Welfare Workers to Senate Group.

The Federation of Citizens Associations yesterday opposed any increase in the District unemployment relief appropriation as the Senate sub-committee prepared to hear social welfare organizations on their plea for an additional $1,000,000.

The federation, through its president, Thomas E. Lodge, also asked that funds be provided for the reopening of the office of people's counsel and that the 25 per cent water rent reduction eliminated by the House be restored.

This afternoon Senator Thomas, chairman of the sub-committee, will hear spokesmen for all social welfare organizations which are urging increased relief appropriations and care for unemployed employables.

Lodge advised the sub-committee that the federation wants the playgrounds restored to the playground department and the hospitals retained by the welfare department until legislation authorized such a transfer can be considered at public hearings.

The federation opposed the House plan of abolishing the Children's Receiving Home and suggested that the institution might be improved.

Asks for New Schools.

It asked for a new senior high school at Fifth street and Sheridan road, for a new Bunker Hill School, and objected to a bonding commissioner's office or any diversion in the gasoline tax.

Lodge, speaking for himself, suggested that funds be provided for additional personnel and modern equipment in the tax assessor's and collector's office to handle the anticipated increase in revenue.

He also proposed that when new office space is provided for the recorder of deeds it be adjacent to the surveyor and tax assessor's offices, so that all land records would be together for the convenience of the public.

Lodge agreed with the House subcommittee that policemen should be taken off clerical work and that clerks be hired so that more policemen will be available for patrol duty.

Senator Thomas disclosed that he is favorable to the demand that the Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge be replaced by a structure that will "stand the test of time," rather than by a cheaper span that would last only a generation or two.

Other Groups Have Pleas.

The Michigan Park Citizens Association, headed by John J. Hurley, made a plea for a new eight-room building to replace the Bunker Hill School, at a cost of $115,000. The item was not included in the budget estimates.

A delegation of women from the Twentieth Century Club, headed by Mrs. Karl Fenning, asked that the playgrounds be restored to the playgrounds department, that funds be restored for the following:

Teachers' salaries, $66,800; school gardens, $6,000; junior high school at Banneker site, $200,000; purchase of land adjacent to Dennison School.

Senator Thomas intimated that a House rider prohibiting teachers from doing clerical work will be eliminated after Mrs. Elva C. Wells, of the High School Teachers Association, appeared against it.

The City Fire Fighters Association asked that the allowance per fireman for equipment and uniforms be increased from $25.90 a year.

A request for 30 additional firemen and indorsement of the 25-man increase in the Police Department were made by Mrs. Ernest Howard, of the Federation of Women's Clubs.

In the morning session, George E. Keneipp, manager of Keystone Automobile Club, urged that all fees from motorists be turned into the highway fund, rather than into general revenue.

An appeal for additional traffic policemen was made by Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the District Motor Club of the A. A. A. Cleveland also spoke against any diversion of motor vehicle revenue from the highway fund.

Substitute Flood Plan Is Asailed by Clark

Senator Clark (Democrat), Missouri, assailed yesterday what he said was an apparent effort on the part of the Administration to "substitute a long-range flood control program" instead of meeting "the immediate necessities."

Clark, in a radio address, called on Congress to appropriate money for a War Department program already authorized.

Veteran Capitol Doorkeepers Revive Memories of Shiloh

Two gray and aged men—William H. Young, 95, and Col. John T. Ryan, 90, doorkeepers both in the National Capitol—yesterday squinted their eyes to the bead of recollection and talked of the figures they knew in life, the men whom Washington will honor in Memorial Day exercises this week-end.

Now, 72 years after the surrender that cleared them of the war, Ryan and Young haven't lost all of their one-time soldierly pose. Their minds are clear and their bodies are erect. They never have sought or wanted retirement. Hundreds of thousands of men they marched with in a war are dead, and around them now are more hundreds of thousands of other men, not nearly their ages, who are clamoring for benefits of one sort or another. Ryan and Young choose, out of their own wishes, to work. And yesterday they stoutly tended their doors.

Twentieth Century crowds—tourists from the Far West, the North, the South swarmed around, and the loud talk at times subdued the quieter talk of the two gray men who were saying things about Shiloh ("they called it Pittsburgh Landing then; I didn't hear Shiloh until later") or of Andersonville ("I don't like to think of it . . . Horrible . . . To live there day after day was worse than going into battle").

Memories of the Past.

They watched their doors against the crowds, but their minds were on old horses, and the flat, big-shouldered country around Pittsburgh Landing, the country that Albert Sydney Johnston marched his men through in the night; and the alarm that was on this same Capital once, when hard-bitten Jubal Early came with a gray wolf-pack behind him and some creaky guns to feint and dart away.

They talked of Early, and they talked of Shiloh, not of Andersonville very much, because it was pleasant yesterday, with all the warmth outside, and when you're old, like Col. Ryan and Mr. Young, and when the days are pleasant, you shouldn't think of Andersonville and its filth and flies and the Swiss man who tended the prison and had you shot if you moved an inch too near the intolerable stockade.

Young rose, and opened the door for a group of tourists. He did not seat himself again. Standing where the crowds were pushing, he said—as if the thought was working in him: "Atlanta . . . I marched to Atlanta with Gen. Sherman . . . You know, I never saw much difference between Sherman and Grant . . . But as I was saying, we marched to Atlanta . . . Hood there . . . I didn't march in the march from Atlanta to the sea . . . I was captured and that's how I went into Andersonville . . . to live there every day was worse than going into battle . . . Later they paroled me, but the war was about over then . . .

District Set For Tribute To Its Dead

Services Tonight for Peacetime Heroes to Open Ceremonies.

Memorial Day observances in Washington will begin tonight when the District's peace-time heroes are honored at public services on the plaza in front of the Public Health Building, Nineteenth and Constitution avenue northwest.

Planned by the Washington Youth Council as a tribute to District residents who sacrificed their lives in times of peace "with the quiet courage that expects no glory," the services will be conducted by Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, of Washington Cathedral, and the Rev. Donald A. MacLean, of Catholic University.

Lieut. Walter H. Thomas has been named official representative of the Police Department and Battalion Chief S. T. Porter will represent the Fire Department. Each will read a roll of honor of the members of his department who died in line of duty during the past year.

Speakers will include Senator James P. Pope, Representative Robert G. Allen and Representative H. Jerry Voorhis.

And yesterday, representatives of more than 100 veterans organizations and affiliated groups met to complete plans for the Memorial Day rites in Arlington National Cemetery Sunday. Scheduled to last more than an hour, the impressive services will be broadcast over all local radio stations.

District residents were urged to leave flowers at any police station tomorrow for distribution on the graves of World War veterans in Arlington. The flowers will be distributed by Boy Scouts under the leadership of Col. E. L. Matice, scoutmaster for the District.

Contributions also are being taken up in Government departments and public buildings to purchase flags which also will be placed on the graves. Members of the American Legion Auxiliary will distribute red poppies in the cemetery.

Other Memorial Day observances were announced as follows:

Today—Rotunda, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, 12 noon, sponsored by the Bureau of Engraving Post, American Legion.

Cedar Hill Cemetery, 6 p. m., sponsored by the Tank Corps Post, American Legion.

Washington Hebrew Congregation, Eighth Street Temple, 8:15 p. m., sponsored by the Jewish War Veterans.

Al Fresco Fun Comes Along With Temperatures To Assume Dominant Place in Summer Amusement

Glen Echo Park, River Steamers, Seaside Park and Other Outdoor Establishments of Like Nature Bring Summer Into Close-up; Hot-Weather Theaters Also Get Going; News Notes of the Theater.

WITH the soaring of temperature to midsummer heights the al fresco amusements in and about Washington at last are "coming into their own," as the saying is.

With the opening of the Crystal Pool on Thursday, with a warm sun beating down and everything propitious for the inauguration of the splashing and sunbathing season, Glen Echo Park swung into its midsummer stride with some 50-odd other distractions in operation to keep the humid mind off of the full and limpid routine of life in the city. This amusement center, free-admission at the gate and moderately tariffed inside, will now coast along on a high wave of popularity until next fall.

BELL.

Seaside Park, down at Chesapeake Beach, Md., presents a similar scene of al fresco merry-making, although a little more remote and not quite so much of a Capital institution. There is a bathing pool of fresh water there, too, and all of the other water-edge amusement devices that go to make up a place of admirable relaxation.

On the Potomac there is already a good deal going on. The steamer City of Washington, of the Wilson Line, is making its regular cruises down the river nightly, with lively music for dancing and all of the other concomitants of an enjoyable evening on the water, and also is making daily trips to Mount Vernon, the shrine of the country's first President.

The S. S. Potomac is offsetting this short-trip schedule by putting in operation its regular excursions to Colonial Beach in the near future. While this "ocean-going greyhound" bears down on Colonial Beach, the City of Washington lays stress on the many points of amusement interest to be encountered at Marshall Hall Park, another water-front playground that boasts a wide range of entertainment.

So there it is. If you do not care to remain indoors or under roof, the wide, open spaces, in a manner of speaking, call to you lustily—and provide every known facility for making their pleas potent.

Manager Edmund Plohn, of the National Theater, is in New York, or was up to yesterday, enjoying the game of battledore and shuttlecock that is being played in the Astor Hotel by the first convention of the American Theater Council, out of which much good may or may not come. I wish them the best of luck.

* * * *

It was disturbing yesterday, upon arriving belatedly at the office by reason of certain physiological rebellions, to learn that Phil Regan, who headlines the stage bill at Loew's Capitol Theater, beginning today, had been a caller.

I know of no one in the cinema or on the stage that I like better. A former New York policeman, Phil, with his splendid voice and genial demeanor, is one of the most agreeable persons I know in "show business." My first encounter with him was when he and Wini Shaw were costarring on the stage at the Earle and Eddie Melcher tossed a party for them out at Wardman. The next was when he was down here in a nonprofessional capacity, all duded up in a polo shirt and whatnot the night he seconded Freddie Miller, when the former featherweight titleholder lost his crown to Petie Sarron.

In the meantime, Phil has been seen on local screens in a picture or two. He is a swell fellow, usually referred to as the type that is "regular" and I hate to have missed his call. However, if he doesn't call on me again, I shall upon him.

Let that be a warning to him!

In bringing "Carnival in Flanders" back for a repeat engagement, beginning Saturday at the Belasco Theater, the management is returning to a local screen one of the most pungent comedies of the season, despite the fact that it is played entirely in a foreign tongue. There is humor here in large amount and a degree of sophisticated comprehension of the tastes of adult audiences who have matured beyond the kindergarten age that justify a return engagement of a farce that makes up in levity what it may lack in decorum.

Somewhere in the United States is an unknown but gifted young actress who will have the privilege of playing "Juliet" in New York during the World's Fair. The search is being made by Frank Lea Short, director of the Shakespeare Fellowship of America. He has been interviewing many talented young women at the fellowship's headquarters at 142 East Thirty-ninth street, New York City, but has yet to find the ideal "Juliet."

Mr. Short feels that for several years "Juliet" has been played by leading actresses from 30 to 50 years old which has been misleading considering that Shakespeare wrote the parts for a maiden of 14 years. He feels that there must be a young woman somewhere under the age of 22 that could bring the real "Juliet" back to the public.

It is interesting to note that of the most famous "Juliets" in history, Adelaide Neilson was probably the youngest to play the part at the age of 15; Mary Anderson, at 19; Julia Marlow, at 22, and Helena Modjeska at the age of 24.

* * * *

There was a time not so long ago when it was deemed virtually suicidal to attempt to run a feature picture over four days on a downtown screen. That was in the days when the Rialto, the Palace and the Metropolitan were new, all having opened within a month of each other in the winter of 1918 and split-weeks were the accepted order. As evidence of the improvement in the quality and the running power of the celluloids, look about you now and see how many repeat engagements, holdovers and long-run "road-show" dates there are. Not that it matters.

Scottsboro Case In New Court Test

Montgomery, Ala., May 27 (AP).—The fate of Heywood Patterson, one of nine colored defendants in the six-year-old Scottsboro case, rested a third time tonight with the Alabama Supreme Court.

Counsel for Patterson urged the high court today to set aside a 75-year sentence for assault on grounds "constitutional rights" were denied and numerous errors committed in the Circuit Court trial.

Patterson was sentenced a year ago at Decatur, Ala. It was the fourth conviction for him. Three times he was sentenced to death, twice obtaining reversals from the United States Supreme Court and once from a trial judge.

Contract Bridge

Super-Care.

The price of success at the bridge table is unremitting care. This applies particularly to duplicate play where the slightest relaxation may be reflected in the match-point column.

The hand described below occurred in a recent pair tournament. Most of the South players, who correctly arrived at a four-spade contract, unwisely assumed on seeing the dummy that they were "cold" for ten tricks. Only one of them thought it worth-while to throw out safeguards.

Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ K 7 6 2 ♡ A J ◇ Q 7 4 3 ♣ 6 5 4
♠ 8 4 3 ♡ Q 9 5 2 ◇ A 9 8 6 ♣ 8 7	North West East South	♠ 10 5 ♡ K 10 6 4 3 ◇ 10 ♣ Q J 10 3 2
	♠ A Q J 9 ♡ 8 7 ◇ K J 5 2 ♣ A K 9

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

West selected the top club as the most propitious lead. The ten forced declarer's King, and three rounds of trumps were played. Declarer noted that the identical distributions of the North and South hands made a losing heart and a losing club unavoidable.

The combined diamond suit appeared safe at first glance for only one loser, but declarer saw that a 4-1 break might increase this loss and defeat the contract. Since the opponents held, in addition to the diamond Ace, the 10, 9 and 8 also, there was no safety play possible if either opponent had these three cards with the Ace. But if the suit were badly divided and either opponent had a singleton 10, 9 or 8 and certain other conditions obtained, the situation could be saved by a strip play.

First, however, it was necessary to lead one diamond in order to remove such a singleton if it existed. Declarer, therefore, laid down the diamond Jack. Went went right up with the Ace and returned a club. Declarer won, and led a heart to the Ace, returning the Jack. As it happened, East won this trick. He then cashed his club trick, but had to return a club or a heart, either of which would allow declarer to discard a diamond in one hand while ruffing in the other. This kept the diamond loss to one trick.

Had East passed the Jack of hearts to West, the latter would have been equally helpless. A third round of hearts would permit a ruff and a discard. The lead of the nine of diamonds would be won by declarer's King, and a finesse thereby established against the 8-6. The six of diamonds would merely have to be covered with dummy's seven.

Had declarer failed to take the precaution of first leading one diamond and then stripping spades and hearts, the contract could have been easily defeated, East exiting with the diamond 10 after cashing a heart and club trick, and West refusing to play his Ace until he was assured of two diamond tricks.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

Hollywood, May 27.—The most exciting report to prick my ears in months is the story that Beverly Hills is built over pools of oil. Hold your seats! This is only hearsay, and I have no geologist's report to offer in proof. But it is fun to twiddle with the fantastic possibilities, so let us suppose that Beverly Hills is really afloat on a sea of oil.

HAROLD LLOYD.

Approximately half of the screen colonists reside there. A large percentage of them live in mansions that cost from $75,000 to a quarter-million dollars. Some own half-acre lots; others like Harold Lloyd and Mary Pickford own many acres. What will happen if there is oil, and when the city's very old ordinance against drilling expires? Will the stars jeopardize their estates and drill?

And if they do, won't it be a little too much if Greta Garbo, drawing $500,000 annually from the movies, sprouts an oil well in her back yard? Will Groucho Marx hook up his shower bath with a crude oil gusher and thus give his house guests a new kind of surprise? Happy thought, perhaps some star will donate a lot to tthe Old Actors' Home, and it will become an oil field and all the screen veterans will ride in gold-plated limousines again.

I was lolling in Clark Gable's dressing room today when he telephoned Carole Lombard. After some priceless give-and-take kidding, he invited, "How's about doing a little truckin' with me tonight?" Carole apparently accepted, and after they had exchanged good bys (long drawn out good-bys they were, too), he said to me, "She's thinking in terms of truckin' at the Trocadero. But I'm going to ride her down the boulevard in my station wagon, and pull into a sandwich stand for dinner." Now I can hardly wait to hear what happens, for I can vision Carole in chiffons and ermine for the Troc, seated beside Gable in his station truck munching a hamburger with onions.

The head of a nearby lion farm told me this one. An independent movie company visited his farm to film scenes for a jungle picture. The troupe was operating on a shoestring, so the lunch that was eked out to the players at noon-time was hardly more than an appetizer. One glance at this meager fare, and the lion farm owner accosted the cheap producer. "Maybe it won't happen," he threatened, "but I warn you, you're going to pay the bill if any of your hungry actors steal my lions' meat."

Little or nothing has been written about the million-and-one petty rackets to which stars are subjected right on their sets. I refer to the electricians, property men, make-up artists, hair dressers and extras who are forever popping up with new schemes to separate the stars from their money.

It is common to find women passing out business cards of a sister's or cousin's beauty shop. Others will be helping a realtor uncle to interest a star in buying property. Raffles are every-day events. I recently saw a $50 watch raffled for 200 chances at a dollar a throw. Dozens of workers solicit orders for holiday turkeys, chickens and eggs. Christmas cards are sold on sets by scores of minor employes. Others peddle home-made cookies, cakes and candies, and, of course the stars who buy these tid-bits open them immediately and pass them around the set.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, May 27.

CRIME: Mischa Ross, who was arrested last month for the Broadway murder of Tania Lubova, the dancer-violinist, and who now is in jail charged with first-degree murder, will not be sentenced to the electric chair for that crime.

• • • •

WEALTH: Coincident with the news of John D. Rockefeller's death, Scripta Mathematica released for publication a book entitled, "Every Man a Millionaire." It is a fascinating volume, described by the publishers as "A Balloon Trip in the Mathematical Stratosphere." The author's name is David Dunham . . . "David Dunham" is a pen-name. The author of "Every Man a Millionaire" really is David Eugene Smith, professor emeritus at Columbia University—himself a millionaire!

• • • •

REGRET: Max Gordon was invited by Max Siegel, the M-G-M producer, to take an auto ride with him in Hollywood . . . After two hours of viewing the California scenery, Gordon became drowsy and dozed off. The car hit a bump and Gordon was startled back to consciousness. The first words involuntarily escaped his lips—"Oh, why did I turn down 'Call It a Day?'"

• • • •

ESCAPE: D. Aristides Escalante, Venezuela's Minister to Washington, was stationed in London for 14 years, in Canada for 10 years, and therefore speaks English perfectly . . . In Washington, however, Dr. Escalante constantly is annoyed with invitations to attend the D. A. R., W. C. T. U., etc., conventions. To the delegates who come to invite him to such functions, Dr. Escalante feigns an inability to understand English. He compromises, however, by sending as his representative to these meetings Arturo Lares, the Legation's secretary—who doesn't speak English at all!

• • • •

SUCCESS: Last year Charlie Zerner and Ben Gross, anxious to garner some of the gold which lies in them thar playwrighting hills, wrote a play entitled "What This Town Needs." As yet the play is unproduced. The producer who has the play, however, has had to exercise his option 11 times in order to preserve his interests. By virtue of those options alone, the playwrights have received, for their still unproduced play, $1,050.

• • • •

REVENGE: A few months ago Grace Moore announced that she was spurning an invitation to sing at London's Covent Gardens during the coronation. The British stage-folk resented this slight and felt that it wasn't in good taste . . . It therefore might interest Miss Moore to learn that one of the high spots of Charles B. Cochrane's new revue, "Home and Beauty," is a sizzling satire which convulses British audiences—a satire on Grace Moore.

• • • •

CHATTER: Ralph Hitz bought the Montclair Hotel Monday midnight . . . Harvard's seniors voted Mitzie Green their Favorite Girl . . . When the WPA workers walk out on strike Thursday, to stop the cutting of relief appropriation, instead of their usual signing-in, they'll all write—next to their names: "Out on stoppage." . . . Abe Lyman will tour one nighters starting next week . . . Childs will sponsor a radio program shortly . . . The Penn Railroad, New York Central and Pullman Co. will share the cost of installing one of those modern overhead railroad trains—with wheels on top of the cars, and the train suspended from a rail—which will be run around the World's Fair. This will be an experiment. If successful, similar trains will be used all over the country.

• • • •

CRITICISM: In the third act of "Room Service" three of the actors gather around a corpse, and sing mournful hymns . . . After the opening, Teddy Hart approached the authors and asked: "What is this song I sing? I sing 'A Bit With Me.' What is that?" . . . "That's a hymn," he was told. "It's 'Abide With Me.'" . . . "Well," Hart snickered, "the lyrics are lousy. My brother Larry could've written much better ones!"

FAME: John Barrymore, who for 30 years had considered himself the best performer in the royal family, now is being considered for one of the major roles in a forthcoming Universal picture . . . The role is an important one and only one other actor is being considered. That actor's name is Lionel Barrymore.

• • • •

TRUTH: Ralph Murphy, who directed the picture, "Top of the Town," wrote a two-page letter to Lew Lipton yesterday. Murphy appended: "P. S.—This is the most I've written in ten years, without a term contract." . . . Lipton sent a one-page reply, and added: "P. S.—This is the most I've ever written in ten years—WITH a term contract!"

ENTERPRISE: Last year I reported that Joe Rivkin, of Columbia Pictures, had sent to his family in Brooklyn a photo of a magnificent home, swimming pool, etc., as evidence that he was doing all right. His family, unaware, that the photo merely was one of a Hollywood movie set, immediately sold their belongings and joined him in the film colony . . . The family is flourishing there now. His brothers, a lawyer and a dentist, have excellent practices . . . Last week, at the Trocadero, Rivkin brought Buddy Rogers to meet his mother, and Buddy kissed the venerable lady . . . "Ha, ha," she sighed. "Look—just like I'm Mary Pickford!"

United Artists Enlarges Scope Of Operations

Following the annual meetings of the stockholders of United Artists Corporation, Dr. A. H. Giannini, president of the organization, issued the following statement:

"After a series of eminently successful sessions, the stockholders of United Artists concluded their annual meeting. Sales policies were crystallized and new product was discussed and agreed upon, and a complete announcement will be made tomorrow by George J. Schaefer, vice president and general manager of United Artists.

"The proposed new British quota law (Moyne committee report) was analyzed in detail and constructive plans were put into motion to meet the new quota requirements and to give United Artists producers a maximum of distribution abroad.

"There was also developed a plan of closer co-operation and wider exchange of talent between the American producers and Mr. Alexander Korda in England."

En Route to England.

Immediately following the adjournment Mr. Korda boarded a plane for New York en route to England to resume production activities at his Denham studios. Seeing him off at the airport were Dr. Ginannini, Samuel Goldwin, Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Charles Chaplin and Murray Silverstone, chairman of United Artists, Ltd.

Adding fresh fuel to his belief that great directors make great pictures, Walter Wagner has added the names of John Cromwell and John Ford to his already imposing list of international top-notchers.

As previously announced, John Cromwell will direct his technicolor feature "Arabian Nights," adapted for the screen by Harold Lamb from the centuries-old tales of love and romance. Sylvia Sidney, Charles Boyer, Madeleine Carroll, Joan Bennett, Henry Fonda and Pat Paterson will head the all-star cast. John Ford's first assignment will be "Desert Intrigue," from the widely read novel by Alfred Batson.

Other Noted Directors.

In addition to Cromwell and Ford, Wanger's "Who's Who" of film craftsmen includes Irving Cummings, now directing "Walter Wanger's Vogues of 1938;" Fritz Lang, who was at the helm of "You Only Live Once;" Frank Borzage, whose most recent screen achievement was "History Is Made at Night;" Harold Young, now presiding over the forthcoming "52nd Street;" Tay Garnett, set to direct Clarence Budington Kelland's "Stand-In;" and Anatole Litvak, famous continental, who will direct Emily Bronte's novel, "Wuthering Heights," from a Hecht and MacArthur scenario, with Charles Boyer and Sylvia Sidney co-starred.

Plans Announced For Zep Flights

By the Associated Press.

Dr. Hugo Eckener told Congress yesterday two airships may be operated across the North Atlantic next spring if sufficient helium can be obtained.

The German dirigible expert said the service would be established by his company in co-operation with the American Zeppelin Transport Co., which he is an official. Possibly 25 round-trip flights a season would be made.

Meanwhile, a Department of Commerce board of inquiry at Lakehurst, convinced it would not be able to determine the exact cause of the Hindenburg disaster, studied tonight the "probabilities and possibilities" contained in a mass of testimony compiled in three weeks' investigation.

G.W.U. Will Honor Services of Alumni

The George Washington University, in conjunction with the general alumni association, has instituted alumni achievement awards for the recognition of outstanding contributions on the part of graduates in their professions and in service to the university, it is announced by President Cloyd H. Marvin and Charles S. Baker, alumni president.

A group of alumni will be honored in this way at the 116th commencement on June 9. Thereafter, the conferring of the alumni achievement awards will be an annual feature of the commencement.

The awards will be conferred by the president and board of trustees upon the recommendation of the general alumni association

Traffic Experts Assail 'Politics' In Safety Work

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Striking at politics in traffic safety promotion and charging politicians with hampering constructive efforts to save lives on the Nation's highways, 65 traffic safety experts, attending the American Road Builders' annual May meeting voted yesterday for an immediate program to arouse public sentiment.

Within the past few months, said speakers at the Willard Hotel meeting, certain measures to aid highway safety have been made "political footballs." Pleas for definite action to reduce the country's growing traffic toll have been ignored, they charged.

Communities—urban and rural—throughout the Nation are sadly in need of funds to carry on safety promotion work, the meeting was told. To meet modern methods of high speed driving, highways must be rebuilt and renovated to conform with conditions, engineers declared.

"Realization" Needed.

"We who study safety upon the streets and highways," said Arthur F. Loewe, educational director, safety committee, New Jersey State League of Municipalities, "know that we want safe streets and highways with good drivers and pedestrians using them."

"The first problem confronting us," he continued, "is to bring this realization to those in political office—to those who hold the public purse strings. The public really wants safety, although to date they have been apparently just wishing for it.

"They think this furore for safety is but a lot of wasted wordage of publicity seeking politicians, salesmen and neighborhood busybodies going around in circles," Loewe asserted. "These people need to be shaken from this false position.

Must Show Action.

"To do this, we must show real action, gain real results in specified locations in order to prove that something definite is needed, can be accomplished and deserves their changed attitude and real support."

An important step toward reducing the country's accident toll, the road builders were told, is to construct safety directly into the highways. Rather than warn of dangerous curves through the medium of highway signs, the curves themselves should be eliminated, it was pointed out.

Public education, said Dr. S. S. Steinberg, dean of the engineering college, University of Maryland, is one of the greatest weapons with which to combat highway hazards. Both civic and official leaders must be interested in the increasing need for safe highways, he said.

Discounts Speed as Factor.

Dr. Steinberg scoffed at the general opinion that speed is an outstanding factor in traffic accidents. Modern cars, he declared, are built for speed and if traffic is slowed down, there will be little need for building safety into the highways.

As long as there are drivers, he added, there will be speed and recklessness.

Safety begins with highway planning, said Dr. Steinberg, and roads must be constructed to meet present-day driving practices.

Dr. H. E. Tabler, chairman of Maryland's State roads commission and head of the road builders safe highway committee, pointed out that traffic deaths have increased 9.6 per cent in urban sections thus far this year and nearly 26 per cent on the open road.

Engineering Stressed.

He cited the importance of the three "E's" in traffic safety—engineering, education and enforcement—but declared that ultimate safety depends largely on engineering.

Of the total accident causes, said Harold F. Hammond, traffic engineer, National Bureau of Casualty and Insurance Underwriters, 75 per cent can be blamed on drivers and pedestrians, 10 per cent on vehicles and 15 per cent on the highways themselves.

S. Weston Scott, safety director for Pennsylvania, chided the road builders for failure to "get out and sell your wares to the public." He urged the group to secure public support for road improvements and engineering safety measures.

The problem of curbing highway casualties, agreed Willard T. Chevalier, president of the organization, cannot be solved by the road builders alone.

"We are attempting to contribute to highway safety," said Chevalier, "but our contributions can gain nothing without public and official support."

Hagerstown, May 27.—Worthington W. McCauley, local hotel proprietor, convicted of contributing to the delinquency of minor girls, two of whom he permitted to occupy rooms at his hotel with two men, began serving an 18 months sentence today in the House of Correction imposed upon him by the court.

Collier Laughs Off Indian War Scare

By the Associated Press.

John Collier, commissioner of Indian Affairs, scoffed yesterday at a suggestion that Administration policies may encourage Indians to take the war path once more.

A statement by Mrs. Otto Heinicke, president of the National Indian Association, prompted his comment.

She said Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's resignation from an honorary vice presidency of the association indicated that the Roosevelt Administration intends "to let the Indians alone to indulge in their old ways."

Mrs. Heinicke added she feared "we may go back to those terrible Indian wars of the past." Her association is trying to teach the Indians "to live like white men."

Collier said all Indian wars have resulted from "robbery by the white man becoming too excruciating." "We don't propose to rob them any more."

Wife, Mysteriously Shot, Dies on Way to Hospital

New City, N. Y., May 27 (AP).—Victim of a mysterious bullet wound in the temple, Mrs. Charles Starbuck, jr., 28, died today while being taken to the Nyack Hospital from her home in the wealthy South Mountain colony here.

Sheriff E. C. Dormann said her husband told him he found her wounded in the hall of their home about an hour after they had gone to bed last night, and that a .22-caliber revolver was lying nearby.

Warning Is Issued On Spotted Fever

In an effort to prevent an outbreak of Rocky Mountain spotted fever, Dr. F. C. Bishop, of the Agriculture Department, yesterday warned hikers and dog owners to guard against wood-ticks, carriers of the disease.

The ticks have caused an increase in the prevalence of the disease in the East during the last few years, Dr. Bishop said. Last year several cases were reported in suburban Washington.

Warning that the fever has high mortality, the Agriculture Department scientist advised creosote powder treatment for infested outdoor areas and the application of derris powder on infested animals.

Raskob's Son to Wed Reno Girl on June 11

Centreville, Md., May 27 (AP).—Invitations were recived in Centreville this week for the marriage of Robert Pierre Raskob, of Reno, Nev., and Centreville, to Miss Dolores Harter, also of Reno. The marriage will take place June 11 at the St. Thomas Aquinas Cathedral, Reno.

Raskob is the son of John J. Raskob, former national Democratic chairman, and Mrs. Raskob, of Pioneer Point Farms, here. For the past two years he has been connected with mining interests in Nevada. Miss Harter is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph J. Harter, of Reno.

3. AAA knows exactly, after their computations, how many acres on each farm are planted with a certain crop. This celluloid disc called a "rotometer" is used to calculate the number of acres in a field.

4. A "planimeter measures the exact acreage in each field and the crop is figured quickly. The old-fashioned method formerly used is shown below where men are "chaining" cotton fields and determining angles with a "Jacob staff." Measurements were then calculated by clerks.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

College Girl Has Beau Who Sometimes Seems Bored With Her; How to Keep Him Interested, She Asks.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a 19-year-old college sophomore. Over a year ago I met a boy from another college who, though friendly, paid me no particular attention until a few months ago. Then he took me to a dance and afterward I saw him frequently. Now I find myself liking him more and more. He comes over nearly every day, supposedly to see me. He had been seeing me only on school days. However, wanting to see him more often, I casually asked him to come around one Friday. He told me he studied on Fridays, which seemed a poor excuse.

Am I wrong in believing that when a boy is supposed to be interested in a girl, he should want to see her on other than school days? A mutual friend told me a week ago that practically everyone on the campus, even those who aren't personally acquainted with me, know me as his girl. He has never said how much he likes me and even though I like him and let him know it, our friendship hasn't reached the point of love. How can I make him tell me, of his own accord, whether or not he likes me?

• • • •

He is working to pay his school expenses and whenever we go out, I am careful not to cause him to spend much money. How can I keep him interested in me? Sometimes he seems so bored with my company that I begin to think he is losing interest. He is rather shy and seems to find it difficult to talk in a group, and while I never found it hard to keep up a conversation before, the fact that he is so ill at ease upsets me until there are times when I am equally tongue-tied. I shall be watching your column for advice. WAITING.

• • • •

The Thing to Do.

DEAR WAITING: A man's friendly interest in a girl entails no obligation to put himself entirely at her beck and call. He has no obligation to see her on week-ends, or any time save when he wishes to and can. I think you are rushing this boy too fast. If he is plainly bored by your society at times, it is no doubt because you fall all over yourself trying to please him, which is as serious a mistake as a woman could possibly mistake when trying to attract a man.

• • • •

Through making no secret of your emotional regard, you have relieved him of the necessity of taking the initiative in making love. Your angling for week-end dates, and your careful concern about his pocketbook, have told all too plainly that you are more than willing to settle down to a steady courtship. You have taken most of the thrill out of the chase. You've held yourself too cheaply. He can see you when it suits him and he doesn't have to spend much money, for you don't expect it.

• • • •

Now, the greatest thrill of social achievement the average college man can have is to squire a girl of supposedly expensive tastes whom he believes to be hard to "date." If she strings him along on this supposition long enough, and he finds her attractive, it won't be long until he's confiding the state of his heart and his finances, and then is the time for her graciously to consent to take pot-luck as his girl friend. Then he will esteem it a favor, and not a bore, to be asked to call.

• • • •

If you expect to annex this boy as a devoted suitor, I would advise you to reverse your tactics altogether. Stop worrying about the state of his pocketbook; let him worry about that. Don't wear your heart on your sleeve any longer. Be nonchalantly indifferent toward his bored attitude and let him shoulder some responsibility for making your dates enjoyable. Be a little hard to find when he drifts over to your campus. If you can maneuver an advance engagement with some other boy for occasional evenings when you have been accustomed to see him, try it and see how it works. He may sulk, but it will intensify his appreciation of you. M. H.

What to Talk About.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a 19-year-old girl, tall, with fair complexion, light hair and brown eyes. I was born and reared on a farm, and, of course, never met many people. But now that I have grown up and left the farm I meet new persons almost every day. I am frequently introduced to women, girls, young men and older men. And it seems that I can't find anything to say when introduced.

• • • •

For example, someone will say, "Mr. Blank, this is Susan." He says, "How do you do?" And I can't think of anything to say. What is there to say? The same goes for women and children.

After I have met a young man and I am preparing to leave, he rises and says, "Goodbye, Miss Smith. I'm very glad I met you." Again, what is there for me to say? And supposing I wished to ask him to call on me, what would I say then? If you can suggest anything, I will be very grateful. Sincerely, SUSAN.

There's Always the Weather.

DEAR SUSAN: When introductions are effected, the person making the introduction should supply an immediate topic of introduction. Suppose, for instance, that Mrs. Brown is introducing you to Mr. Jones. (Although properly a man is always presented to a woman; unless he happens to be a venerable or very distinguished citizen, in which case it might be in order to present the lady to him.)

• • • •

Mrs. Brown would say, if she knew you well and was on first-name terms, "Susan, this is Mr. Jones. Mr. Jones, Miss Smith. Susan makes the best biscuits in ten counties. For some reason she always blushes when her accomplishment is mentioned. But I tell her she should be proud of it." Immediately you and Mr. Jones would be off on a discussion of biscuits and cooking in general. Or she might might tell something about Mr. Jones which would afford a talking point, as, for instance: "This is the Mr. Jones who sells life insurance. Don't tell me you haven't met before. I thought he knew everybody in this part of the country." Then you might hazard guesses as to why you hadn't met, discuss the value of life insurance, etc.

• • • •

When topics of conversation are not supplied, and even socially experienced persons sometimes fail in their duty in this regard, one has to do the best one can. And the majority of persons fall back on a discussion of the weather. (That's why the weather, as a subject of conversation, has become such a joke, you know. Persons talk about the weather when there seems to be nothing else to talk about.) It all depends on where and how you meet as to what you can talk about. If you meet at a party, immediately after saying "how do you do" (since that is the customary acknowledgment of an introduction, used by both persons) you may say, "Isn't it a grand party? Are you having a good time? Doesn't the hostess look pretty? I was so afraid it might rain," or, "Doesn't it feel good after the rain?" Any one of these remarks is sufficient to promote conversation if the other person has any command of his mother tongue.

• • • •

When you are leaving and a young man rises to say, "I'm glad to have met you," you simply smile radiantly and say, "Thank you" or, if you wish to make a more responsive gesture, you might add, "I'm sorry I didn't get to talk with you more; but perhaps we shall meet again soon." Unless you are in the habit of informally entertaining friends who drop in casually without special invitation, you can hardly be more specific in suggesting a future meeting.

• • • •

The easiest way to make conversation following introductions, wherever you are and whoever the person, is to make some lively comment on something in the immediate environment. The other person responds with an opinion, affirmative or contradictory, and this can lead, by degrees, to a mutual exploration of each other's opinions on other subjects, and sometimes to an interesting revelation of each other's backgrounds and experiences. Gay Colors and Styles—Pan American Influence

By Ethel Ehlen.
The Post Fashion Editor.

NEW YORK, May 25.—The Pan-American Exposition opening in June is serving as a focal point of interest around which a number of new styles and colors are revolving. Colors in this international style picture were inspired by the exotic hues of jungle flowers, birds and native costumes. They draw their names from the ancient Indian tribes of South America and from Latin-American countries.

Flashes of vivid colors from the wings of tropical birds; woven designs of exotic jungle flowers; softer shades from the ever-changing hues of the desert; intricate embroideries from the "China Poblena" blouses of Mexico; blended stripes from the looms of Guatemalan weavers; geometrical designs uncovered in ancient ruins—all of these provide one of the most romantic backgrounds upon which fashion has ever called for inspiration.

Style interpretations of this new trend include bolero jackets; wide sashes with long fringed ends, after the fashion of the Mexican "faha;" hats with sombrero prims and high, sloping crowns; heavy gold jewelry with ancient symbols of the Incas; woven sandals gaily embroidered; peasant blouses; 'kerchiefs with brilliant flower patterns.

Eleven shades are on the exposition color chart—Aztec red, Toltec green, Mayan blue, Incan gold, desert dawn, sombrero, desert dusk, chili copper, pampas beige, Magellan gray, Toucan. All types of costumes are represented in these gay colors, and dashing stylings, from sports and play clothes, through daytime frocks and accessories and evening ensembles.

The dinner-dancing costume is of silk crepe in Aztec red and white; the jungle flower pattern forming stripes of varying widths. The tiny puffed sleeves and high neckline which ties in a perky bow under the chin are distinguishing features.

A trim and smart two-piece silk chiffon frock in Mayan blue, a Pan American-inspired color. The print has a white circle pattern of graduated dots. Note the grosgrain binding and tailored bows in blue and white. Hat by Lilly Dache.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, May 27.

THERE'S been street dancing and red fire in our Roaring Forties the past week, for the black cloud of stage censorship has been rolled away from Broadway by the wise, firm hand of our Gov. Lehman! Encouraged by the recent local decree which closed every burlesque house in Gotham, the self-appointed moral cops went to Albany and hurried through a bill which would give our license commissioner absolute power over our stage. He could, under the bill, close any show at will if he deemed it morally offside!

ALICE HUGHES

Well, our stage people are quiet folk, tending strictly to their strange business, but this threat burned them to a frazzle. It was Lexington and Concord all over again! I attended a rousing meeting one Sunday night at the Amsterdam Theater—and the best speeches denouncing this high-handed and vicious threat against freedom were made by some of the girls we know and love.

Such mild and gentle ladies as Helen Hayes and Peggy Wood, blazing with the crusading spirit, delivered vigorous and powerful harangues against the nefarious proposal. It was a fair treat to see and hear the little Hayes ripping off a heartfelt message. Letters and wires of protest poured into the executive offices of the State capital—but the learned Governor didn't need any prodding to see that this was far too much power to be placed in the hands of one man, be he ever so honest, upright and erudite. So he washed it out, and what is left of the poor, belabored theater breathes freely again!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—A rumor spread through Park avenue cocktail-lounges the other day to the effect that Cary Grant, the wonder man with the world's deepest chin-dimple, and the Countess Dorothy di Frasso were on the point of eloping with intent to marry. But Park avenue laughed heartily, for Dorothy is tightly wed to Count Carlo of Rome, while big Cary is still one of Hollywood's foremost exponents of single cussedness. But they are good, good friends, you may be sure. . . .

I hear that nearly 5,000,000 cases of pineapple juice are being shipped to the American mainland this year, owing to its appearance on so many diets, and because of the growing belief that fruit juices are elegant for the human innards at all times. I'm a pineapple juice fiend, dating from the time friends gave me a case in Honolulu, and I lived on the stuff all the way across Siberia on the ten-day trek to Moscow! . . .

One of the most common figures in our town is what the newspaper headline writers call "aged recluse." Hardly a day passes but what an old crone is found by the police with a few hundred-dollar bills sewn inside her bulging skirt. These demented old women, cracked on the subject of senile poverty, beg on the streets, eat others' leftover scraps, and are usually found dead while they have thousands of dollars in bank deposits. I see one or more on the street every day, muttering crazily to herself—and it inevitably gives me the leaping fantods . . .

Neighbor J. P. Morgan's hyacinths have given us Murray Hillbillies our annual pleasure. They grow in his side yard at Thirty-seventh street and Madison avenue, and make a very pretty picture, being so natural. But don't stop to stare too long, or one of Neighbor Morgan's special flat-feet will give you hard looks. They don't like loiterers—not even starry-eyed nature lovers—around the Morgan block.

The most elegant and attractive birthday cards I've ever seen are the new one with the simulated birthstone attached, the card being the color of the flower and the stone of the month. June, of course, is the rose, and the stone a pearl. Wonder if any of our girls are still simple and romantic enough to settle for a card and one phoney pearl instead of a string?

Interesting Sauces Submitted In The Post's Recipe Contest

By Rebekah Blake.

Sauces and dressings are playing an increasingly important part in American cuisine. This is obvious from the interest in The Post Recipe Contest of last week. Many interesting recipes for garnishing meats, fish, salads, vegetables and desserts were submitted. Included were recipes for chili sauce, horseradish sauce, wine sauce, hollandaise sauce, cheese and olive dressing, mixed fruit sauce, butterscotch and nut sauce, and many others just as interesting.

The first prize, $3, was awarded to Mrs. George S. Albertsen, Route 3, Annapolis, Md., for her recipe for sweetbreads and mushroom sauce.

The second prize, $2, went to Mrs. V. J. Aideser, 322 Ninth street northeast, for her recipe for raw vegetable sauce; the third prize, $1, went to Mrs. T. A. Linnane, 4907 V street northwest, for her recipe for Spanish salad dressing, and the fourth prize, also $1, was awarded to Miss Anna Barbek, 1835 Mintwood place northwest, for her recipe for Bohemian dressing. The fifth prize, $1, was won by Mrs. Elizabeth A. Porter, 2425 West Lanvale street, Baltimore, Md., for her recipe for tutti frutti sauce.

Sweetbreads and Mushroom Sauce.

2 pounds sweetbreads
Salt and pepper to taste
1 onion
3 stalks celery
2 sprigs parsley
1 pound mushrooms
½ cup butter or margarine
2 cups cream
1 teaspoon kitchen bouquet
2 tablespoons Worchestershire sauce
2 tablespoons flour
4 tablespoons sherry
1 teaspoon sugar

Cover the sweetbreads with water. Add onion, celery, parsley, salt and pepper. Boil 1 hour or until sweetbreads are tender. Strain broth and reserve to use later. There should be about two cupfuls of the liquor. Remove skin from sweetbreads. Wash mushrooms well. It will not be necessary to peel them if they are fresh. Remove caps from stems. Melt fat in skillet, add mushrooms and simmer until tender (20 minutes). Add 2 cupfuls of stock from sweetbreads, flour mixed to a paste with cream, and all other ingredients.

Cook until the sauce thickens, stirring constantly. Add sweetbreads. Simmer for 2 minutes longer. This is an excellent sauce to serve over baked potatoes.

Mrs. Aideser's recipe:

Raw Vegetable Sauce.

1 cup milk
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon dry mustard
2 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika.

Blend flour, salt, pepper, paprika. Melt butter. When it has started to brown add flour mixture and then the milk. Cook slowly until thickened then add the following, chopped fine:

1 tablespoon green pepper
1 tablespoon pimento
2 tablespoons celery
1 tablespoon minced onion
2 tablespoons raw carrot

Blend well and chill until ready to use.

Mrs. Linnane's recipe follows:

Spanish Salad Dressing.

1 cup shelled Brazilian nuts
1½ cups fresh grated cocoanut
2-3 pint boiling water
Juice of 3 lemons
1 teaspoon salt
3 eggs yolks.

Pour boiling water over cocoanut. Stir until water is cool then wring cocoanut until dry in a cheese cloth. Put nuts through a chopper and add them to the cocoanut water. Add beaten yolks of eggs, then lemon juice and salt. Stir over fire until of the consistency of mayonnaise. Use cold. This is a good salad dressing for tomatoes, chicken or fish.

Miss Anna Barbek's recipe:

Bohemian Dressing.

1 teaspoon salt and paprika
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon Worchestershire sauce
1 tablespoon chili sauce
½ teaspoon prepared mustard and horseradish
3 tablespoons vinegar
Juice of 1 large lemon
½ small cucumber
1 clove garlic
4 large stuffed olives, finely chopped
1 small gherkin, finely chopped
Few ice cubes
1 large onion
½ cup olive oil
Few capers.

Put the salt, pepper and paprika in a deep bowl and grate the onion, garlic and cucumber into it. Add the vinegar and lemon juice then beat with egg-beater. Strain good. Add all the rest of the ingredients to it and beat well again until emulsion-like consistency. Put in a high jar, add the ice and shake well before using. Good for any cold salads, cold slaw, cold fish or egg.

Mrs. Porter's recipe follows:

Tutti Frutti Sauce.

Put 1 pint of extra good brandy into a stone jar. Add fruits as they are in season. Allow 1 pound of sugar to each pint of fruit. Stir daily until all the fruits have been added. Peaches, cherries, apricots, raspberries, strawberries and pineapple are all delicious in this sauce. Serve it with vanilla ice cream or desired pudding.

WEEK-END MENUS

BREAKFAST.

Orange juice
Buckwheat cakes Syrup
Coffee Milk

LUNCHEON.

Mushroom soup
Asparagus and radish salad.
Iced chocolate
Prune whip Cookies

DINNER.

Tomato juice cocktail
Deviled crabs
Stuffed onions
Green bean slivers
Cole slaw
Hard seed rolls Butter
Iced coffee
Vanilla ice cream with Crushed strawberries

ASPARAGUS AND RADISH SALAD.

2-3 cup cooked asparagus
½ cup sliced radishes
2 tablespoons minced sweet pickles
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 hard-cooked egg, sliced
1 teaspoon minced parsley
1-3 cup French dressing

Chill the ingredients. Arrange on crisp lettuce placed on serving plates.

TODAY'S HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Systematic Exercises.

Those who wish to develop all the muscles in the body systematically and equally, will probably not go in very much for games or sports. Games or sports develop the body generally, but not every group of muscles is brought into play in any one exercise.

Muscle groups of the body are those of (1) the neck; (2) the shoulder girdle; 3) the upper arm; (4) the lower arm; (5) the back; (6) the abdomen; (7) the upper leg, and (8) the lower leg. Exercises which will do something to every one of these groups are as follows:

(1) The Neck: Standing erect, bend the head forward and backward; as far to the left side as possible and then as far to the right side as possible. Then rotate, looking first to the right and then to the left.

(2) The Shoulder Girdle: Standing erect with the arms straight out from the sides, move them in a circular fashion, so that the tips of the fingers describe a circle. Standing erect, with the arms at the sides of the body, move them in a wide circle until they meet over the top of the head.

(3) The Upper Arm: With the arms extended in front of the body, bend the elbow 20 times. Repeat with the arms extended straight out to the side from the shoulders.

(4) The Forearm: With the arms extended, move the hands up and down, 20 to 40 times, and then allow the hands to describe a circle, 20 times.

(5) The Back: Standing erect, lean over and touch your toes with your fingers 20 times. With the back in the erect position, lean to the side until your finger tips touch the knee, on each side 20 times. Lie down on the floor, face down, and raise yourself on your hands, up and down, 20 times.

(6) The Abdomen: Lie on the back, raise the head so that it looks at the toes, 20 times. Then, raise the feet, with the knees stiff, until they point toward the ceiling, 20 times. Bend the knees so that the thighs touch the abdomen, 20 times.

(7) The Upper Leg: Stand erect, rise on your toes, and then squat on your heels, 20 times.

(8) The Lower Leg: Stand erect, rise on your toes, 20 times. Stand erect, rise on your heels, 20 times.

Questions From Readers.

J. R. "Re. Writer's Cramp. Can you give me any information on this disorder? Particularly, have there been any substantial advances during the last ten years or so as to its pathology and therapy?"

Answer: Writer's cramp is a functional disorder, which is not well understood, nor is it any better understood now than it was several years ago. It is classified as a fatigue neurosis, consisting in spasms of the muscles and inability to write without making shaky writing. There is also numbness and sometimes pain in the hands and fingers. Since it is a fatigue neurosis, the best treatment is rest. Absolute cessation of writing is of first importance. The use of hyperemia, increasing the amount of blood in the limb by the use of a tourniquet around the arm, two or three times a day, has been highly recommended. When writing is resumed, it should be done with a different free-hand method.

Mr. and Mrs. Auslander To Live in Washington

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

Now it can be told. Social and literary circles in Washington will soon be increased by the addition of two personable and distinguished residents. Some time this summer, the Joseph Auslanders will come to the Capital to make their home.

A poet and widely-known lecturer of Columbia University, Mr. Auslander has been appointed to a recently founded position in the Library of Congress. He will be a consultant in English poetry. His work will be two-fold, and will consist of advising library officials on increasing their collections of English verse, and interpreting types of poetry to interested individuals.

While the Library of Congress has had consultants in other fields for a number of years, this is the first time in its history provision has been made for such a service in English poetry. And perhaps no person in the United States is better equipped to launch the work than Mr. Auslander, whose name and fame as a poet, critic, teacher and lecturer have already been established.

Wife Is Pulitzer Winner.

Mrs. Auslander is better known to the literary world as Audrey Wurdemann, winner of the Pulitzer prize for poetry a couple of years ago. The daughter of a noted eye surgeon in Seattle, Miss Wurdemann began writing lines in rhyme when she was 5 and "came dangerously near being a child prodigy—a fate from which my mother fortunately saved me," she once said with a twinkle in her eyes.

Miss Wurdemann, who has the distinction of being the youngest person ever to be awarded the Pulitzer prize for poetry, is still in her twenties. Tall and stately, with dark hair, clear blue eyes and a fair complexion, she is not the proverbial woman poet, either in looks or leanings. She dresses in an up-to-the-minute mode; she is alert and interested in a wide range of subjects. Furthermore, she never dilates on her own poetry, or her Pulitzer prize.

Poem Led to Meeting.

Many persons have wondered how two such distinguished poets as Joseph Auslander and his wife managed to meet, and marry. It came about this way: Miss Wurdemann and her mother were visiting in New York when she saw one of Mr. Auslander's poems in a verse journal. She liked it so much she told the editor of the magazine she would like to meet the poet. The next day, Mr. Auslander called on her and her mother at their hotel. From time to time after that when she went to New York she saw him. In 1932 they were married.

Mr. Auslander has nine books to his credit. His wife has three. Both will probably continue their writing in Washington, although doubtless they will also find plenty of time to increase their circle of acquaintances here. For the past two years they have made frequent trips to the Capital and have been widely entertained during their visits.

Here last week to make final arrangements regarding Mr. Auslander's new position, they started house hunting. As yet they have not definitely decided when they will move, but it will probably be some time in June.

Dr. Rowe Host To Cuba Envoy

One of the most popular persons in Washington these days seems to be Ambassador of Cuba, Senor Dr. Don Pedro Martinez Fraga, who has either entertained or been entertained steadily for the past week. Yesterday he was guest of honor at a luncheon given by the director general of the Pan American Union, Dr. L. S. Rowe, in the Pan American Annex.

Among the other guests were the Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Henry A. Wallace; the acting Secretary of State, Mr. Sumner Welles, Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, Representative Sol Bloom, Senor Dr. Jose T. Baron, Minister Counselor of the Cuban Embassy; Senor Dr. Don Vicente Valdes Rodriguez, Senor Dr. Roberto G. Mendoza, Senor Dr. Don Pedro Aguiar, Senor Dr. Don Oscar Diaz Albertini, Senor Dr. Don Ramiro Guerra, Dr. John C. Merriam, Senor Dr. Don Pedro de Alba, assistant director of the Pan American Union, and James S. Carson, of New York.

Goucher Committee Will Be Entertained

Mrs. David Allan Robertson will give a luncheon tomorrow for the alumnae reunion committee of Goucher College, Baltimore, Md. Mrs. John Weller is chairman of the committee.

Dr. and Mrs. Robertson and their son will go abroad in June to spend the summer. David Allan Robertson, jr., will be a student at Trinity College, Cambridge, next year as a Henry Fellow.

Alumni to Meet.

Mrs. Gerald Egan, president of the Holy Cross Alumnae Association, has named Miss Regina Hartnett general chairman for the traditional banquet to be held Thursday, June 3, at the Shoreham Hotel. Forty members of this year's graduating class will be initiated into the association following the dinner.

Miss Beall Wed To Mr. Naecker In Silver Spring

WITH ONLY relatives and close friends present, the wedding of Miss Marie Thelma Beall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Beall, of Avenel, Md., and Mr. Louis J. Naecker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Naecker, of Washington, took place yesterday morning in St. Michael's Church, Silver Spring, Md.

The altar was banked in palms and ferns, and the church was decorated with roses and snapdragons. The bride, given away by her father, wore a gown of white chiffon, fashioned on long flowing lines with French smocking at the waist as the only trimming. An old-fashioned bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley marked the V-neckline. Her shoulder-length veil was held by a braided chiffon coronet, and she carried an ivory-bound prayer book given to her by the Rev. Joachim V. Benson.

Miss Camille Beall, the bride's sister, who was maid of honor and only attendant, wore a blue marquisette gown and a broad-brimmed leghorn hat. She carried a bouquet of pink roses. Mr. Thomas Rosewag, of Berwyn, Md., was best man, and ushers were the bridegroom's brother, Mr. C. Naecker; Mr. Nicholas Rosewag, jr., and Mr. Everett Babcock, of Washington.

The ceremony was followed by a nuptial mass, with the Rev. Thomas A. Calnan, pastor of St. Michael's Church, officiating. Later, a small breakfast and reception took place at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Beall wore a navy sheer dress, trimmed in white, with a hat to match. The bridgroom's mother wore a frock of ivory linen-lace and a large natural linen hat.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Naecker left by motor for North Carolina. Upon their return they will be at home in South River Heights, Riva, Md., where they have leased a cottage for the summer season. In the fall they will move into their new home in Jefferson Park, Va.

Engagement Listed For Miss Hinsdale

Will Be Married to Mr. John Faude.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Helen Hinsdale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Wilson Heath Hinsdale, of West Hartford, Conn., to Mr. John Paul Faude, son of Mrs. Paul Faude, of West Hartford, and the late Rev. Paul Faude, of Detroit. Mr. Faude is the grandson of the late Col. and Mrs. George F. Shayer, for many years residents of Washington.

Miss Hinsdlae is a member of the Junior League, and was graduated from the Oxford School, in Hartford, and attended the Yale Art School.

Mr. Faude was graduated from Harvard in 1931, and from the Harvard Law School in 1934. He is now an attorney for a life insurance company in Hartford.

Third Division Women Will Aid Convention

The women of the Society of the Third Division will play an important part in the coming eighteenth annual convention of the division, which will be held at the Wardman Park Hotel, July 15 to 18. A large attendance of the Mamemen and their wives and children is expected and the convention committee is planning sightseeing tours, teas and many other social functions for the visitors.

Mrs. Fred L. Walker is general chairman of the group of women in charge of the various activities. Assisting her will be Mrs. Frank J. Jervey, Mrs. Ralph C. Bishop, Mrs. N. A. Link, Mrs. A. A. Wotier, Mrs. W. A. Shomaker, Mrs. Richard C. Walters and Mrs. Holland L. Robb. Additional members will be announced later. Mrs. A. A. Wotier is serving as secretary.

Presented at Court

Harrods—London.

MISS EVE MARK-WARDLAW

posed for this picture shortly after her presentation at the Court of St. James this season. The 18-year-old daughter of the Assistant Naval Attache to the British Embassy and Mrs. A. S. P. Mark-Wardlaw made her bow before King George VI in a gown of honey-cream lace. Her father, who has just returned from England, brought with him this photograph. He was the only member of the British Embassy staff to go over specifically for the court presentation. Miss Wardlaw and her mother will return to Washington in August.

Miss Kessler Married at Fort Myer

Lieut. L. H. Brownlee Weds Washington Resident.

Bride Wears Mother's Rose Point Lace Gown.

Fort Myer Chapel was the scene of the wedding at 8 o'clock last evening of Miss Mary Mershon Kessler, daughter of Mrs. Percy M. Kessler, of Washington, and the late Col. Kessler, to Lieut. Laurance Hilliard Brownlee, C. A. C., U. S. A., son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bedell Brownlee, of Woodmere, L. I.

The bride wore a wedding gown in which her mother and her sister, Mrs. Pierre A. Agnew, were married. Made of rose point lace over satin, it had a long tulle veil with a coronet of the same lace, trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley in a silver holder that is an heirloom.

Miss Alice Hayes, another sister, served as matron of honor, wearing a frock of peach mousseline with a maline hat of the same color, trimmed with a band of chiffon. She carried talisman rosese and delphinium. The other attendants were Mrs. Robert Kessler, a sister-in-law of the bride; Mrs. Pierre Agnew, a sister, and Miss Helena Mallory, and Miss Dorothy Nice. Miss Kessler and Miss Nice were gowned in aqua mousseline with matching hats, and Mrs. Agnew and Miss Mallory wore similar gowns in a lavender shade. All carried yellow roses.

Lieut. R. C. Brownlee served as his brother's best man. The ushers were Capt. Pierre A. Agnew, Capt. George H. Burgess, Lieut J. H. Hinrichs, Lieut. J. M. Colby, and Lieut. William Bullock.

After the ceremony there was a reception at the Army and Navy Club. Mrs. Kessler wore a gown of gray chiffon and a small hat made of artificial pansies. There were several hundred guests, including many from Army and Navy circles.

After a wedding trip to France, Lieut. Brownlee and his bride will reside at West Point. They will return to this country in September.

Cadet to Wed Margaret Speir

Marriage in West Point Chapel Will Be on June 13.

Miss Margaret Speir, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Smith of Takoma Park, left yesterday for Aberdeen, Md., to spend a few days before going to West Point, N. Y., where she will be married June 13.

Her engagement to Cadet Charles Thomas Clagett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Clagett, was announced some time ago. The wedding will take place in the West Point Chapel, followed by a reception at the Thayer Hotel. The Rev. Christian M. Young, former pastor of Trinity Episcopal Church, in Takoma Park, will perform the ceremony at 11:30 a. m.

Miss Marjorie Walker, of Washington, will be the maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Miss Dorothy Heighfield, Miss Margaret Sampson, Miss Kathryn Friant, Miss Lillian Nalle, of Washington; Miss Eleanor Sherburne, of Takoma Park, and Miss Peggy Walls, of Georgetown, Del. Cadet Fred Unger will be best man. The ushers, all classmates of the bridegroom, will include William Chase, of Milwaukee; William Cenoweth, of Big Bend, Ind.; Kenneth Wade, Randy Hines, Samuel Agee, of New York; Mr. Robert Besson, New York.

Miss Speir is a graduate of Holton Arms, and has an extensive circle of friends in Washington.

The MERRY WHIRL

By Marylyn

THE BRYDEN GIRLS, Ellen and Marian, gave a gay party Wednesday evening in their home on Macomb street. It was a buffet supper, with small tables arranged conveniently about the house so that those present could enjoy their food in comfort. When it came time to pick out places to sit, Grace O'Hara whose marriage to Harry King, of Fort Myer, will take place July 3 (it was in their honor), found her place marked by a miniature bridal bouquet of white roses, lilies of the valley and a shower of white blossoms.

While sitting around the big table in the dining room drinking coffee and appropriately playing "coffee pot," that dreadful game that means asking countless questions and racking one's brain to solve the riddle, someone noticed the attractive bracelet which Marjorie Grant was wearing—one of those chains with many little gadgets hanging on it. Upon closer examination, it was discovered that each charm bore the name of some friend. "Oh," exclaimed Alice Torrey Griffith, "how cute to have each charm marked with a person's name—those charming people, as it were."

After diner, Ellen and Marian (they both were in white lace, Marian with an organdy overskirt and Ellen with a lei effect of crisp white blossoms) took their guests over to the Army and Navy Country Club.

Among the people seen at the club were Margaret Sampson, tall and stately in a vivid print with a gorgeous shell comb in her black curls, dancing with Jim Wimsatt.

Stuart Fries and a group of friends at a nearby table, where sat also Amanda Hickey Guiney, who is here for a visit and being eagerly welcomed home—we particularly admired her natural colored nub-wool suit.

Edmund Gullion, in cool-looking gray flannels; Mary Kessler and Raymond Brownlee, who looked as though they did not have a care in the world, in spite of the fact that they were getting married the following day.

• • • •

J. EDGAR HOOVER and Tom Henning, two very young men have such responsible positions as they have, were having a few moments of relaxation the other afternoon when we stopped by the Mayflower lounge. But even when their group, which numbered about eight or nine, was in the midst of merriment, these two stole off to a nearby table and carried on a very serious-looking conversation. Can't they forget work?

LYLE O'ROURKE, busy young man about town, has no time for rest or vacation, it seems. Now, just when he has been looking forward to taking time out, he has to hie himself out to Denver, there to be a delegate to the conclave of the U. S. Junior Chambers of Commerce. He leaves the middle of June—Westward, ho!

Army and Navy Union Auxiliary Hears Talks

A special meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary, President's Own Garrison, Army and Navy Union, U. S. A., was held yesterday. National Lady Commander Caroline Toomey and Lady Commander Elizabeth Ellis discussed plans for the coming national convention, to be held at the Willard Hotel, August 11 to 14.

Commander Toomey will remain in Washington through Sunday to lay a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier and to take part in the ceremonies for Memorial Day at the Arlington Cemeteery. She will also attend the Army and Navy Union National Aviation Day banquet this evening.

Here From Newark.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Taliaferro, of Newark, N. J., are staying at the Carlton Hotel during their visit.

Reception Held By Air Attache Of Great Britain

Mayflower Scene of Affair; Mrs. Denys Smith (Helen Trenholme) Present.

One of 40-odd people in the entire country who held a return trip ticket on the ill-fated airliner Hindenburg is Group Capt. T. E. B. Howe, Air Attache of the British Embassy. Yesterday Capt. Howe—who still has his ticket—entertained at a reception at the Mayflower.

Navy people, experts on aviation and, of course, members of the British Embassy staff, were a majority of the guests. Capt. Howe, a bachelor, had asked several ladies to assist him during the afternoon. Among those who poured tea, or helped receive, were Mrs. Henry Frank Heywood, wife of the Commercial Secretary of the British Embassy; Miss Willa Magee, who makes her home here with the Canadian Minister and Lady Marler, and Misses Helen and Nancy Brereton, daughters of Capt. and Mrs. William D. Brereton.

Quite a center of attraction yesterday was Mrs. Denys Smith, who, under her stage name, Helen Trenholme, took one of the parts in Helen Hayes' great success, "Victoria Regina." Mrs. Smith—or Miss Trenholme—left the cast of the play several months ago to act in two other Broadway productions. She will not join the scheduled road tour of Housman's play next fall, and so perhaps Washington will have a chance to see something of this young actress who is the wife of Mr. Denys Smith, correspondent of the London Post.

The buffet yesterday included a cold salad, cakes and sandwiches and champagne. Among those who dropped in were Lady Marler, the Charge d'Affaires of Poland, Mr. Witold Wankowicz; Rear Admiral and Mrs. Emory Land and Capt. and Mrs. Brereton.

From the Canadian Legation came virtually the entire staff, including the First Secretary and Mrs. Mahoney, the Third Secretary and Mrs. Ronald Macdonnell and Mr. Charles Ritchie. The British Embassy was represented by—among others—the newly arrived Financial Counselor, Mr. E. N. R. Trentham; the Counselor, Mr. V. A. L. Mallet, and the Naval Attache and Mrs. Bradley.

Others present included Mrs. William T. Mann, Mrs. Thomas Burke, Mr. Anthony de Balasy, of the Hungarian Legation; the Air Attache of the French Embassy and Mme. Champsaur, and Mrs. Hamilton Wright.

Entre Nous Breakfast To Honor Mrs. Keyser

The Entre Nous Club will close the year's activities at a breakfast to be given in celebration of the birthday anniversary of its president, Mrs. Charles P. Keyser, on June 10, at the Kenesaw.

The committee on arrangements includes Mrs. William Sault, Mrs. James Underwood, Mrs. William W. Scott, Mrs. Charles Emery Ferguson, Mrs. Otis J. Rodgers and Mrs. Robert Lyons.

Mrs. Truxton Beale and Miss Catrina F. Beale are spending a few days in Williamsburg.

Picnic Parties Feature Meetings of Three Women's Clubs; Twentieth Century Group Frolics on Holiday House Grounds

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

CLUB MEETINGS were all picnics yesterday. The Twentieth Century Club enjoyed a program, followed by a luncheon on the grounds of Girls' Friendly Holiday House, Mount Vernon boulevard; the Bethesda Woman's Club celebrated its twenty-sixth annual charter day with a picnic at its clubhouse on Georgetown road, and members of the art section of the Petworth Woman's Club gathered for luncheon at Vacation Lodge in Cherrydale, Va.

Mrs. Edward Montgomery was chairman of arrangements for the Twentieth Century Club picnic with Mrs. William R. Maxon as co-chairman. Originality, characteristic of the club's entertainments, marked the program of original sketches presented by a committee of past presidents under the chairmanship of Mrs. Edward B. Clark.

Among the features of the day were original limericks—some of them about club members—read by a group under the leadership of Mrs. Edward C. Thomas. Another was "The Impossibles," one of Mrs. Frederick E. Farrington's clever satires, given by Mrs. Farrington and Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, who stood behind a scene and held up little puppets as the characters. "The Tourist" was another amusing sketch, with Mrs. Lyman B. Swormstedt as the guide and a group of club members as "tourists" in costume.

The program also included poems of Robert Behn, read from manuscript by Mrs. Ridgley Chapline; an original story, by Col. Edward B. Clark, read by Mrs. Eugene Stevens, and one of his poems, read by Mrs. John Van Schaick.

The past presidents' committee, responsible for the entertainment, included, Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Farrington, Mrs. Swormstedt, Mrs. Elwood B. Morey, Mrs. William Walter Husband, Mrs. Eugene Stevens and Mrs. Ernest P. Bicknell.

Luncheon was served on the lawn to 140 guests among whom was Mrs. Karl Fenning, the club president.

Bethesda Club Observes Birthday

Mrs. Franklin Getzendanner, organizing president of the Bethesda Club, and Mrs. Eleanor Cronine, one of the seven charter members, were among the guests of honor, and Mrs. Getzendanner cut the birthday cake at its charter day picnic. The new president, Mrs. Leonard Nicholson, who presided, had at her table past presidents of the club: Mrs. Edward Willis, Mrs. Charles Chambers, Mrs. E. G. Johnson, Mrs. N. F. Rabner, and Mrs. George Pariseau.

The members had brought sandwiches, which were served with salad, ice cream and iced tea at small tables, in the clubhouse auditorium. Garden flowers formed the bouquets used as centerpieces and, on the president's table red roses and white candles carried out the club colors. Mrs. Edward Garlock was in charge of arrangements for the luncheon.

The affair closed the official season of the club, but informal meetings will be held twice a month during the summer, to which members will bring picnic luncheons, and spend the afternoon sewing or playing cards.

Petworth Section Goes to Cherrydale

THE RUSTIC PORCH of Vacation Lodge, the Y. W. C. A. summer residence at Cherrydale, was the setting for the luncheon of the art section of the Petworth Club. About 45 members and guests were present. The youngest and most popular of the guests was little Joyce Anne Kennedy, aged 6 months, who was there with her mother, Mrs. E. L. Kennedy, of Detroit, who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Dorst. Mrs. O. H. Nelson, the new president of the club, was present.

Radiance roses decorated the green tables on the porch at which the guests were seated. After the luncheon some remained to play bridge and others spent the afternoon strolling through the grounds of Vacation Lodge.

Moose Auxiliary Group Memorial Is Tonight

The next regular meeting of Columbia Chapter, Women of the Moose, tonight at Moose Hall, 1414 I street northwest, will be the occasion of a memorial service honoring deceased members. This service, including the flower ritual, will be in charge of Past Regent Mrs. Anna Wagner, chairman of the ritualistic committee, who will preside, and Senior Regent Mrs. Susie Sorenson, will make the address of the eveninng.

To Attend Ceremonies.

Mrs. L. M. Blankenhorn has arrived from Pasadena, Calif., accompanied by Mrs. R. E. Anderson, of Tacoma, Wash., and they are at the Wardman Park Hotel. They are here attending the graduation of Mrs. Blankenhorn's daughter, Miss Laura Wheeler, at the Mount Vernon Seminary this week-end.

Economics Group University Women Will Meet Jointly

THE ACADEMY of World Economics and the International Relations Committee of the American Association of University Women will have a joint luncheon tomorrow afternoon at 1:15 at the A. A. U. W. clubhouse. Dr. Bertil Ohlin, Swedish economist and author, who is here as a guest of the academy, will speak. Dr. John Donaldson, chairman of the academy, will preside.

Dr. Ohlin, one of Sweden's outstanding economists, had charge of the League of Nations study on courses and phases of the world economic depression. Prominent Government officials, members of Brookings Institution and professors and advanced students of international affairs will be guests.

100 Attend Banquet Of Blue Triangle Club at Y. W. C. A.

MISS PEGGY CRAGG, president of the Blue Triangle Club of the Y. W. C. A., presided at its closing banquet at the "Y" last night, attended by 100 members.

"Gates" was the theme of the program. Talks were given by Misses Della Furzer, Alberta Mahone and Margaret Hibble. Miss Marjorie Allen presented a review of the year's activities under the title, "Within Our Gates," and also led community singing. Miss Estelle Dunnington accompanied at the piano, and was also accompanist for Miss Margaret Mowbray, who sang a group of solos.

Installation of officers closed the program. Miss Sara Motley is the new president of the club; Miss Mabel Hutchins, vice president; Miss Margaret Stevens, secretary, and Miss Minerva Whitmore, treasurer.

Plan Joint Services.

Joint memorial services under the direction of the department of the Potomac, G. A. R. will be held at Tent headquarters June 10 at 8 p.m. instead of June 3, by Ellen Spencer Mussey Tent No. 1. Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War.

Honors Daughter.

With her daughter, Miss Jane Irma Gibbons, as honoree, Mrs. J. T. Gibbons entertained members of the graduating class at Holton Arms at a luncheon yesterday at the Shoreham.

THERE'S A NEW BOOK soon to be issued in Washington, to the publication of which Dr. Howard S. Wilkinson is eagerly looking forward. The reason. Very simple: It will have his name in it—It's the telephone directory.

Dr. Wilkinson came here after the present directory was out. . . . He is rector, as you no doubt know, of St. Thomas Protestant Episcopal Church, which the President attends . . . But there is also a Rev. Benjamin G. Wilkinson, president of the Washington Missionary College, who has been here for some time. He too is looking forward to the publication of the new directory; for nearly every day someone who wants Dr. Howard S. Wilkinson, calls him, having found the "Rev." in front of the name. Dr. Howard S. misses calls which should come to him, the Rev. Benjamin G. receives many not intended for him. The former regrets to trouble the latter with his telephone messages but there's nothing he can do about it until the summer directory comes off the press.

Marietta Park Club To Install Officers At June 1 Banquet

The club year of the Marietta Park Woman's Club closes with the installation of new officers at a formal banquet at 7 o'clock in the Congressional Country Club. Mrs. Thomas C. Atkeson, president for 1936-37, will preside.

Mrs. John D. Kiley, the incoming president, her officers and chairmen will be inducted by the club's new ritual. The guests of honor will be Mrs. Roberta Lawson, president of General Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Lloyd Biddle, president of District Federation, and Mrs. Ellis Logan, a former District Federation president.

Michigan Group Plans Moonlight River Trip

A moonlight trip aboard the City of Washington on the Potomac River is planned by the Michigan Washington Democratic Club on Friday, June 11. The boat will leave the Seventh street wharf at 8:30 p. m., with an hour stop at Marshall Hall. It will return to Washington at 11 p. m. There will be dancing during the cruise.

Mrs. Philip R. Vernier, of Detroit, is entertainment chairman, and is assisted by Mrs. P. E. Winn, of Dearborn, and Miss Esther Huntdley, of Monroe.

'Lost Colony' History Sung At Musicale

Settlement at Roanoke I. Commemorated in Song and Poetry.

A SALON MUSICALE, commemorating the sailing from England, May, 1587, of Gov. White and the famous "lost colony of Roanoke," was presented last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edouard Albion, in Chevy Chase. It was one of a series of events given this season for patrons of the National Opera, as well as friends of the hosts in Washington interested in music.

The rooms were hung with Jacques Bushbee's pictures of the coast of North Carolina, where Sir Walter Raleigh's first colonists landed. Long-leaf pine, gray Spanish moss and yeopon, gathered by Mr. Theodore Meekins, of Manteo, N. C., from the site of Fort Raleigh, were used in decoration. The moss framed a screen on which Mrs. Albion showed, as lantern slides, photographic reproductions of drawings made of Gov. White, of the Indians he had found on this continent.

Mrs. Albion Reads Poem.

After a talk by Mr. John Wilber Jenkins on the history of the "lost colony," Mrs. Albion read a poem written by her kinsman, Henry Jerome Stockard, on "Sir Walter Raleigh."

The music of the evening was presented by the 12-year-old twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Mauney, of King's Mountain, N. C.; their niece, Miss Elizabeth Marshall Mauney, and by Mr. Albion. Miss Mauney, a coloratura soprano, and Mr. Albion both sang old English, Scotch and Irish ballads. They were accompanied by Mrs. Charles Peyton Greyer.

Receiving with the hosts were Representative Zebulon Weaver, of North Carolina; Mr. Joseph Quincy Adams, Mr. Giles Yoemans Newton, president of the North Carolina State Society; Lady Cecil-Knightley and former Representative Janet Rankin, who was one of the first patrons of the National Opera.

Guests at Musicale.

Among the guests were the Minister of Czechoslovakia and Mme. Hurban, the Commercial Counselor of the British Embassy and Mrs. Heywood, the First Secretary of the Canadian Legation and Mrs. Merchant Mahoney, the First Secretary of the Rumanian Legation and Mme. Babes, the Financial Counselor and Mme. Boncesco, the First Secretary of the Czechoslovakian Legation, Mr. Otakar Abelac; Baroness Von Below, Mrs. Helena Glassey, Gen. and Mrs. Amos A. Fries, Maj. and Mrs. Henry O. Swindler, Maj. and Mrs. George Oakley Totten, Mrs. William Wheatley and her guest, Mme. Suzanne Laurent, who recently returned from Paris; Senator and Mrs. James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goodale, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Drane, Mr. and Mrs. Rutland Beard, and their daughter, Renee; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Mack, Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard and the Rev. and Mrs. Luther Frantz.

Briton Pleads For American Help to Jewry

Lord Marley, the British Laborite peer who warned Americans to remain away from the coronation lest they be "bilked," renewed his work last night for stricken Jewry.

Chairman of the British Empire Parliamentary Committee for O. R. T., an international organization for the rehabilitation of refugee Jews, he declared before a distinguished group gathered in the Mayflower Hotel that the refugee question is "not alone Jewish, but also non-Jewish. Anything that causes unrest is a threat to democracy."

He then told Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), of New York, chairman of the Congressional committee of the O. R. T. Federation, that "because America is the stronghold of democracy and justice, she has an important place in the work of the organization."

Describes Work.

In describing its work, he said:

"In view of the general industrial development recently observed in eastern Europe, the work carried on by the hundreds of O. R. T. (vocational) schools has acquired a new significance. The great majority of the Jewish population has in the past been engaged in various forms of the distributive trades, and clearly they must now be helped to participate in the new industrial development."

The attitudes of the seven governments within whose territory O. R. T. conducts its work, he said, has "within the last years been noticeably more friendly and helpful."

Senator Wagner, who presided at the meeting, declaring "we must hold up the hands of those who are carrying on this great work," said, "we of the Congressional committee can make a significant contribution toward this end. The value of our interest, sympathy and moral support is incalculable. At least 5,000,000 people in Europe, without means of livelihood, almost without hope, have no salvation unless the ORT program succeeds. Our own interest must not flag . . .

"Every new word from abroad brings additional evidence that the need for ORT is greater today than ever before—that all those sympathetic toward its objectives must redouble their efforts to carry them on."

Congress Members Present.

Among those present were Congressmen and representatives from countries wherein ORT does its work. The latter included the Soviet Ambassador, Alexander Troyanovsky; the Minister from Lithuania, P. Zadeikish; the Charge d'Affaires of the Polish Embassy, W. Wankowicz, and the Secretary of the Latvian Legation, R. Smits.

Large Class Is Graduated At National Park Seminary

Practical experience and not theory is necessary for good citizenship, Newbold Noyes, Washington newspaperman, told the graduating class at National Park Seminary yesterday.

"We grow by what we feed on, the present is the flower of the past," he said. Noyes spoke in place of Sir Willmott Lewis, Washington correspondent for the London Times, who was unable to be present for his scheduled address.

The exercises were held in the Odeon on the seminary grounds at Forest Glen. Many old graduates, some of whom had daughters in the school, came back to visit the old scenes and tell the wishing stairs whether the wishes they made at graduation came true.

The invocation was by the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives. Diplomas were presented by Mrs. James E. Ament, vice president of the seminary.

Honor students were announced as follows: Academic — Esther Dickinson, first; Ruth Sheppard, second, and Dorothy Porritt, third. General—Jerry Davidson, first; Joan Sheridan, second, and Ruth Anderson, third. Arts—Betty Webb, first; Mary Louise Davis, second, and Charlene Watkins, third.

Don't Seek Husbands, Warns Mrs. Vandenberg

New York, May 27 (AP).—Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, wife of the Republican Senator from Michigan, advised American girls today against making marriage their sole ambition in life.

"Let it come if it will," she said, "but don't go hunting for the right man. He will find you if it is to be. Meanwhile make good in some chosen vocation and concentrate on becoming a success in whatever you undertake."

Hygiene Society Is Told Syphilis Can Be Curbed

Yale Authority Says Disease Elimination Possible by New Methods.

Syphilis can practically be eliminated as a health problem in the United States through well-equipped, efficient clinics and early detection and treatment of the disease, Dr. C. A. E. Winslow, public health authority at Yale University's Medical School, told 100 members of the Social Hygiene Society at the Mayflower Hotel last night.

Speaking on "The Drama of Syphilis," Dr. Winslow described the history of the disease as falling into three acts. The first, he said, began with its discovery shortly after Columbus' return to Europe, lasting only a few years. The third and final act began in 1900. He pointed to the phenomenal success of research scientists in treating the disease, saying that between 1905 and 1910 its cause was discovered, a test devised to indicate its presence and a specific cure developed.

In his address, the speaker compared the prevalence of the disease in Sweden, Norway, England and America. He particularly emphasized that development of clinics and accurate information on the disease's spread had all but eradicated the disease in Sweden. In England, a smaller program has reduced it by half.

Speaking indirectly, he implied that present clinic services for syphilis patients are "not correlated with or supplemental to satisfactory private practice services, and are not supported with vigor by either health authorities, physicians or the public in the United States." The effect of such clinics is "insignificant," the speaker maintained.

He closed by paying high tribute to Dr. Thomas Parran, chief of the United States Public Health Service. "If we give him our support," he concluded, "the final curtain soon may be rung down on the drama of syphilis in the United States."

Dr. Winslow was the principal speaker at the society's meeting, at which Herbert S. Wood and Ray H. Everett presided. Representative Everett M. Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, was one of those speaking informally, expressing his personal concern and interest in problems of social hygiene.

Three Children Die In Flaming Shanty

Crisfield, Md., May 27 (AP).—Three colored children burned to death early today as flames leveled a shanty on the W. L. Whittington farm.

The children were members of a Virginia family which came here to work during the strawberry picking season. One child was an infant. The others were 5 and 8 years old. Five other colored families living in the same shanty escaped injury.

Dog Sentenced to Die For Nipping Man's Leg

Denver, May 27 (AP).—Municipal Judge Phillip B. Gilliam sentenced Curley, a water spaniel, to die June 7 after Carl Eskildson testified today the dog had nipped him on the right calf.

Va. Revenues Show $13,467,245 Increase

Richmond, Va., May 27 (AP).—State Budget Director J. H. Bradford said today that State revenues in the ten months ended April 30 amounted to $65,967,107 while expenditures totaled $58,301,137.

The revenue total represented an increase over the corresponding period of last year of $13,467,245 and the expenditures represented an increase of $11,035,872, the budget director said.

The figures for the ten months showed an increased in the gasoline tax receipts of $1,685,694 over the corresponding period.

Washington Surgeon Speaks in Indianapolis

Indianapolis, May 27 (AP).—For self-protection alone it is incumbent on society to get behind the search for those elusive causes of the ills which beset the human race, Dr. Joseph W. Mountin, of Washington, United States Public Health Service surgeon, said in an address here today.

Dr. Mountin spoke at the American Public Welfare Association session held in connection with the National Conference on Social Work. The social security system, he said, makes even more necessary the study of the disability factor in dependency.

Cary A. Marshall Rites Set Today

Funeral services for Cary A. Marshall, veteran employe of the General Land Office and a descendant of Chief Justice Marshall, will be held at 2 p. m. today at Leeds Church, Fauquier County, Va.

Mr. Marshall died Monday at his home in Markham, Fauquier County. He was 57 years old.

A graduate of Georgetown University Law School, he was employed for 30 years in the field service of the General Land Office. He retired last November.

C.I.O. Signs Pact With Transit Firm

New York, May 27 (AP).—The Transport Workers Union, C. I. O. group, tonight reached an agreement with the Interborough Rapid Transit Co. involving 14,000 workers and calling for a 10 per cent wage increase and a closed shop.

The agreement was jointly announced by John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chairman, and Thomas Murray, receiver for the company, which operates subway and elevated lines throughout the city.

Effective between July 4 of this year and December 31, 1938, the agreement involves a pay-roll increase of $2,500,000.

Denny Shute Leads Field Of 8 Stars

Quarter-Final Round Today Will See Plenty of Golf Action.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.
A Staff Correspondent.

Pittsburgh Field Club, Aspinwall, Pa., May 27.—Paul (Little Poison) Runyan, and Smashing Sam Snead, touted as final-round opponents here in the Professional Golfers Association championship, joined in the "crying room" instead after today's play, the victims of startling upsets on the part of Jimmy Hines, the recent winner of the "Met" Open, and Harold McSpaden, from Winchester, Mass.

Denny Shute led the parade of the six other favorites into the quarterfinal rounds, including Ky Laffoon, Henry Picard, Byron Nelson, Tony Manero and Harry Cooper. The closest match of the day was Hines' 2-and-1 triumph over Runyan, while Nelson and Cooper were always in the van in turning in 5-and-4 triumphs over Johnny Farrell and Jim Foulis, respectively.

Laffoon's margin of victory over Jimmy Thompson was 4 and 3, while Henry Picard won by the same margin over Horton Smith. Strangely enough, both matches were even starting the final nine holes of play.

"Jug McSpaden shot the best golf of the day in subduing the favored Snead, and finally received credit for his fine play that has marked all rounds thus far this week.

The morning round of the Snead-McSpaden battle left a trail of birdies and eagles and the eventual winner with a slim one up margin going to lunch. Three birdies and an eagle were scored on the first nine and two under-par holes on the second, including three second shots on par four holes that were each 2 feet from the pin. Snead's response to this brand of golf was an even par 72, a card that took advantage of McSpaden's bogey holes and included 14 pars.

In the afternoon McSpaden went 2 up at the third hole, back to 1 at the fifth and when Sammy 3-putted from 15 feet on the seventh, Jug was up again. He turned in 38, retaining his two-hole margin.

Consistency was the word for the likable Northerner on the crucial fourth nine holes of the day and he shot six consecutive 4's and climaxed the match on the sixteenth hole when he putted over the divot left by Snead's tee shot for a birdie and victory. He played 34 holes, the afternoon round, through a continuous downpour, in 2 under par. Unbeatable Sam Snead just ran into a hot round.

Runyan Takes a 40.

Runyan's defeat was the result of slipshod golf in the final round. In the morning he was 1 up at nine and 2 at intermission. He soared to 40 strokes on the third nine of the day, Hines squaring the match. The "bushy-haired blond" won the eleventh with a par and birdied the twelfth to go 2 up, and Runyan could not shake the deficit, bowing on the seventeenth hole. Hines was 75 for each round.

The possibility of a repeat victory loomed in this event as Denny Shute, with remarkably consistent golf for 27 holes and a hot streak on the last nine, repulsed the challenge of Philadelphia's big Ed Dudley, 3 and 2.

The defending champion, all even and eight holes to play, fired four 3's in the next six holes and a birdie 4 on the fifteenth, where he chipped in from 40 feet off the green to win the hole. Denny seems content to play even until pay-off time and then bears down to win. He'll be hard to beat and is the favorite of the betting fraternity.

Nelson Shoots Steadily.

Medalist Byron Nelson scored a victory over former National Open Champion Johnny Farrell. The "best-dressed man" held the young Reading star even for eight holes, but 3-pointed the ninth, turned the eighteenth 4-down and bowed in the afternoon to the regulation shooting of the promising Ryder Cup star.

Harry Cooper, playing the only virtually nationally unknown golfer, Jim Foulis, of Chicago, assumed an early two-hole lead and see-sawed throughout the match from 1 to 5 up and finally closed him out on the fourteenth hole, exactly even par for the day. His morning round was 71, one under par.

Picard Blows Lead.

Tony was up through the morning round, but built the lead to 5 by playing the first seven holes of the second round in 4 under par. He finished 5 to 5 for a 34, two under. Ghezzi duplicated the show on the second nine, throwing in birdies on 11, 12, 13 and 15 to cut the lead to 1, but Manero's final thrust earned him a quarter-final berth.

Henry Picard blew a three-hole lead he held at the conclusion of the first round, Horton Smith squaring the match on the twenty-seventh hole, but blew sky high at this point, the "Chocolate Kid" winning

Maxie Baer Knocks Out Benny Foord

Ex-Champion Launches His English 'Comeback' With Victory.

By the United Press.

London, May 27.—Maxie Baer, former world heavyweight champion, tonight began his English comeback attempt by knocking out Ben Foord, former British and empire titleholder, in the ninth of their scheduled 12-round bout in Harringway Arena.

After flooring Foord twice in the ninth for counts of nine, Maxie let go one more punch that nearly lifted the South African from his feet. Foord went down and was counted out.

It was a sockfest from the beginning with Baer apparently determined to show the English audience he was a better fighter than when he was outpointed by Tommy Farr, present British empire titleholder, last month.

Weighing 212 pounds, 3½ more than his opponent, Baer clowned through the first session, grinning and dancing about. He won the round, however, by keeping out of distance and landing several good rights.

The fighting cut loose in the second, Baer knocking down Foord with the same terrific roundhouse rights that craried him to the world title. Foord took a count of nine each time.

The American also outpunched Foord to win the third. Foord won the fourth, outboxing Maxie, but he took several hard rights that had his face bloody. Both forgot about defense in the fifth and stood slugging toe-to-toe. Maxie got the best of it.

Baer continued to lead in the sixth but, always a sucker for a left jab, he took plenty of them. He didn't seem to mind though, and with the characteristic Baer snarl, he would cut loose with another right.

Outmaneuvering Baer again, Foord won the seventh. Maxie came back to win the eighth, barraging the South African with a flood of rights and lefts.

Baer came out swinging as it determined to get his man in the ninth. The first right he landed dropped Foord. Ben arose cautiously at the count of nine, but Maxie was on him again, flooring him with another right. He wasn't up a minute before Baer picked up his right from the floor and looped it to Farr's chin for the knockout.

Hatch Albino Trout.

Frederick, Md., May 27.—Forty-five albino trout have been hatched from the eggs of a brown trout at the State hatchery at Lewistown, and an attempt will be made to raise the fingerlings to maturity, Albert M. Sports in Brief

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 27.—Entries for the renewal of the $25,000 added American Derby to be run June 19 at Washington Park were announced today, with War Admiral, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, among the 47 thoroughbreds eligible.

Other stars named for the event include Col. Edward R. Bradley's Brooklyn, Billionaire and Biologist; Warren Wright's Privileged, and Marshield, Military, Reaping Reward, Case Ace and Murph from Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Milky Way Farms Stable. Pompoon, which ran second to War Admiral in both the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, also has been entered.

Upper Montclair, N. J.—Mrs. Marion Turpie, of New Orleans, advanced into the semifinal round of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Championship today when she won a 5 and 4 victory over Mrs. Wright D. Goss, of Baltusrol, N. J.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Five Western Conference schools filed entries today for the twelfth annual central intercollegiate track and field championships at the Marquette University Stadium Friday afternoon and night, June 4. They were Chicago, Iowa, Illinois, Purdue and Minnesota.

Wirephoto: Carry U. S. Colors in British Amateur

Wehrle Leads U. S. Trio in British Golf

Defeats Two Opponents, Gains Quarter-Finals; Chapman Advances.

Sandwich, England, May 27.—England suddenly became Wilford Wehrle-conscious today as the young Racine (Wis.) chemist played two brilliant rounds in a high wind and joined two other Americans and five Britons in the last eight of the British amateur golf championship.

Until today Wehrle had been only a name they couldn't pronounce, but at nightfall he was being regarded as a likely champion to succeed Hector Thomson, Scottish star who abandoned the title because of ill health.

Dick Chapman, of Greenwich, Conn., and Robert Sweeny, of New York and London, also managed to scrape into the quarterfinals, largely because they didn't encounter any golf to speak of, but Wehrle gained his place the hard way.

With every shot under perfect control despite gusts of wind from the sea, the Wisconsin youngster was only two over fours for the 34 holes he required to beat two British rivals, A. J. Evans, 1 up, and J. H. Neal, Royal Air Force champion, 3 and 2.

To give an idea of the superlative quality of his game, it can be pointed out Chapman was 11 over fours for 17 holes this afternoon, yet contrived to win.

Chapman won his fourth-round match from Stanley Morrison without much trouble, but he survived the afternoon round only because his British rival, H. G. Harrison, was worse than he was. Chapman was out in 41, and then needed 38 strokes for the remaining eight holes of the match to win, 2 and 1.

Sweeny, who still is an American although he has only a nodding acquaintance with his homeland and has played all his golf on this side of the Atlantic, shot a pair of comfortable 76's to beat Bromley Davenport at the nineteenth and Dr. H. Gardener-Hill, 2 up.

He sank a prodigious putt of 30 feet to win his overtime morning round match from Evans, but he'll probably have to play better golf than he has so far to check Wehrle's march tomorrow in the quarterfinals. Wehrle, on successive days, shot the tough outward nine in 31 and 33, which is the sort of golf few players can survive.

Of the remaining survivors, three are Englishmen, one a Scot and one an Irishman. Gordon Peters, Scottish Walker Cup star, is regarded by a majority of observers as the top dog, although the vet-

Cochrane Improved But Relapse Feared

Grave Danger of Secondary Meningitis Casts Pallor Over Tiger Pilot's Recovery; Only Mrs. Cochrane Allowed to See Him; Hundreds Write Letters.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 27.—As hundreds of friends and fans from all over the Nation cheered him with telegrams, letters and enough flowers to fill a good-sized room, Mickey Cochrane showed marked improvement today.

The Detroit baseball manger, struck in the temple Tuesday by a ball pitched by Irving (Bump) Hadley, of the New York Yankees, still was in a serious condition, with his physicians on guard against the grave danger of secondary meningitis, but confidence of his ultimate recovery grew with the passing hours.

Only one bulletin was issued by his attending physicians today. Signed by Robert Emmet Walsh, it read:

"Cochrane has passed a good night. His condition has improved."

Informally, Dr. Walsh later said the patient had received numerous ice packs during the day and night and was resting comfortably.

Probably the surest sign of improvement was Mrs. Cochrane herself. After keeping a constant vigil from a room across the hall of her husband's sick bed in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, she decided to move to a midtown hotel.

Among the floral tributes received at the hospital was a large one from the New York Yankees. More than 100 letters were brought today, while messenger boys frequently appeared with fistfuls of telegrams for the stricken baseball hero.

Hadley, his wife and child also called, but were not permitted to see Cochrane. Only Mrs. Cochrane is allowed to visit him and she very briefly.

Dr. Walsh said he marveled at Cochrane's sense of humor in his painful circumstances.

"He asks about the games between his club and the Yankees, and seems quite cheerful," said Dr. Walsh.

Baseball men quite unanimously agreed that Cochrane's active playing career is at an end. In fact, they pointed out he was not eager to play this season, and was quite resigned to run his club from the bench.

Mrs. Stokes Wins Trophy In Golf Play

Mrs. Stokes scored 84 over her home course to win the final round of the 36-hole affair by a single stroke from Mrs. C. P. Medley, of the Manor Club.

Just two weeks ago, Mrs. Stokes won the Keefer Cup at Chevy Chase. Not for several years has a golfer won two such important events in a single season.

The winner had a net score of 153. She actually fired an 83 and 84 for a total of 167, which was whittled into the 153 figure by a handicap of 14. Her net was one of the lowest winning totals in the history of the Star Cup competition. To score yesterday's 84, Mrs. Stokes played her respective nines in 37 and 47.

The runner-up scored double 89's for a gross total of 178. A handicap of 24 gave a net of 154, which fell just one stroke short of halving the tournament.

Other leading scorers in the tournament were Mrs. Florence Godfrey, Beaver Dam, 95—93—188—28—160; Mrs Ellen Kincaid, Congressional, 86—91—177—16—161; Mrs. Hope Wilkinson, Indian Spring, 93—105—198—36—162; Mrs. Charles T. Penn, Congressional, 99—104—203—40—163; Mrs. J. C. Dale, Kenwood, 98—97—195—32—163; Mrs. George Huffey, Army and Navy, 92—87—179—16—163; Mrs. Walter Rice, Congressional, 100—99—199—36—163; Mrs. W. R. Bush, Congressional, 93—91—184—20—164; Mrs. James W. Beller, Columbia, 94—90—184—20—164; Mrs. N. J. Waldron, Beaver Dam, 104—92—196—32—164.

Mrs. S. W. Towle, Congressional; Mrs. J. E. Nell, Manor, and Mrs. Terry B. Hoover, Indian Spring, were tied at net 165, while Mrs. R. L. Rose, Congressional, and Mrs. F. D. Letts, Chevy Chase, scored 166.

Maryland Team Wins Rifle Crown

By the slim but sufficient margin of two points the University of Maryland's marksmen have bagged their fourth title of the season in winning the National R. O. T. C. championship. It was announced last night. The Terps totaled 7,705 out of a possible 8,000, while Florida, runner-up scored 7,703.

Other honors claimed by the proteges of Maj. Frank Ward are the Third Corps Area championship; Middle Atlantic Division crown; and Third Corps Area Hearts Trophy. The freshmen accounted for the national championship in their division.

Scores in the national varsity competition were W. C. Jensen, 779; Raymond Davis, jr., 775; F. D. Evans, 771; Thomas Riley, 768; Aaron Welch and R. A. Woodward, 767; Robert Mattingly and Ralph Collins, 766; W. B. Davis, 761, and J. M. Lanigan, 756.

Koverly Loses RoughMatBout To Will Davis

It took the combined efforts of a special policeman, a physician and Promoter Joe Turner to halt the slaughter. Referee Benny Bortnick was lying flat on his back as the result of a knockout punch at the hands of Koverly when the brawl was halted. No sooner had Bennah been revived than he raised Davis' hand, proclaiming him the victor on a foul.

Bill Sledge sprung the surprise of the season by subduing Laverne Baxter in 14 minutes of a scheduled 30-minute time-limit semifinal. Bill simply knocked Baxter out with a series of right hands to the chin.

Error Robs Hurler Of Shutout Victory

By Shirley Povich.

Monte Weaver, the thin man of the Washington pitching staff, fragile of build, but stout of heart, wrestled for an hour and 53 minutes with the Nats' four-game losing streak yesterday and won.

He won by stifling the batting attack of the Chicago mob with a superb six-hit pitching performance that made second base a "no man's land" for the White Sox until the ninth inning. And Monte was deserving of a shutout triumph, for he was utterly blameless in the lone Chicago run that marked the Nats' 2-to-1 victory.

For seven innings Monte was a three-hit pitcher, and only 22 White Sox took their places in the batter's box. It was a pretty grim task for the reformed mathematics professor, because the Nats were giving him only a slender two-run margin to work with, but Monte merely took another hitch in his trousers, dwelt with his long wind-up for a pitch and fogged the ball in there.

Sox Rally in Ninth.

But the White Sox had their moments—in the ninth inning—and the 10,000 in the stands, including the women guests and 5,000 kids from the schoolboy patrols, envisioned another of the ninth-inning rallies with which the Sox vanquished the Nats the day before.

Monte had one out in that ninth when Mike Kreevich, of the South Side Kreevich's, banged a single to center, the Soxs' fifth hit of the afternoon, and scampered to second base when Centerfielder Ben Chapman failed to come up cleanly with the ball. Kreevich was the first Chicagoan to see second base.

Weaver didn't have much trouble with Dixie Walker, the gent who broke up the ball game the day before. He disposed of Walker on a routine fly to Chapman, but the rally was on in full cry a moment later when Zeke Bonura got a two-base hit that scored Kreevich.

It wasn't much of a hit, in fact, it was a very cheap affair, a high pop beyond the infield that Ossie Bluege staggered back for and dropped after getting only his gloved hand on it. But there it was, and there was Bonura on second with the tying run.

Bonura Stranded.

He was still there when the game ended a moment later because Buddy Myer, as if in appreciation of Monte's magnificent labors, took Luke Appling's line drive for the third out down by his shoe tops and rolled over on his face. But he didn't let loose of the ball and Weaver was out there pitching to a kid who was catching his first big-league game, too. But there was no complaint with young Milt Gray's performance behind the bat. The former Oriole had no trouble with Monte's fast ball and a half-dozen times he was down to first base, backing up the infielder's throws even before the hitter reached the bag.

Incidentally, and it should have been mentioned before this, Monty Stratton pitched himself a whale of a game for the White Sox. He gave up a single run in the opening inning and another in the third, but after that he threw five scoreless innings into Chicago's bid to overtake Weaver's 2-0 lead.

But the spare-ribbed Stratton couldn't win because he couldn't get Ben Chapman out. The fleet centerfielder, who returned to the Nats' line-up yesterday, scored both of the Nats' runs after inspiring both rallies.

He led off the first inning by belting a screaming double to right-field and eventually crossed the plate while Luke Appling was throwing Buddy Myer out at first. And in the third, Chapman began proceedings with a terrific sock over Centerfielder Mike Kreevich's head for three bases. Buddy Lewis invited him home with a looping double to left and he went home.

Chapman, in fact, achieved three of the Nats' nine hits off Stratton and Bill Dietrich. As a parting shot at Stratton in the seventh, he bashed a single to center.

POVICH.

There was nothing, apparently, to get excited about. They answered tens of similar calls every night. A routine affair. Probably a domestic disturbance. Why can't people stop fighting especially in their own homes?

* * * *

With a screeching of brakes, they brought their little roadster to a stop a few doors from the F street address. Private Shinault leaped out, made his way toward the house. Private Edwards, fumbling for his flashlight, did not follow immediately.

* * * *

Two shots rang out in the stillness of an August evening that was nearing midnight. Private Edwards hurdled from the car, rushed toward the house.

To the crowd that had gathered Edwards commanded that Shinault be rushed to the hospital. He watched the improvised ambulance leave.

* * * *

Then, drawing his gun, Private Edwards made for the house. A shadowy figure scurried out a back door. Firing in the dark, Edwards gave chase. Across fences and back yards he trailed the murderer, lost him in a maze of alleys.

* * * *

A few minutes later at Casualty Hospital doctors were pronouncing Private George W. Shinault, 38, of the First Precinct, dead.

He didn't have a chance for his life, investigation revealed. The house that he was approaching was situated back from the street. The entrance was below the sidewalk level, to be reached through an inclined terrace.

* * * *

The chances are that he never saw his slayer standing there in the shadows with a gun that soon was to blaze in his direction. Anyway, Shinault's own gun was never out of his holster. He was at the mercy of his assailant. Innocently trapped.

* * * *

It's been five years since that August 14, 1932, night and Willie Bullock is still at large.

But what I am getting around to saying is that when Private Shinault ventured into the darkness of that F street front yard that evening, youthful Mrs. Shinault and five little tots were at his northeast home sweetly asleep. Daddy had only another short stretch of night duty.

And as Mrs. Shinault was widowed, and the little Shinaults were fatherless, Elwood, the oldest boy; George, E. Marion, the lone little girl of the family; Lee and 18-month-old Odessa. Daddy wouldn't be home to them again.

They didn't own their home. They were renting. They could do that nicely on Daddy's 48-dollar-a-week salary. But Daddy died.

But they had a friend. The Metropolitan Police Relief Association was standing by. With a $1,500 check to Mrs. Shinault, it tided the family over. After that, well there would still be the Metropolitan Police Relief Association.

And that is what I was getting around to saying. Those fights at Griffith Stadium Wednesday night are for the benefit of the Metropolitan Police Relief Association fund.

Please go.

Hagerstown Feature Won By Gelding

Small Change Pays $8.20 to Win Club Purse.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

Hagerstown, Md., May 27.—Small Change, veteran campaigner which Claude Feltner claimed from Bowes Bond out of his previous race, won at the first asking for his new owner in the Club Purse, feature race here this afternoon. The Berryville, Va., owner of the 7-year-old gelding chose Sammy Palumbo, Small Change's regular rider and the combination proved good enough to defeat Chief Hollis by a head margin with the favored Flosilda third, three lengths back.

Jockey Palumbo, who was returning to action after a three-day suspension, narrowly escaped death or serious injury in a pile-up that involved four horses in the first race. Palumbo did receive a bloody nose, but showed he was little the worse for wear by not only winning the feature event, but the race previous as well.

Small Change's victory came in a test of 5 furlongs and he brought his backers an $8.20 mutuel. His time was 1:02 over the good track.

Prince Turley and Chief Hollis battled for the early lead, while Palumbo took to the rail to save ground. At the first turn, Shaggy Ann, running third, eliminated herself by attempting to run out and knocked Flosilda off stride. Prince Turley, despite his reputation for high early speed, could not shake off Chief Hollis and finally stumbled.

Chief Hollis then drew out to what appeared to be a winning lead. However, Palumbo went to work on Small Change and sent the latter to the outside with a rush at the final bend. In the drive through the stretch, Chief Hollis could not match his rival.

The big spill of the day came in the first race and was a factor in a $108.90 daily double. At the far turn and about a furlong from the start, Aella, in front, stumbled and fell. Sakuntala, Freds Warning and Cautious Bo either tripped over Aella or one another and the track was a sea of flying hoofs and struggling boys. Luckily there wasn't a serious injury either to horses or riders. W. Snyder was shaken up and canceled his mounts but E. Sawyer and N. Brooks, along with Palumbo, complained only of the long walk back to the jockeys' room.

With four horses, two of them leading contenders, out of the running, Jockey Leon Garrett on Radial found himself far out in front and he defeated Gaylass by a length and a half. Warned Off took third money by default. Radial paid a $15 mutuel.

CAUTIOUS BO	(Brooks)	117	3	4	Fell					15.85

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RADIAL, $15.00, $8.40, $5.70; GAYLASS, $7.90, $6.60; WARNED OFF, $19.10.

RADIAL, escaping interference and far in front when leaders fell, was allowed to jog along for three furlongs and then was put to severe punishment. GAYLASS gained gradually throughout the running. WARNED OFF tired from chasing RADIAL. CANYNGE trailed throughout. AELLA tripped and fell. SAKUNTALA, CAUTIOUS BO, and FRED'S WARNING also went down in the pile up.

SECOND RACE—About 6½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:49. Off at 2:51. Winner, F. Barnhart's dk. ch. m. (8), by Dunboyne—Lile. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $275; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 1:23.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LILTEEN, $9.80; $5.00, $3.10; LA MARQUISE, $4.50, $3.30; RUNNING WATER, $2.90.

LILTEEN, first away, opened a good lead on RUNNING WATER, but tired suddenly in the closing sixteenth and barely lasted. LA MARQUISE, saving ground while lacking early speed, came with good courage when placed to drive and would have won in another stride. RUNNING WATER tired gradually after the first three furlongs. CROSSING OVER had a flash of early speed. PRINCE KHAYYAM was close up for three furlongs.

DAILY DOUBLE PAID $108.90.

THIRD RACE—About 6½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls for all but Miss Adeline. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:24. Off at 3:28. Winner, Mrs. H. Horst's b. f. (3), by Sun Edwin—Gaffney Belle. Trained by E. Brining. Value to winner, $275; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 1:24 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUN BELLE, $9.60, $4.50, $3.10; MISS TROY, $9.80, $4.70; DICKERY DOCK, $2.90.

SUN BELLE shook off DICKERY DOCK to take command in the first furlong, was taken in hand while saving ground as MISS TROY went to the front, rallied when placed to drive and was drawing away at the end. MISS TROY, hard ridden throughout, could not resist the winner. DICKERY DOCK went evenly, MISS ADELINE was practically left and ran a winning race. TROJAN MISS could not keep up.

FOURTH RACE—About 5 furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:59. Off at 4:04. Winner, Claude Feltner's b. g. (7), by Aromatic—Petty Cash. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $275; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 1:02.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SMALL CHANGE, $8.20, $3.90, $2.70; CHIEF HOLLIS, $5.00, $3.10; FLOSILDA, $2.60.

SMALL CHANGE, saving ground while outrun for a quarter, rallied when placed to drive and wore down CHIEF HOLLIS in the final sixteenth. CHIEF HOLLIS ran head and head with PRINCE TURLEY in front, took command, but could not resist the winner. FLOSILDA was trumped by SHAGGY ANN at the first turn and rallied mildly after regaining stride. SHAGGY ANN tried to run out at first turn and finished gamely. PRINCE TURLEY stumbled at the far turn while contesting CHIEF HOLLIS for the lead and stopped.

FIFTH RACE—About 6½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:39. Off at 4:41½. Winner, S. R. Wells' b. f. (4), by Oceanic—Little Annie. Trained by H. L. Smith. Value to winner, $275; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 1:22.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STINGAREE, $10.20, $6.40, $3.70; STAND BY, $17.90, $6.70; SOUPCON, $3.00.

STINGAREE, allowed to run on her own courage to the backstretch, gained sharply when placed to powerful hand ride and came to the outside of STAND BY to win going away. The latter was sent to the front at once, opened a good lead, but was tiring at the end. SOUPCON was within striking distance throughout, but failed to threaten. DOESKIN weakened after chasing the pacemaker. CHRISTINE ADEE could not reach contention. CANTERET could not keep up.

SIXTH RACE—About 1 1-16 miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:14½. Off at 5:17. Winner, J. Bishop's b. m. (7), by Sun Pal—Bab. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $275; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 1:54½.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HELEN BAB, $3.80, $3.10, $2.30; THE SWAGMAN, $5.20, $2.80; ROUGH PLAYER, $2.80.

HELEN BAB, first off, shook off persistent efforts of ROUGH PLAYER while setting the pace and opened a long lead without effort in the final three furlongs. THE SWAGMAN, a distant trailer for three quarters, rallied when placed to drive and closed with a belated rush. ROUGH PLAYER ran wide at the turns and was tiring at the end. DUDLEY C. weakened after going forwardly for six furlongs.

SEVENTH RACE—About 1 1-16 miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:51. Off at 5:51½. Winner, Mrs. I. K. Mourar's b. g. (6), by Wrack—Roman Princess. Trained by I. K. Mourar. Value to winner, $275; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 1:55.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BAY WRACK, $6.70, $4.10, $3.20; PUKKA HEAVEN, 6.40, $4.50; AMASIN, $4.30.

BAY WRACK, kept on the rail to save ground, rallied sharply when put to pressure and under good handling was up in the concluding strides. PUKKA HEAVEN, taken in hand while holding a brief lead, dropped back and came around horses to close with a rush. AMASIN ran DASH IN into defeat, but could not resist the other two. DASH IN stopped from hustling tactics in getting to the front. BENGAY stopped after pressing the pace.

Dear Al:

An old mountaineer sat close to the press box today. He had a sun-creased face and kindly smile. It was his first visit to a race track. The thing fascinated him. He asked where all the people went between races. I told him that they were going to bet and he said, "Gosh, there must be a lotta 'em that's got money." After the third race, he asked, "Are they comin' out for another race?" When I told him there were four more races. He said, "Looks like this'll go on till sundown." When the horses came on the track for the fifth race, he pulled out a watch that was as thick as a bun. When the race was over he said, "They sho' make time. Just think, they only took five minutes." He had put the watch on them from the time the horses came on the track. As he was leaving he leaned over and said, "You know, I was a-thinking. Them boys sho' gets around there at a fast clip. You know that if a fellow was to start out at sun up and keep up that going all day, he sho' would be a piece from home at sundown." I agreed. He left the track winner. He didn't make a bet. We laughed at him. Probably he's back in the mountains tonight, smiling and repeating over and over, "suckers," or the mountaineer equivalent thereof.

Tigers Win 13-Inning Duel, 5 to 4

Fox's Hit decides; 'Hub' Pitches Two Innings; Trosky Is Hero.

New York, May 27 (U.P.).—The New York Yankees had their American League lead cut to a game and a half today when they were edged, 5-4, by the Detroit Tigers in a 13-inning game.

A double put Rookie George Tebbetts on second in the thirteenth, and he came home on a single by Pete Fox. The victory was accredited to Russell who came to the rescue of Schoolboy Rowe in the twelfth. Rowe had followed Tommy Bridges, who was taken out for a pinch-hitter in the ninth.

Johnny Broaca started for New York and lasted until the ninth when Detroit scored two runs to tie the score. Murphy went the rest of the way.

The second place Cleveland Indians gained a full game on the pace-setters when they handed the Philadelphia Athletics their fourth straight defeat, 8-7. The Tribe put on their winning burst in the fifth, scoring five times in a rally climaxed by Hay Trosky's triple with the bases loaded.

St. Louis at Boston was rained out.

The Pittsburgh Pirates again were idle because of rain and saw their National League margin cut to one game over the New York Giants, who scored their sixth straight win, 3-2, over Cincinnati.

It was Mel Ott's home run in the ninth gave Cary Hubbell his eighth consecutive win of the year—and twenty-fourth straight in two seasons. Hubbell only pitched two innings, retiring the six men to face him in order.

The win gave the Giants a game and a half margin over the St. Louis Cards, who were bested, 8 to 7, by the Boston Bees. The Bees cut a ninth inning rally short after the Cards had scored two runs, to win. Moore and Johnson hit home runs for Boston; Gutteridge and Padgett for St. Louis. Johnson's four-bagger came in the pinch, and gave the Bees their winning run.

Bucky Walters scattered nine hits to a 11-to-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs. French, Bryant and Shoun were found for 14 hits, 4 of them by Whitney. Camilli homered for the Phils.

Nestell-Pastor Bout to Draw Record Crowd

35,000 Expected to See Fight; $115,000 Gross Forecast.

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, May 27.—Promoter Tom Gallery predicted today Los Angeles' biggest fight card in years would draw more than 35,000 customers and gate receipts of around $115,000 tomorrow night.

The triple main event program, arousing more interest than any boxing event here since the Mickey Walker-Ace Hudkins brawl in 1929, presented:

Rival promoters, including Gallery and James J. Johnston, sr., of Madison Square Garden, are bidding for the winners for future bouts.

How to enjoy both CIGARS and KISSES

Test shows that VINTAGE TOBACCO is at least 25% easier on your breath than all other 5¢ cigars tested
LOTS OF MEN have something to learn about smoking. It's possible to get the enjoyment that only a cigar gives—yet keep your breath fresh . . . if you'll smoke a Vintage cigar.
New scientific discoveries have shown that White Owl's Vintage tobacco is very low in the substances that cause unpleasant tobacco breath. Tests with a delicate osmoscope prove that this tobacco leaves less odor.
White Owl is a better cigar because it always has a Vintage-tobacco filler. Nature—not factory processing—made this tobacco exceptionally mild, mellow.
We maintain a vast crop-inspection system—the only known organization of its kind—to locate Vintage tobacco. Even in Vintage years, we classify all filler tobacco into seven grades—and buy only tobacco of the quality of the top three for use in White Owls.
We'll bet the ladies agree with you—and there's a lot more satisfaction in smooth, mellow White Owls.
The Metallic Nose Knows
Scientists use a sensitive osmoscope to measure odor . . . to record its intensity and lasting power. Ten different brands of 5¢ cigars were tested by this machine. White Owl was at least 25% easier on the breath than all the others. After 30 minutes, all trace of tobacco odor disappeared from the breath of White Owl smokers.

By John R. Vosburgh.

Despite the best cheering of the inter-high series, Wilson High bowed to Western yesterday at Western Stadium in a 5-to-1 sweltering finish to the annual scramble won earlier in the week by Eastern.

The Georgetowners, proud holders of the 1936 championship, slid into third place on a seven-hit pitching performance of left-handed Bobby Bright. Young Robert escaped a shut-out when Jack Hoskinson connected for a seventh-inning home run which sailed far over Jimmy Middleton's head in centerfield.

More or less an anti-climax so far as the series was concerned, the game nevertheless drew a big throng of Wilson onlookers. Pitcher Bill Garland and teammates needed more than moral support, however, as Western pounded his offerings for eight hits.

Two of these combined neatly with two errors by Hoskinson at second base to open the scoring in the third inning. George Oertel was safe at first when Hoskinson bobbled his grounder, Addie Lawyer doubled and Dickie Lynham walked, only to be picked off by Garland at first.

Len Weinstein drove in Oertel and Lawyer, however, with a stinging single and took second when Hoskinson booted Tom Taylor's roller. He took third on an infield out and stole home in a double theft with Jimmy Middleton who had reached first on a force play at second.

Weinstein scored again when he singled in the fifth, took second on Garland's wild pitch and crossed the plate on Saylor's double over the rightfield rail which Don Dunnington vaulted to make an illegal catch. A homer to deep center by John Alafoginas in the sixth accounted for the other Western run.

Hoyas Elect Cavadine as '38 Captain

Bodine Honored With Captaincy of 1937's Undefeated Nine.

Johnny Cavadine, Georgetown's muscular third baseman, whose only bad trait is saxophone playing, yesterday was elected captain of the 1938 Hoya nine at a meeting of letter men.

Simultaneously, the squad conferred on red-headed Ed Bodine, second baseman, the belated captaincy of the 1937 team, which completed its season last week undefeated. It is the first time since 1922 that Georgetown has gone undefeated, and it has been accorded recognition as Eastern intercollegiate champion in several quarters.

Members of the squad will be honored at a dinner to be given next Thursday night at the Raleigh Hotel. Gold baseballs will be awarded along with other honors.

"Big Mike" Petrosky confirming a widespread rumor, was the club's most potent pitcher, chalking up nine consecutive victories. George (Nick) Nicketakis won two and Hank Bertrand one.

Elites in New York.

New York, May 26.—The Washington Elites, favored by many fans to win the Colored National League title this year, will open a two-game series on home grounds at Griffith Stadium on Saturday against Cum Posey's Homestead Grays.

POST NOTES ON Fishin' BY BILL ACKERMAN

This column is unable to give any section that might be depended upon to give the kind of fishing that might reasonably be expected at this time, taking in consideration the many days the fish have been in the bay. The fact that this week has proved less lucrative than the one preceding, does not mean that they won't bite over the holidays, for with another warm day or two there isn't any reason why they shouldn't crack the season wide open per their usual habit about this time and send anglers home with satisfied expectations and filled bags.

ACKERMAN

The catches have been best on the Middles, but a trip of 100 miles to get an average of 15 hardheads to the angler (would be OK were they blues) can hardly be said to be worth while or recommended. The fish, too, have gotten noticeably smaller in size, taking the catch of Sid Atlas, Milton Udell, Fred Shafterd and Bill Brennan as a criterion. Their largest were only about two pounds.

Solomons Island is the best bet, even though the catches on this side are spotty and still small in numbers. Boats going across under the Eastern Shore get big catches of small fish.

From Solomons up to Herring Bay, the catches have been few and far between, with the best ones coming from the Plum Point section. This is probably the next brightest prospect, if the boats fish Sharp's and the Choptank.

Capt. Bob Lee's boats at Shadyside have done very little fishing, but the fish are there and those same two or three warm days should start them off.

Recent Post notes on the brown trout brings from Uncle Jim Cleaver, a picture of one he caught several weeks ago in Gordon Run, closeby his home town, Bedford, Pa. There is no doubt that it was a whopper, neither, from the composition of the snap, is there any doubt that "Uncle Jim" is an angler, not a photographer. An intricate background of crick-bats spoils completely the trout, which was laying atop a barrel, both ends overhanging the chine and completely dwarfing a nearby creel. Better luck (with the camera) next time.

He also notes that the recently granted Sunday fishing isn't working out so well on account of the clause that makes it mandatory to obtain property owners permission. It seems that it is not being given—as a matter of fact, most of the streams in this section are posted against it. The result is that such waters as Lake Gordon and Lake Koon are so crowded that ordinarily fine rainbow fishing is one great headache.

It was in Bedford, two years ago, that a brown trout weighing better than 12 pounds was caught in a small millpond just outside town.

Here is a tried and proved wrinkle for trouters—try it yourself and make sure, if you have any doubts. In clear water try drifting different colored lines and leaders down on fish. Both brook and 'bow will see and shy off from the usual brown fly-line, as well as the finest of white leaders, but a black line will in no way disturb them. The answer is a fine, tight braided silk line for bait fishermen, and the darkest fly line obtainable for the fly fishermen, tied directly to the hook. It seems to more closely approximate the usual color of the debris in our eastern streams.

Vermont has reduced the creel limit on trout this year, from 25 to 20. Not much to be sure, but still a step in the right direction. It could just as easily have been made 8 or 10 and then supply enough sport for any sportsman in one day.

Striped bass have been hitting on all fronts this week. At East Moriches, Long Island, 18 4-pounders were caught on trolled weak fish baits. Several fair sized ones have been taken in the surf of south Jersey beaches. Surfmen, fishing the beach north of Oregon Inlet a few evenings ago accounted for 15 nice ones. The following evening on the same tide, 20 more were caught, the largest of which weighed 32 pounds.

That the stocking of large trout in New Jersey streams has proved successful, there can be no doubt—from the viewpoint of the angler. With the season little more than a month old, it is claimed to be the best in many years.

Harold Rayot, of North Bergen, holds the record with a 4¼-pound rainbow caught on the Erskine Lakes Preserve. At this place stockings have been larger in size of fish and more evenly spaced than in any one of its previous six years of existence.

four consecutive holes, three pars and a birdie, and halving the next two for victory. Smith's straying wood shots were the cause of his downfall.

Long-hitting Jimmy Thomson blew a two-hole lead by playing the last three holes of the third nine in five over par against Ky Laffoon, the match entering the twenty-eighth hole all even. Ky made successive putts of 5, 8 and 15 feet for birdies, ending Thomson's bid for the title in which he was finalist last year.

An all-star card is offered Pittsburgh's rain-soaked golf fans today. Jimmy Hines, the 32-year-old semi-finalist in 1933, faces Denny Shute, titleholder, who is at the top of a game that has earned him the British Open crown and countless others.

Byron Nelson, 5 under par in the qualifying rounds and pressed only by Leo Diegel, will take Snead's spot as the gallery favorite against the challenge of Ky Laffoon, while Henry Picard will test the red-hot golf of Jug McSpaden.

Mary Cootes and Edith Clarke Renew Tennis Rivalry Today

Warm tennis rivalry between clever Mary Cootes, of Alexandria, and smiling Edith Clarke is due to rise several degrees warmer today. The girls renew their court feud at 2 p. m. on the Edgemoor Club courts and the City of Washington championship is hanging in the balance.

As though one match will not be enough, this tall and slender pair will also bang away at each other in the doubles final shortly after they finish their singles struggle. Miss Cootes is paired with demure Mary Greason, of George Washington University; Miss Clarke with her capable tutor, Mrs. Margaret Robinson, 1936 singles champion.

Both teams swept into the final round with straight-set victories yesterday. The two Marys eliminated the highly regarded combination of Sara Moore and Mrs. Dorette Miller, 6—3, 6—3. With equal dispatch, Mrs. Robinson and Miss Clarke disposed of Mrs. Kay Baker and Willie O'Steen.

Thus the decks are cleared for two-fold renewal of the Capital's most flourishing women's tennis rivalry.

On the basis of the records, Miss Clarke, daughter of a Marine officer, should vanquish the Army colonel's little girl—Miss Cootes. She has yet to drop a set, and as much cannot be said for Mary. In fact, the Alexandria young lady had considerable difficulty in getting past Miss Greason to the finals.

Prior to that she had to call on all her resources to reach the semi-finals. Her trouble on that occasion was Anne Ellis, of the Chevy Chase club, who finally bowed, 9—7, 5—7, 6—1. Miss Greason succumbed, 6—2, 2—6, 6—3.

The staying powers manifested by Miss Cootes on both occasions were the most encouraging phases of the matches. Edith, on the other hand, has not been extended to date. Her matches. Edith, on the other hand, double-faults—14 of them—were none too impressive during her semifinals with Sara Moore, whom she eliminated, 6—4, 6—3.

U. S. Star Wins In English Net

London, May 27 (U.P.).—Katharine Winthrop, of Boston, was eliminated from the Middlesex tennis championship at Chiswick today when she lost 6—4, 6—2 to Nancy Lyle, British Wightman Cup player, in the quarter-final round.

Alice Marble, of San Francisco, the American national champion, reached the semi-finals with a 6—4, 6—0 victory over Sheila Chuter of Kent. They survived the third round of doubles competition and then reached the semi-finals.

BRITISH GOLF

eran Irishman, Lionel Munn, is playing some of the soundest golf of his career and J. J. F. Pennink, has been impressive.

Rated as distinct outsiders are the other survivors, Charles Stowe and Count Alaric de Bendern, who is elder brother of John de Forest, English amateur champion, also British amateur champion of 1932.

The winner of the Sweeny-Wehrle battle tomorrow morning will face either Peters or Stowe. Chapman meets Count de Bendern, with the winner playing either Munn or Pennink.

Two Outdoor Dinner - Dance Spots to Open

Powhatan Roof, Shoreham Terrace to Begin Season This Week.

By Chanticleer

A grand institution returns to Washington this week-end with the opening of two of the town's better outdoor dining and dancing spots. First honors go tonight to the Powhatan roof, followed closely tomorrow night by the opening of the Shoreham's Terrace.

The Powhatan's opening marks I don't know how many summers of reigning popularity for Pete Macias and his orchestra. You know the maestro and his men have a well-established routine—from the Heigh Ho to the Powhatan roof and back again the seasons round.

With Pete Macias its a matter of swing, sweet and rumba for the music menu this summer. They are positively lifter-uppers, if you don't already feel you're high enough 'way up there among the stars atop the Powhatan. Policy for the opening night has been set at $1.10—and that's a gift, if you ask me.

The Shoreham's opening reminds us once again that this garden spot of the Shoreham's famous "back yard" is probably the largest outdoor dinner dance setting in the world. Maxim Lowe's orchestra, with the perennially popular Barnee with baton in hand, is the musical fare again this season. Its a black tie occasion, with linens and Palm Beaches if you wish, that really announces to the smart folk in town that summer is here at last.

* * *

Wardman Park announces its addition to the list of winter nighteries going summer in a big way. But Wardman's cool spot will be the Metronome room, properly air-conditioned for hit nights. They do say the room has one of the fanciest air-conditioning systems in these here parts. Just one long breath of spring.

The refrigerating system makes 33 tons of ice daily, or at least its equivalent, keeping the temperature at a constant 80 and the humidity at 50 per cent. Jimmy Santmyer's orchestra is enjoying the pleasure and privilege of blowing horns and scraping fiddles in this ideal situation.

* * * *

Costuming note from La Paree: Brand-new uniforms for the orchestra, very sartorially elegant and the last word in what the well-dressed band wears for hot weather months.

Terrace and Roof Open

Two of Washington's most popular gathering spots for warm evenings open this week-end. L. Gardner Moore, manager of the Shoreham (in circle), announces the Shoreham Terrace will inaugurate a new season tomorrow night. Pete Macias (below) again takes his popular Heigh-Ho orchestra to the Powhatan Roof for the season which begins tonight.

Luncheon, dinner and supper shows daily.

More air-conditioning notes arrive from the Mayfair where Boss Byrd admits to having about the nicest thing in the way of fall weather in the middle of Washington's summer in captivity. The secret, says B. Byrd, is in keeping the darned thing comfortably cool but not so as to chill the customers. He knows how to do that.

* * * *

Rodney and Gould are featured at the Lotus this week (they have a whopdoodle of an air-conditioning plant in this spot, too) in a waltz medley and a fast fox trot. The Ida Thorne Girls are stepping out in new costumes and entirely new routines. Never a cover charge here. Three shows daily, with Al Norton as emmcee and Bill Strickland and his ork for your dancing.

Warmer weather will recall pleasant recollections of winter evenings at Boulevard Farms, 'way down the Memorial highway below Alexandria, but the majority of people who tumbled in a big way for those steak and chicken dinners will guess shrewdly that the expansive setting of the farms is also a grand place for summer dinners. In the cool of the evening, as it were.

* * * *

"The Love Bug Will Get You" is proving a favorite with patrons of Pete Borras' Madrillon, principally because Gerson Kaufman has made a swell new arrangement of the novelty tune. Johnny Shaw and his orchestra bear down on it to the accompaniment of much cheering from the ringsiders. Helen Forrest sings the lyrics.

Carl Gunther's band has come to Brinkley's and judging from the plaudits of the cash customers everyone likes their style. Maestro Gunther is a saxophonist, suh, and knows his flats and sharps. And he sings also, suh.

Green Estate Battle Exposes Tax Dodging

Elizabethtown, N. Y., May 27 (AP). The court struggle for the millions of the late Col. Edward H. R. Green produced testimony today that he paid no tax to any State on a $20,000,000 income between 1917 and 1929.

Wilbur K. Potter, Green's secretary, made the statement during a series of questions concerning the eccentric colonel's financial returns from several sources. These included a trust established by his mother, Hetty Green, noted financial figure of the nineties, for him and his sister, Mrs. Matthew Astor Wilks.

Louise Hovick Is Handicapped By Early Fame

By the United Press.

Hollywood, May 27.—Because of a name, Louise Hovick slid from Broadway stardom and the crest of one of the most potent natural ballyhoos in years to the position of a featured player, about to debut in pictures, and with the job of making good on her merits.

That, perhaps, is as it should be. But because of the name, Miss Hovick already has two strikes on her, which, according to this column at least, is pretty unfair.

The name is "Gypsy Rose Lee," under which Miss Hovick undressed her way from Fourteenth street burlesque to the Broadway "Follies," and got her name in the papers and most of the magazines.

Darryl F. Zanuck, Twentieth Century-Fox mogul with a nice eye for publicity values, signed Miss Lee, or rather Miss Hovick, last winter, and complications began to develop at once.

The Will H. Hays organization frowned on the transaction, but took no action, since the "Gypsy Rose Lee" strip-tease specialty obviously would not be exploited in pictures.

However, certain religious groups, which take the purity, or lack of purity, of the films to heart, appear to have condemned Miss Hovick without trial as a "bad influence." The studio has received upward of 4,000 letters threatening boycott of films in which she appears.

Will Play "Straight."

Then the studio announced the girl would play under her own name, Louise Hovick. William Goetz, vice president, has written personal letters to all comers assuring them her performance will be above reproach.

Nevertheless, protesters are unappeased, and the campaign against Miss Howick continues.

This correspondent doubts that the storm of letters represents a great popular protest against the Hovick or Lee influence. They probably were inspired by professional organization leaders on a strict "write to your Congressman" basis.

Such a campaign, however, is capable of doing her picture career irreparable damage, and the whole business seems unfair and unprecedented. Mae West's stage doings, for example, may not have been all the reformers could desire, but no one objects to her appearance in films, even under the same name.

Meanwhile, Miss Hovick, tall, 5-feet-11—dark and freckled—is doing a straight feminine "heavy" role in her first picture, and from the rushes, seems to show considerable promise.

While their company was shooting location scenes on the deck of a steamer about to sail, Lindsay and Lytel met some friends bound for the islands, and went below to help celebrate the departure. When they came on deck again the company had gone ashore and the ship was proceeding seaward.

They managed to return to San Pedro on the pilot boat and returned to the studio hours late.

On the Air Today

Additional plans for summer programs to replace all-star winter shows and to guarantee holding the prized evening hours until fall have been announced this week including word that Jane Froman will take over the Jack Benny period while the comedian vacations. Co-starring with Miss Froman will be her husband, Don Ross.

Jane is recognized as one of radio's foremost interpreters of popular music. The summer series will be the more welcome as she has been virtually a stranger to broadcasting for several months, due to Broadway and film activities.

It was after an engagement with the Paul Whiteman orchestra, in which she made a distinct hit, that Jane moved on to Chicago for broadcasting. There she met Ross, a vaudeville favorite.

Jack Oakie's "College" will close its doors for the summer period June 28, but "summer school" opens June 29, starring Benny Goodman and his music.

The "Sunday Evening Hour," following a practice of several seasons, will be heard for the last time June 13. Thereafter, at the same hour, "Universal Rhythm" will be presented until the fall return of the symphonic series. "Universal Rhythm" will be extended to the full hour occupied by the "Sunday Evening Hour."

Richard Bonelli will continue to be starred, with Alex Templeton, blind English pianist; Carolyn Urbaneck, soprano, and Rex Chandler's orchestra. A chorus will be added and guest stars may be expected. This series should brighten the Sunday night schedule for the summer, as it leans heavily to music at a time of the day we've grown accustomed to hear comedians.

Features today:

Frank M. Kreml—Who recently described the work of Northwestern University's traffic safety studies, presents nine officers, selected from 100 competitors over the country, in graduation exercises from the "Traffic Safety Institute," WJSV, at 4.15.

The Dionnes—The quints will be presented in person from Callendar, WOL, at 5:30, on occasion of their birthday. Also WJSV, at 5:45.

Golden Gloves—Tournament of top-rank amateur boxers, from WMAL, at 10:15; WJSV, at 10:45.

Dr. Dafoe advises that the quints will prove (he hopes) that they have quite an average vocabulary for their ages when the broadcast is staged this afternoon on the occasion of their third birthday. But they will talk in French! Obviously no script can be prepared for such young "actresses" and Dr. Dafoe will depend on their ability at ad libbing for the success of the airing. It is believed the youngsters will not be aware of the microphone and will be perfectly natural.

Here and There—The frequent references in the Timetable to "track resume" is an abbreviation for the sixty-first annual I. C. 4-A track and field championships from Randalls Island Stadium, New York City . . . Louise Massey and the Westerners are on view this week at the Earle as the stage attraction. And on the screen, Kenny Baker, Jack Benny's fine tenor, and Phil Harris, maestro of the same program, are to be seen in "Turn Off the Moon" . . . Wendall Hall's new song, "Rhythm of State Street," tickled Chicago when it was introduced by the "red-headed musicmaker" in the "Community Sing" last Sunday night. When Hall arrived in Chicago on his way back to New York for this week's broadcast, he found a band and bunting in his honor. Chicago's mayor officially thanked him for the tribute to the Windy City. The State Street Merchants Association said it was swell, too! J. H. H.

Corn Prices At New Peak For 17 Years

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 27.—With heavy rains tending to increase anxiety over present and prospective scarcity of corn, the market for that cereal shot skyward today the permissible limit.

This abrupt action added 4 cents a bushel to prices current for July and September corn contracts yesterday, when May trading culminated at the topmost peak of values reached in 17 years. So urgent was new buying today and so acute the dearth of supplies that corn available for immediate use, ordinary No. 2 grades, commanded 13 to 14 cents a bushel over prices paid for July delivery of corn.

At the close, corn values throughout the list were virtually all on the day's highest level, 2⅛ to 4 cents above yesterday's finish, July, $1.25⅜; September, $1.14¼; December, 83¼@83⅜; wheat, unchanged to ½ up, July, 1.18¼@1.18⅜; September, 1.16⅞@1.17; oats, 1⅛@2½ advanced, July, 46⅜, and rye showing 2½@3½ cents bulge, May, 1.07½. Provisions closed unchanged to 25 cents dearer.

Steel Leaders Warn Of Taxation, Labor

New York, May 27 (AP).—Warnings that mounting taxation, labor unrest and budgetary unbalance are threatening the post-depression recovery were delivered by two speakers before the annual meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute today.

Eugene G. Grace, retiring president of the institute, declared that "We have come to a point in national economics where Government expenditures are of grave concern to all, regardless of party, and where they threaten the progress of the country's economic advance." Grace will be succeeded by Tom M. Girdler, of Republic Steel.

George O. May, senior partner of the accounting firm of Price Waterhouse & Co., told the steelmakers, after attacking the Federal undistributed profits surtax, that "far more serious than the continuation of the elements of injustice in the tax structure is the fact that even at our present stage of recovery the budget is not balanced, and there is no immediate prospect of it being balanced."

The session was the forty-sixth general meeting of the institute and was attended by hundreds of steel men from throughout the country. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, announced some time ago he would not be a candidate to succeed himself as head of the advisory body.

Holiday Closings.

Chicago, May 27 (AP).—The Chicago Stock Exchange and the Securities Market of the Board of Trade will be closed Saturday and Monday for a three-day Memorial Day recess. Trading in grains on the board of trade will be conducted Saturday but the market will be closed Monday.

Bank Clearings 12 Per Cent Over Year Ago

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 27.—Bank clearings this week declined seasonally, but showed a fairly good gain over the same period of 1936.

The aggregate for 22 leading cities of the United States for the week ended May 26, was $5,284,141,000, compared with $4,718,002,000 in the like week of last year, or a rise of 12 per cent.

This contrasted with an increase of 7.8 per cent recorded for the similar comparison of the preceding week.

Clearings at New York City amounted to $3,122,596,000, against $2,868,977,000 a year ago, an increase of 8.8 per cent. This week's total at the metropolis was the lowest reported for a full week since August 26 last.

This week's clearings aggregate was $400,903,000 below the preceding week, whereas the loss in the similar 1936 week was $557,133,000.

Washington Clearings.

The Washington Clearing House reports total clearings of $23,749,651.47 for the week ended May 27, which compares with $18,788,725.51 for the corresponding period last year, an increase of 26.4 per cent. Compared with a total of $28,004,203.29 for the previous week, clearings decreased 15.1 per cent.

Coffee Seat $5,400, Decline of $300

New York, May 27.—The New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange, Inc., announced today that the membership held in the name of the estate of W. J. Wollman had been sold to Philip Rosenberg for $5,400, which is $300 lower than the last previous sale.

Starting on Saturday, June 5, the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange will inaugurate its annual policy of closing on Saturdays during the summer, which policy will remain in effect until Saturday, October 2. In addition, the Exchange will be closed for trading in sugar and molasses on next Saturday, May 29.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Improve Slightly in Dull Trading; Corn Higher in Active Turnover.

New York, May 27.—Irregularly higher prices for stocks, uncertainty in bonds and a jump in grain prices marked another dull day in financial markets. Stock turnover was around 650,000 shares. July wheat ended ⅜ of a cent higher at 118⅜ cents a bushel.

Bullish enthusiasm in markets was confined almost exclusively to commodities, and in that section the excitement was in grain. Corn futures rose the limit of 4 cents on the day in the Chicago market. The price is now the highest in a dozen years. Stocks and bonds, on the other hand, could not shake off their lethargy. Government bonds were a shade easier, but dealings were slack as the market indulged in idle speculation over the possible extent of the June borrowings of the Treasury.

Stock turnover was slightly larger than that of yesterday, when volume was the smallest in two years, and it was easier to find stocks that were a fraction above the previous closing prices. In the metal group smelters dominated, lifting its two weeks' advance to more than 10 points. Kennecott and U. S. Smelting rose 1 to 3 points. Steel shares were mixed. U. S. Steel rose to around 99 and held there most of the time, after an early dip. Bethlehem improved a point. Youngstown and Republic weakened.

Rail Shares Steady.

Railroad shares were a trifle steadier. A feature of that division was liquidation of Alleghany by those who apparently were taken by surprise in the change of plans for liquidation of that company instead of Chesapeake. The market had had a virtual promise of improvement for Alleghany, but now it seems the new owners will preserve instead the Chesapeake Corporation and collapse Alleghany. Alleghany trading in the early hours made up more than 10 per cent of the total and the common shares lost about 30 per cent of their market value, regaining a little in the last hour or two.

On the independent list Chrysler rose more than 2 points. General Motors was little changed. Utility, food, tobacco, rubber, amusement and chemical shares were firm. Mail orders were nicely backed. Some of the oils gained a bit.

Little happened overnight or during the day to cause any re-orientation of investment of speculative operations. The net effect of the many uncertainties in the situation seems to be to freeze into their present positions the majority of stock owners, and probably the effect on the business management mind is somewhat similar. If so, the chances of a recession later will be hastened, for unless business continues to expand it will go backward.

Steel Meeting.

The meeting of steel executives from all over the country under the auspices of the American Iron and Steel Institute produced a number of fairly uniform opinions on the outlook for the steel industry. While on short term the views were bullish, two notes ran through them. One was the uncertainty over costs because of mounting labor demands and the other was the obscurity of future taxation.

Right now the labor position may seem to be the worse, as while the meetings were held more than 50,000 men were reported to be idle in steel mills just closed in a new C. I. O. strike. Not only is labor giving industry difficult problems to solve under existing legislation, but the new proposals for higher wages and shorter hours will add to the troubles. It isn't so much what has happened that worries businessmen as what may happen.

The steel industry, for example, may, as some executives think, manage to absorb and pass along enough of the higher costs without lifting selling prices to the extent of cutting off consumption; but grave doubts on that score are held. With taxes the position is much weaker. Taxes already are testing industry's power of absorption, and further advances are in sight. On that subject a significant bit of testimony was given today by a former head of the Jersey Central Railroad. He said that bankruptcy for the road was inevitable unless its taxes are reduced. Bankrupt industry won't pay much in taxes, nor will a Government-owned transportation system.

Failure.

Failure of the Curb Exchange firm of Frank C. Masterson & Co. was the first casualty for the Curb or Stock Exchange in two and a half years. It was thought to be significant of nothing in particular except that, even in these days of vigilant SEC and rejuvenated organized exchanges, financial failures still are possible, and the brokerage house customer would be well advised to look after himself a bit instead of depending entirely upon nursie. Numerous sales of securities "under the rule" took place on the Curb following announcement of the failure. Sales covered stocks of American Centrifugal, Central & Southwestern Utilities, Monarch Machine Tool and Hewitt Rubber. Bonds affected were Heller 4 per cents, with warrants; Western Newspaper Union, Cities Service 5s, 1950; Federal Water Service 5½s, Gatineau Power 5s, Associated Gas Electric 5½s, 1977; Minnesota Power 5s, Hotel Waldorf-Astoria 5s, and Baldwin Locomotive 6s.

Write-Off?

Month after month the Treasury, in its statement of the public debt, itemizes its list of investments, which on February 28 totaled $17,614,556,251.81. The principal item is the war and postwar loans to foreign governments, aggregating $12,014,850,216.85. The net debt, including matured interest obligations, totals $33,736,836,166.34 and this item is presented with a footnote which reads, "No deduction is made on account of obligations of foreign governments or other investments." At least the Treasury is under no illusions as to the chances of collecting on the war debts.

Van Sweringen Lines.

In some Wall Street quarters there is still expectation that the Interstate Commerce Commission will allow Messrs. Young, Kirby and Kolbe to go ahead with plans which the Van Sweringens had for a consolidation of the railroads controlled by Alleghany Corporation, of which in turn the new men hold control through their purchase of Midamerica's holdings. The unfortunate admission of Mr. Young yesterday that he had never heard of the Splawn report on "Regulation of Stock Ownership in Railroads" may be a poor weather vane. The report fills three bulky volumes and gives just about all there is on railroad consolidations, holding companies and the Van Sweringen system in particular.

Sensitive.

How anyone could be interested in the subject and not have heard of Mr. Splawn, a member of the I. C. C. will nevertheless interest Commissioner Splawn and his colleagues. That admission and one or two other statements recently made by the new owners of Alleghany probably will be used by their opponents to attempt to show that the stock market rather than railroad operation is uppermost. Incidentally, one of the chief causes of irritation against the Van Sweringen brothers was caused by their apparent disregard of the I. C. C. in putting together their holdings. Senator Wheeler's motto seems to be that "It can't happen a second time."

Anaconda Copper Doubles Dividend

New York, May 27 (AP).—Directors of Anaconda Copper Co. doubled the regular dividend on the common stock today, declaring a distribution of 50 cents a share payable June 28 to stock of record June 27. Previously quarterly payments had been made at the rate of 25 cents a share. Last December an extra dividend of 25 cents was paid in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement.

Local Bankers Selected for St. Paul Parley

Delegation of 13 to Attend A. I. B. Convention June 7-11.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Headed by William H. Laughlin, its president, a delegation of 13 will represent Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, at the organization's national convention at St. Paul, Minn., June 7 to 11. Those from here who have been selected to attend the sessions are:

Mr. Laughlin, Ralph Endicott and Edward M. Blaiklock, Washington Loan & Trust Co.; Paul J. Seltzer, American Security & Trust Co., and Mrs. Seltzer; I. J. Roberts, and John M. Christie, Riggs National Bank; Joseph R. Fitzpatrick, Second National Bank; George M. Rowzee, jr., and George R. Gallegher, Lincoln National Bank; Elmer C. Flather, Union Trust Co.; T. Hunton Leith, Security Savings & Commercial Bank, and J. Earle McGeary, W. B. Hibbs & Co.

Five local members will talk at business sessions of the convention. They are Messrs. Roberts, Endicott, Seltzer, McGeary and Fitzpatrick. While in St. Paul, the local group will join with 2,000 delegates from all parts of the country for five days of lectures, meetings, educational tours and entertainment features.

Nationally Known Speakers.

Included on the program will be several nationally known speakers who will address the convention on subjects pertinent to present day banking and its problems. In addition, there will be "round tables" and parleys in which the delegates will participate. Finals of the inter-chapter debate competition for the John S. Puelicher trophy and the eleventh national public speaking contest for $1,100 in prizes offered through the A. P. Giannini Endowment will occupy two successive evenings, while business meetings and election of new national officers will be other important activities. In addition, a varied entertainment program has been planned. Headquarters for all convention activities will be St. Paul's Greater Hotel Lowry, where delegates also will be feted each night at various social gatherings. The convention will be one of the most important meetings of bankers during the year. The American Institute of Banking is the educational section of the American Bankers Association and has a membership of more than 53,000 men and women.

Trust Funds.

New rules passed by the District Court and dealing with investment of trust funds are expected to have a far-reaching effect on investments in general. These regulations were formulated by Theodore Cogswell, District register of wills, in conjunction with committees from the District of Columbia Bankers and Bar Associations and the fiduciary section of the former group.

A major change in the rules, of interest to real estate holders in Washington and surrounding territory, is one whereby investments may be made in first mortgages not only on real estate within the District but within ten miles of its boundaries. This would include first mortgages on real estate as far south as Marshall Hall and Mount Vernon, Va., to Falls Church, Va., on the west, north to Rockville and Norbeck, Md., and east to Bowie and Upper Marlboro, Md.

Real estate mortgage rules have also been changed so as to allow first mortgage loans on parking properties in the District to the extent of 60 per cent of their fair value, if producing a fair revenue. Amortized loans also may be made on parking properties as well as improved properties to the extent of 70 per cent of their fair value, if producing fair revenue.

Railroad Securities.

A rule regarding railroad securities has been changed considerably. A proviso in the former rule that railroads must have been paying 4 per cent dividends on their capital stock for the past five years has been eliminated. In place of it provision is made that net income available for fixed charges shall have been at least equal to fixed charges in each year for the next four out of five of its fiscal years next preceding the date of investment and shall have been not less than 1½ times its fixed charges for the fiscal year immediately preceding the date of investment. This will enlarge the field for investment in railroad securities.

A former rule allowed investment only in public utility obligations of the District of Columbia, whereas a new regulation authorizes investment in water, gas, electric and telephone corporations over the entire country. Provisions for public utilities are that their net earnings shall have averaged not less than 1 2-3 times the average interest charges on their outstanding obligations for a period of five fiscal years immediately preceding the date of investment, and net earnings must have been not less than 1¾ times their interest charges.

The provision for investment in street railway bonds has been eliminated and only the street railway bonds of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. consolidated mortgage 4 per cent and the Anacostia & Potomac River Railroad first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, principal and interest of which are guaranteed by the former company, are authorized.

Provision for United States Government obligations and for city, county and municipal bonds remain practically the same. Mr. Cogswell, as register of wills, is directed to maintain a list of securities considered investments for trust funds in conformity with the rules which become effective July 1. At this time, it is expected, this legal list will be available.

Treasury Cash Balance Lowest in Four Years

Secretary Montgomery said yesterday that a $50,000,000 discount bill issue Friday will be the last Treasury borrowing until its quarterly financing June 15.

The bills Friday will be the seventh consecutive weekly issue, bringing to $350,000,000 such obligations issued in anticipation of third-quarter tax receipts next September. At $483,503,204, the treasury's cash working ballance now is at the lowest level in more than four years.

Brokers' Loans Drop $3,000,000 for Week

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that last week's loans to brokers and dealers on securities held by reporting member banks in New York City totaled $1,124,000,000. The week ended Wednesday and the total represented a decrease of $3,000,000 when compared with the previous week.

Loans for the corresponding week a year ago totaled $968,060,000.

Associated Gas Output.

New York, May 27.—For the week ended May 21 Associated Gas & Electric System reports net electric output of 86,020,420 units. This is an increase of 11,006,136 units, or 14.7 per cent above the production of the comparable week a year ago.

Public Opinion Is Best Defense Against Boom

Tom K. Smith, A. B. A. President, Warns of Danger of Inflation.

By Gerald G. Gross.
A Star Correspondent.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., May 27.—Should the current business upswing lead to a period of inflation, whose dangers are "as unhealthy as panics," responsibility must not be placed upon the Nation's banks, President Tom K. Smith of the American Bankers Association told the D. C. Bankers Association here today.

Principal speaker at the opening of the District body's nineteenth annual convention, Smith said the most effective safeguard against unsalutary "booms," with their ensuing financial complications, "is an informed public, alive to the dangers of inflation."

"The general upward movement in building activity and the stock market which has taken place since 1932 is not based to any significant extent on bank loans," he declared. "The funds upon which this activity is based are the result of Government borrowing.

"The Government obtained cash by sale of securities, largely to the banks, and it disbursed this morning in relief and public works and all its other activities. The funds trickled down through the economic structure and the recipients ultimately deposited them in their bank accounts, and thereby swelled the total of deposits. It is upon these deposits, which are owned outright by their depositors, that the upward movement in security prices and the upturn in building construction are based."

Banks Do Not Control.

Consequently, he said, banks have little control over the upswing. Since they cannot dictate the uses depositors shall make of their money, He pointed out that adequate regulatory powers exist to hold inflation at bay and that the principal danger is that "an uninformed public might prevent these powers from being used at the proper time."

The speaker criticized the postal savings system as having gone back on three of the four principles upon which it was founded. Citing the recent report of the banking studies committee of the A. B. A., he charged:

That only 5 per cent of the 33,000 communities which have postoffices but no banks have postal savings depositories, relative to the argument that the postal savings system was to furnish bankless communities with savings facilities.

That postal savings, offering 2 per cent interest, offers genuine competition; that only $150,000,000 of the $1,300,000,000 in postal deposits has been redeposited in chartered banks.

Alluding to the fourth point, that postal savings was to provide a safe method of saving for the individual of small means, Smith reminded that the number of private banks having savings departments has increased markedly.

"With the advent of Federal deposit insurance the savings problem of the individual of small means would appear to have undergone quite a change since the postal savings system was set up."

Washington Leads.

In his review of the year Thomas J. Groom, acting president of the District Bankers Association, said Washington led the country in recovery, its retail sales being the highest on record and housing construction exceeding that of any previous year.

He urged the return of the postal savings system to the founding principles and insistence by banks upon audited statements by firms seeking credit.

Groom commended efforts of the A. B. A. to bring about a better understanding of banking on the part of the general public and urged establishment of a speakers unit within the District association as one means toward that end.

"Banking is more in the public mind today than ever," he asserted. "All over the United States organizations of various kinds are asking for addresses on banking subjects for their meetings."

A comprehensive report on commercial trade activities was submitted by Norman E. Towson, assistant treasurer of the Washington Loan & Trust Co. Trends in Washington during 1936 were encouraging, he said, citing sizable increases in bank clearings, commercial and realty loans, building operations, auto registration, telephones, department store sales and hotel occupancy.

C., until 11 a. m., JUNE 2, 1937, and then and there publicly opened, for 4,000-kw. turbo-alternator, condenser, and auxiliaries at the Navy Yard, Washington, D. C. Specification No. 8434 may be obtained on application to the bureau or to the Commandant, Navy Yard, Washington, D. C. Deposit of a check or postal money order for $10, payable to the Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks, is required as security for the safe return of the drawings and specification. NORMAN M. SMITH, Chief of Bureau, May 4, 1937. 21.28

COMMISSIONERS, D. C., WASHINGTON, May 21, 1937. Sealed proposals will be received in Room 309, District Building, until 2:00 p. m., JUNE 16, 1937, E. S. T., and then publicly opened and read, for Rehabilitating the New Jersey Avenue Sewage Pumping Station, Washington, D. C. A more complete description of the work and full information for bidders is given in the drawings, specifications and in other contract papers, which may be obtained at Room 427, Industrial Building, upon deposit of a certified check payable to the Collector of Taxes, D. C., in the sum of $25 to insure return in good condition. Not more than three complete sets of drawings, specifications and contract papers will be furnished to any one general contractor. No proposal will be accepted unless accompanied by a guaranty of not less than five per cent (5%) of the amount of the bid in the form of a certified check made payable to the Collector of Taxes, D. C., U. S. Bonds, or the bond of an approved surety company. Security for the faithful performance of the work shall be in the form of a surety bond in a penal sum equal to the estimated total contract price. A labor bond in an amount equal to the largest estimated aggregate pay roll for any one month is required. Public liability insurance in the sum of $10,000 and $20,000 will be required. The work called for under this proposal is to be performed in accordance with an agreement dated October 6, 1934, and an amendatory agreement dated April 2, 1937, between the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and the Federal Emergency Administrator of Public Works and is subject to the provisions of Title II of the National Industrial Recovery Act and the rules and regulations prescribed by the President and the Federal Administrator of Public Works. The Acting Manager, District of Columbia Employment Center, is C. E. Lamson, 480 Indiana Avenue, N. W. The Commissioners reserve the right to reject any and all proposals and to waive informalities as they deem best for the interest of the District of Columbia. Final award of contract is subject to approval of the Federal Emergency Administrator of Public Works. Attention is called to the fact that not less than the minimum wage rates prescribed by the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works must be paid on this project. A schedule of wage rates predetermined by the U. S. Department of Labor for this work is included in the specifications. MELVIN C. HAZEN, GEO. E. ALLEN, DAN I. SULTAN, Commissioners D. C. 21.22.24,26,29.31

3 Aides of Seal Plan to Resign Posts Shortly

Folsom, Sparks and Hooe Leaving; Plans of Last Named Indefinite.

Three assistant corporation counsels indicated yesterday morning they would soon resign, and thus created the possibility that Elwood Seal, corporation counsel, might reorganize his office. Late yesterday afternoon, however, Seal said no consideration had yet been given to possible successors.

The men resigning are: Hinman D. Folsom, special assistant corporation counsel in charge of the legal aspects of public utilities. He will not leave, however, until the present hearing into the value of the Capital Transit Co.'s properties has been concluded; Raymond Sparks, recently engaged in preparation of some of the District's new tax bills, and in charge of revocation and restoration of motorists' permits, and Rice Hooe, chief of the legal staff at Police Court.

Folsom, appointed to the staff in October, 1934, at an annual salary of $6,500, is expected to go to Seattle, Wash., where relatives live. His date of departure is contingent upon conclusion of the Capital Transit hearing.

Sparks, appointed to the staff seven years ago at an annual salary of $3,800, is a native of Washington and a graduate of Georgetown University Law School. He will join the law firm of Hewes, Prettyman and Awalt.

Hooe was appointed to the staff in December, 1934, at a annual salary of $3,800. He succeeded Andrew M. Howsley as counsel to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, and later was transferred to Police Court. His resignation has been rumored at the District Building for some weeks, but his plans for the future are unknown.

Cosmopolitan Club Honors Its Dead

Making what probably was his last speaking appearance before the Cosmopolitan Club, Dr. Calvert E. Buck, chaplain of the club, yesterday paid tribute to the memory of six members who have died since the club was formed at memorial services at the Carlton Hotel.

Dr. Buck, who has been the speaker at both memorial and Christmas celebrations of the club for several years, has been called to the pastorate of the Church of the Atonement in Chicago. For the past nine years he has been superintendent of the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat hospital here.

P. A. Davis, chairman of the flower committee, said graves of departed members will be decorated tomorrow.

Nice Picks Small For Racing Post

Annapolis, Md., May 27 (AP).—The appointment of Frank Small, of Prince Georges County, to the State Racing Commission was predicted today by Gov. Harry W. Nice.

The Governor said he will name Small to succeed Edwin Warfield, jr., a Democrat, whose term expires July 1. Small is a Republican and served a short time in the House of Delegates. He is a Washington automobile dealer and operates branches in Oxon Hill and Upper Marlboro.

Local, Express Air Line Links Coasts

Kansas City, May 27 (AP).—A "local and express" transport airplane service coast-to-coast was announced today by Jack Frye, president of Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., effective June 1 when a fleet of aircraft designated "skysleepers" will be put into service.

Three-stop flights between Newark, N. J., and Burbank, Calif., will be inaugurated with the new equipment. On the 15-hour and 10 minute eastbound run, landings will be made at Albuquerque, Kansas City and Pittsburgh, Pa. On the 17-hour westbound flights, the landings will be at Columbus, Ohio, Kansas City and Albuquerque.

Larceny Charged To Youth Having 'Arsenal' in Room

Three charges of housebreaking and larceny were lodged against Charles Stewart Taylor, 19, 3808 Veazey street northwest, while police continued to search for property the youth has confessed stealing in the past several years.

The youth's room was a veritable arsenal Wednesday when Detective Sergeant Eugene Lambert went there. Taylor had been arrested on Seventh street northwest the day before and told Lambert most of the property was at his home.

Valuable firearms taken from the home of Col. Calvin Goddard, 3533 Quebec street northwest, nationally known ballistics expert, cameras, an empty airplane bomb, knives and other articles were found in the home and in second-hand shops.

Lost Teacher's Body Recovered From Lake

Madison, Wis., May 27 (AP).—The body of Asa Clark, 40-year-old University of Wisconsin professor who disappeared more than two weeks ago, was recovered last night from Lake Mendota.

Coroner Edward A. Fischer attributed the death to drowning while swimming. Clark, a French instructor, had last been seen May 12.

4 Nippon Warships Sent to Shanghai

Shanghai, May 27 (U.P.).—Chinese press reports from Hongkong tonight said four Japanese warships had been rushed to Swatow after the Chinese city government rejected "utterly unreasonable" demands of the Japanese consul in connection with an alleged attack on a consular policeman.

Meanwhile, a report that a customs cruiser attacked two Japanese fishing vessels near Tangku, wounding the skipper of one boat, was categorically denied at Tientsin.

Canton customs authorities made a similar denial of a report that a customs cruiser had fired on two Japanese fishing vessels near Pakhoi in South China.

Life-Saving Review Set for Tomorrow

The District Chapter, American Red Cross, will conduct its ninth lift saving examiners' review at the McKinley pool, Lincoln road and Prospect avenue northeast, tomorrow from 1 to 5 p. m.

It is the policy of the American Red Cross that all life saving examiners must review the work under a field representative at least every two years to keep their appointments current.

The examiners' training course will be given at McKinley pool next week, commencing Tuesday, through Friday.

U. S. to Celebrate Role in Advancing Air Science Today

Military and commercial aviation circles throughout the country will celebrate National Aviation Day today, focusing attention on America's role in aeronautics.

Yesterday President Roosevelt issued an official proclamation, calling attention to observance of the day, and issuing instruction for flags to be displayed from all Government buildings. Commissioner of Education John W. Studebaker urged all schools to hold appropriate ceremonies commemorating Lindbergh's transatlantic flight and focusing attention on aviation's progress in the last decade.

Today was set aside as National Aviation Day by a Congressional resolution last Tuesday.

House Secretaries Join Ranks of CIO

A Congressional Guild, affiliated with John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization, yesterday was formed by secretaries to a number of self-styled liberal members in the House of Representatives.

"This is a militant group of young intellectual fighters," asserted John E. Kennedy, of Hamilton, Mont., who was named chairman of the unit.

Other officials of the organization include Tony Stefano, of St. Paul, Minn., vice chairman, and William Skeels, of Bismarck, N. Dak., secretary. About 25 persons attended the gathering.

Three New Drugs Halt Convulsions In Harvard Tests

New York, May 27 (AP).—A method of determining in advance the ability of drugs to stop convulsions has brought to light three powerful substances not used before in medical treatment, two Harvard University medical scientists announced today.

By subjecting cats to electrical shocks on the head it was possible to produce experimental convulsions and measure the effect of various chemical substances in controlling them, Dr. Tracy J. Putnam and Dr. Houston Merritt declared in a report in Science, weekly journal of scientific research.

Brown Gets Case For His Medals

Taking cognizance of medals recently bestowed upon Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, Washington Kiwanis Club members yesterday jocularly presented him with a three-foot long, especially constructed contraption in order that he might display them.

Calling their fellow member, Maj. Brown, to the platform at the club's weekly luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel, Mark Lansburgh solemnly made a presentation speech. Then, he opened the elaborate "medal hanger" with space for about 30 medals and placed it over his head.

A talk by Dr. James I. Hambleton, chief of the division of bee culture, Department of Agriculture, and the showing of motion pictures of the bee industry was the feature of the luncheon.
